Rebukes Proponents of Ratification.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Gov. Henry Horner yesterday assailed the pending St. Lawrence seaway treaty on the ground that it would give Canada, instead of congress, control of the Illinois waterway and the lakes-to-gulf route. He spoke at a "conference of governors" held in the Stevens hotel. The meeting was notable for its absentee list.

The governors of 23 states were summoned to the meeting, which was to promote ratification of the treaty. Only two governors appeared, Gov. Horner and Gov. William A. Comstock of Michigan, one of five governors who signed the call. Two ex-governors were in attendance, and six other persons represented the governors of their states. Thirteen of the 23 invited governors did not attend even by proxy.

In the background was the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association, which has been actively promoting the treaty.

Horner Rebukes Conferees.

At the outset Gov. Horner reproached the meeting, remarking that it was rather odd for nine men to assume to speak for 23 states containing 55 per cent of the population of the United States, on a treaty which affected adversely the entire inland waterway system of the Mississippi valley and great lakes basin.

He displayed a sheaf of telegrams from Kansas City, St. Louis, New Orleans, Memphis, Tulsa, Okla., and other cities protesting against ratification of the St. Lawrence treaty in its present form. Other wires said that the legislatures of Illinois and of Texas had just passed resolutions against the treaty.

Gov. J. Marion Futrell of Arkansas and Gov. Oscar K. Allen of Louisiana sent messages to Gov. Horner expressing "unalterable opposition" to the treaty.

Emphasize the Labor Phase.

The burden of all the messages to Gov. Horner was that the treaty as it now stands before the senate at Washington means abandonment of sovereignty over Lake Michigan, which is not a boundary water but an American lake. They also emphasized the labor phase of the treaty.

"I am against the expenditure," wired the Louisiana governor, "of money by the United States on any part of this waterway in which Canadian engineers, laborers, or other employés are used, feeling that in the expenditure of our money American citizens should alone benefit."

At the end of a closed session in which Gov. Horner made a lone battle against the other nine conferees, the nine prepared a resolution to be sent to President Roosevelt asking him in two typewritten pages to urge ratification of the seaway treaty at this session of congress.

Horner Wires to Roosevelt.

Gov. Horner prepared a telegram to the President, voicing the opposition of Illinois to the present form of the treaty and speaking of the adverse opinion registered against the treaty in states up and down the Mississippi valley. This message was dispatched to Washington last night after Mr. Horner returned to Springfield. Addressed directly to President Roosevelt, it said:

"I beg leave to protest the telegram to you from the group of governors assembled by the officers of the Tidewater association. The meeting and telegram sent by it were unquestionably for the purpose of influencing senators now opposed to treaty in present form.

"Illinois and the states of the Mississippi valley do not oppose a St. Lawrence seaway but insist upon an unqualified reservation to the treaty preserving the sovereignty of the United States over Lake Michigan and reserving in congress the right at all times to provide adequate diversion for a commercially useful lakes to the gulf waterway.

Lake Michigan All in U. S.

"Lake Michigan is no portion of the international boundary as are the other great lakes and is entirely a domestic lake. Our history furnishes no precedent for submitting to international arbitration over domestic problems. Article 8 of the treaty surrenders the basic and essential rights.

"Twent, three governors were invited to the meeting. No response came from eleven governors. Only two governors were present, including myself. Eight other governors were represented by proxies, some of whom

FAIR HUMS WITH NEW ACTIVITY AS MAY 27 NEARS

A Century of Progress exposition, Chicago's expression of faith in the future of the central west and of the world, passed yesterday into the final stages of preparation for the opening on May 27. The gates to the grounds were closed, that workmen putting on the final touches might not be further hampered by throngs of sightseers.

When they are re-opened it is probable that Vice President John N. Garner, as the personal representative of President Roosevelt, will be present. The President yesterday announced regretfully, in Washington, that the pressure of business would prevent him coming in person, as he had planned.

Urge Mrs. Roosevelt to Attend.

Mrs. Roosevelt, however, is being urged to attend and exposition officials are hopeful she will find it possible to come.

The President sent a telegram to Rufus C. Dawes, president of the fair, reading as follows:

"It is with extreme regret that I find it necessary to cancel my tentative engagement to open the Century of Progress exposition. I am particularly sorry because I wanted to see for myself what has been accomplished, and to pay tribute to the imaginative and creative ability of a people who celebrate a centenary by evidencing the achievements and cultural advancement of our modern world.

Closing Days of Congress.

"I have reached this conclusion because every indication now points to the fact that it will be impossible for me to be away from the capital at the time of the opening. Congress will probably be entering its closing days, and in addition to that the economic conference and other international discussions require my close attention. I do not think I should, therefore, hold the matter open any longer, thus preventing you completing your plans.

"It is my hope that the exposition will be successful in every way and prove an inspiration to the countless many who will attend it."

Plan President's Day.

President Roosevelt added informally to his message that he had asked the Vice President to go in his stead. Requested by Mr. Dawes to promise that he would come later to a "President's day" the President said that he confidently hoped he would be able to attend the exposition before it closes.

In replying to the telegram Mr. Dawes expressed his disappointment and that of Chicago, but stated all recognize the responsibilities that lay back of the decision. He cordially urged the presence of Vice President Garner.

When the gates to the gay city of novel entertainment on the lake front were closed yesterday the 5,000 workmen took up their labors in earnest. Yesterday some 30,000 sightseers visited the grounds, increasing the total who have paid a 10 cent admission fee to 1,290,160.

A Scene of Activity.

For the next ten days the fair will present a scene of intense activity. There will be the din of hammers, the roar of trucks delivering materials, the springing up of still more structures. Already an additional 700 workers have been engaged. Landscapers are at work planting and terracing the grounds and the management has promised that on the day of the formal opening there will be no ragged edges left untrimmed.

As an instance of the lavish attention to detail, Northerly island is to be sodded in its entirety at a cost of $50,000. The heavy rains have caused some delay in construction of buildings, but on the mainland they have brought a fine growth of grass.

"Streets of Paris" There.

In the last two weeks great progress has been made on many of the exhibits. The Belgian village, with its replica of the famous round tower of Bruges, and representations of 600 famous buildings, have sprung up and are nearing completion. The articles on display will include "La Diablesse," a cannon which was used in the defense of Ghent against the Spaniards in 1540.

Across the street from the Belgian exhibit is "Streets of Paris," a gay concentration of noted pleasure spots in the French capital. It, too, is nearly ready for visitors.

A special force of 150 policemen and of 1,100 trained guides will be on duty during the Fair.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Woodridge, N. J., May 16.—[Special.]—Dr. John Grier Hibben, president emeritus of Princeton university, was killed this afternoon and his wife was injured when the car he was driving collided with a light truck loaded with beer.

The 72 year old educator, who succeeded Woodrow Wilson as president of Princeton, was crushed behind the broken steering wheel of his car. He died before reaching Rahway Memorial hospital, where his wife also was taken by a passing motorist.

Wife's Skull Fractured.

Peter Scibilia, 25, of New Brunswick, driver of the truck, which is owned by the Middlesex Beverage and Bottling company, was injured. He was removed to St. Peters' hospital in New Brunswick.

Apparently there were no witnesses to the collision.

Dr. Hibben's car, which, according to the police, was going in a northerly direction, when it was struck by the southbound truck, was on the wrong side of the road after the crash.

Princeton Mourns Hibben.

Princeton, N. J., May 16.—[Special.]—The news of Dr. Hibben's death cast a shadow of gloom over the Princeton faculty and students. Dr. Hibben had been president there from 1912 until last June.

Four Princeton athletic contests scheduled for tomorrow, including the Princeton-Columbia baseball game, were postponed or canceled as a mark of respect to Dr. Hibben's memory. Asa S. Bushnell, graduate manager of athletics, announced that the baseball game with Columbia will be played at some later date.

Born in Illinois.

Born in Peoria, Ill., on April 19, 1861, he was the son of the Rev. Samuel Hibben and Elizabeth Grier Hibben. After being graduated from Princeton in 1882 he studied at the University of Berlin for a year.

As an undergraduate he had won many scholastic honors, including the Stinecke prize, the class of '61 prize, the junior oratorical medal, and the J. S. K. fellowship in mathematics. He was elected president of his class.

From 1883 to 1886 he attended Princeton Theological seminary, and in 1887 was ordained as a Presbyterian minister.

For several years he was an ardent dry, but in 1930 he became convinced that the eighteenth amendment was unenforceable and that prohibition had been a distinct failure. He then declared himself for repeal.

Notables Attend Ceremony.

Dr. Hibben's inauguration was attended by President Taft and the representatives of 152 educational institutions. The choice of Dr. Hibben was hailed with general satisfaction. The undergraduates, who knew his ways and also his scholastic abilities, were especially pleased.

Before becoming president Dr. Hibben had been an active author, having published in 1896 his "Inductive Logic," which has been used extensively as a textbook in schools and colleges. He also wrote "The Problems of Philosophy," "Hegel's Logic," "Deductive Logic" and "The Philosophy of the Enlightenment," the last in twelve volumes, with contributions from outstanding philosophers of the United States and Great Britain.

Later, Dr. Hibben wrote "A Defense of Prejudice and Other Essays" and "The Higher Patriotism."

New Jersey Votes Wet by Nearly 100 to 1

Newark, N. J., May 16.—(AP)—New Jersey today joined the procession of states voting repeal of the 18th amendment by electing a virtually solid wet delegation to a convention to consider ratification. The convention will be held probably the first week in June.

One Jersey City ward gave the repealists its unanimous vote, casting 2,488 ballots for them. One Hudson county precinct recorded 134 votes for repealists to 4 for prohibitionists.

The state, which was the 46th to ratify the 18th amendment by vote of the legislature in 1922, becomes the fifth in succession to favor repeal.

Wyoming Repeal Vote Mounts.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 16.—(AP)—Tabulation of votes cast in Wyoming's precinct conventions held yesterday revealed tonight a total of 325 precinct conventions had designated 456 delegates to vote for repeal at 23 county conventions May 18. These county conventions, in turn, will elect delegates pledged to vote either wet or dry at the state repeal convention in Casper, May 25. There are 667 precincts in the state.

EXPECT ROOSEVELT APPEAL TO STATES TO HASTEN REPEAL

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt is expected to issue a statement shortly, urging the states to act promptly on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Thus far the President, while having urged modification of the Volstead act, has refrained from commenting on repeal.

According to some of his advisers, he believes that the time has come when he can say something opportunely on the repeal situation. The President is represented as contending that sentiment in the country is favorable to repeal and there is no reason why the state legislatures should not act without delay to permit the electors to vote on the question.

Hitler Silent on Roosevelt Peace Appeal

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 16.—Will President Roosevelt's "world peace" message soften the notes of Chancellor Hitler's momentous address before the reichstag tomorrow?

Diplomatic circles in Berlin pondered this question tonight. No direct answer came from the chancellor's office. There one of Hitler's private secretaries said nobody—not even cabinet members—has any inkling as to what Hitler will say.

"The chancellor will speak extemporaneously," the secretary said. "I understand the speech will run about 6,000 words."

Roosevelt's Plea Welcomed.

The first reactions in Germany to President Roosevelt's appeal for international peace came from the foreign office. There the speech was welcomed as an indication that the United States is turning from "ice cold isolation" toward Europe.

"Germany always supported the British plan for disarmament as a suitable basis for a convention," a foreign office spokesman said. "Thus the reich is in entire accord with the Roosevelt recommendation on this subject."

Other government officials interpreted Mr. Roosevelt's message as an attempt to exercise a direct influence upon Hitler's address. Some misgivings were expressed that the old Wilsonian policy of dictation in Europe was being resumed.

Oppose Points in Plan.

Political circles emphasize that many points in the British disarmament plan are objectionable. The Taegliche Rundschau says:

"An important point at the moment is a renewed official recognition of the principle of equal rights for Germany which was recently rejected by the Anglo-French national bloc."

Mr. Roosevelt's remark that the world "will know where the responsibility for failure lies" in the event "any strong nation" blocks "political and economic peace" at the Geneva and London conferences brought this sharp rejoinder from the Rundschau:

"Recent decisions at Geneva have proved the firm intention of Germany's opponents to measure with two rules where the reich's security is concerned. In view of Mr. Roosevelt's admonition it must be clearly stated that Germany knows exactly where responsibility for the critical development of the situation lies—in Paris and London."

Confers with Hindenburg.

Meanwhile Hitler, who is in a tight spot both at home and abroad, was putting the finishing touch to his pronouncement on disarmament. First, he saw President Paul von Hindenburg. The two discussed the entire field of foreign politics. Special emphasis was placed on the disarmament issue. This issue, it is agreed, is the most important the chancellor has faced in his entire career.

Later in the day Hitler conferred with Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Nazi minister of interior, and Count Rudolf Nadolny, the reich's delegate to the disarmament conference. He summoned Nadolny from Geneva for the purpose of getting the latest information. Mr. Roosevelt's address was translated for Hitler, who declined to comment.

"We demand nothing extravagant," he said. "What we want is equal rights."

The spokesman charged that other powers had neglected their treaty obligations, which, he said, "marks a relapse into the times of fifteen years ago."

"Is it of any sense for Germany to shoulder new obligations without advance concessions from other countries?" he asked.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt electrified the world today with a message he cabled to the heads of fifty-four nations proposing a peace plan, designed to avert threatened war in Europe.

His plan included the proposal of a nonaggression pact whereby every nation would pledge itself not to send its armed forces across its boundaries.

Violation of such a pact would automatically convict a nation of aggression. Implied in the President's proposals, as he later construed them, is a commitment of the United States to a consultative pact obligating this country to take counsel with other nations on measures to punish an aggressor. The President favors the waiver of neutrality rights in such a contingency and the embargo of export of war munitions to an aggressor.

Sends Copy to Congress.

After dispatching his message to the nations the President transmitted a copy of it to congress with a special message explaining that he had taken this step because "the assurance of world political and economic peace and stability is threatened by selfish and short-sighted policies, actions, and threats of nations."

In this message he thus summarized the peace plan he proposed to the nations:

"First, that through a series of steps the weapons of offensive warfare be eliminated;

"Second, that the first definite step be taken now;

"Third, that while these steps are being taken no nation shall increase existing armaments over and above the limitations of treaty obligations;

Hopes to Halt Spread of War.

With Japan invading China, two wars being fought in South America, and Dictator Hitler rattling the saber in Germany, the President leaped into the breach with a peace plan he has been maturing since last January.

He disclosed this afternoon that he consulted no other governments on the project, not even the European statesmen in the recent White House conversations, and confided the plan to none but Secretary of State Cordell Hull. His cablegram went as a complete surprise to the chancelleries of the world.

The President and Mr. Hull decided yesterday to lay the plan before the world today for the purpose of influencing, if possible, the attitude of Hitler in the speech he will make to the reichstag tomorrow and the reaction of other European nations to the Hitler utterance. It is the President's hope that Hitler will be persuaded to moderate his threat to withdraw from the Geneva disarmament conference unless Germany be permitted equality of armament.

It is the President's further hope that if Hitler persists in his threatened course a general acceptance of the nonaggression pact would deter France from attacking Germany. As it is viewed by the administration the present situation in Europe is charged with dynamite. Any flying spark might cause an explosion and France would be in Berlin within a fortnight.

Secondarily the President's motive was to save the disarmament conference from failure and likewise the approaching world economic conference at London, which would have less chance of success if the disarmament conference were to blow up.

Mr. Roosevelt's view is that world economic recovery is dependent upon the success of these two conferences and, incidentally, his own program for domestic economic recovery will be vitally affected by the outcome at Geneva and London.

What may go down in history as the Roosevelt doctrine of nonaggression the President proposed in his message to the nations in these words:

"That all the nations of the world should enter into a solemn and definite pact of nonaggression; that they should solemnly reaffirm the obligations they have assumed to limit and reduce their armaments, and, provided these obligations are faithfully executed by all signatory powers, individually agree that they will send no armed force of whatsoever nature across their frontiers."

Warning to Germany.

He concluded his cablegram with the pointed remark that "if any strong nation" blocks "political and economic peace" at the Geneva and London conferences the world "will know where the responsibility for failure lies." This was interpreted as a word of warning to Germany in the case of the disarmament conference and to Great Britain, France, and Germany in the case of the economic conference.

The nonaggression proposal is the contribution to the peace machinery of the world that Mr. Roosevelt has been turning over in his mind for four months.

Just how nonaggression agreements would be effected he was not prepared to say. It might be that they would be established through an implementation of the Kellogg anti-war pact. Or a separate and independent nonaggression pact might be negotiated to take its place as the twin of the Kellogg pact.

Makes Pledge More Definite.

Asked why he thought an agreement of this character was needed in view of the comprehensive pledge of the Kellogg pact that no nation will resort to war as an instrument of national policy, Mr. Roosevelt explained that his proposal makes the pledge more definite and concrete. He thought it would be pretty hard for any nation to get around a pledge not to send its armed forces across its boundaries.

Mr. Roosevelt also disclosed that he is prepared to negotiate a nonaggression pact and to commit the United States to abide by it implicitly, even to the extent of refraining from dispatching marines to Caribbean and other countries for protection of American interests, as has been the policy for many years.

The President took the position that such use of our armed forces beyond our borders would be absolutely forbidden by the nonaggression pact he has proposed. The use of our armed forces now stationed in China and Haiti, however, would be exempted by the provision of the proposal referring to existing treaty rights.

Includes Russia in Message.

Considerable excitement was stirred on Capitol hill by the President's inclusion of Russia, the soviet government of which is unrecognized by the United States, among the nations to whom the message was addressed. Senators William E. Borah [rad. Rep., Idaho] and Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.] thought this amounted to a recognition of Russia.

Later, however, the President pronounced this detail of no significance whatever, even as an indication of the future course of the administration with regard to the recognition of Russia. He said that the countries he addressed were the countries participating in both the disarmament and economic conferences. Russia merely happened to be one of those countries.

Congressional Reaction Divided.

Democratic and some Republican senators and representatives enthusiastically applauded the President's move. Some of the Republicans were critical.

"The message reflects bold initiative and much needed leadership, if there is to be hope for success of the disarmament conference at Geneva and the approaching economic conference at London," said Senator Robinson of Arkansas.

"Whether it is the intention of our chief executive, in sending the message to the head of the Russian government to recognize the existence of that government, does not appear on the face of the document. But the action of the President in sending the communication to President Kalinin, particularly in view of implied acknowledgement of conventional relations, appears to me may have that effect.

"It is apparent that unless the message meets with hearty response there can be very little hope for the prompt stabilization of currencies and the diminution of armament burdens."

Other expressions follow:

Senator Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.]—I regard it all as a beautiful gesture and do not believe it will have any substantial influence toward disarmament. Peace cannot be brought about by legislative action or international agreement. It will only develop through a process of evolution.

Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.]—Again the President has shown a fine quality of world leadership which ought to go far toward adjustment of differences and toward cementing peace among nations.

Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.]—I am whole-heartedly in accord with the appeal of the President to the nations to reduce their armaments and undertake to agree not to send armies across their frontiers. The message should be a comfort to those who hope for the peace of the world.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.]—The country can enthusiastically and unanimously support the President's announced public policy. It proposes a united front on the part of every nation against any nation that undertakes military movements, and, of course, that includes Chancellor Hitler of Germany. The statement is timely and will rank among the great state papers of history.

Roosevelt's Message to World Against War

Washington, May 16.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's message to the heads of the nations participating in the world conferences on economics and disarmament follows:

"A profound hope of the people of my country impels me, as the head of their government, to address you and, through you, the people of your nation. This hope is that peace may be assured through practical measures of disarmament and that all of us may carry to victory our common struggle against economic chaos.

"To these ends the nations have called two great world conferences. The happiness, the prosperity, and the very lives of the men, women, and children who inhabit the whole world are bound up in the decisions which their governments will make in the near future. The improvement of social conditions, the preservation of individual human rights, and the furtherance of social justice are dependent upon these decisions.

Quick Action Necessary.

"The world economic conference will meet soon and must come to its conclusions quickly. The world cannot await deliberations long drawn out. The conference must establish order in place of the present chaos by a stabilization of currencies, by freeing the flow of world trade, and by international action to raise price levels. It must, in short, supplement individual domestic programs for economic recovery by wise and considered international action.

"The disarmament conference has labored for more than a year and, as yet, has been unable to reach satisfactory conclusions. Confused purposes still clash dangerously. Our duty lies in the direction of bringing practical results through concerted action based upon the greatest good to the greatest number.

"Before the imperative call of this great duty, petty obstacles must be swept away and petty aims forgotten. A selfish victory is always destined to be an ultimate defeat. The furtherance of durable peace for our generation in every part of the world is the only goal worthy of our best efforts.

"If we ask what are the reasons for armaments, which, in spite of the lessons and tragedies of the world war, are today a greater burden on the peoples of the earth than ever before, it becomes clear that they are twofold:

"First, the desire, disclosed or hidden, on the part of governments to enlarge their territories at the expense of a sister nation. I believe that only a small minority of governments or of peoples harbor such a purpose.

"Second, the fear of nations that they will be invaded. I believe that the overwhelming majority of peoples feel obliged to retain excessive armaments because they fear some act of aggression against them and not because they themselves seek to be aggressors.

"There is justification for this fear. Modern weapons of offense are vastly stronger than modern weapons of defense. Frontier forts, trenches, wire entanglements, coast defenses—in a word, fixed fortifications—are no longer impregnable to the attack of war planes, heavy mobile artillery, land battleships called tanks, and poison gas.

Should Eliminate Offensive Weapons.

"If all nations will agree wholly to eliminate from possession and use the weapons which make possible a successful attack, defenses automatically will become impregnable, and the frontiers and independence of every nation will become secure.

"The ultimate objective of the disarmament conference must be the complete elimination of all offensive weapons. The immediate objective is a substantial reduction of some of these weapons and the elimination of many others.

"This government believes that the program for immediate reduction of aggressive weapons, now under discussion at Geneva, is but a first step toward our ultimate goal. We do not believe that the proposed immediate steps go far enough. Nevertheless, this government welcomes the measures now proposed and will exert its influence toward the attainment of further successive steps of disarmament.

Three Steps Necessary.

"Stated in the clearest way, there are three steps to be agreed upon in the present discussions:

"1. To take, at once, the first definite step toward this objective, as broadly outlined in the MacDonald plan.

"2. To agree upon time and procedure for taking the following steps.

"3. To agree that while the first and the following steps are being taken, no nation shall increase its existing armaments over and above the limitations of treaty obligations.

"But the peace of the world must be assured during the whole period of disarmament and I, therefore, propose a fourth step concurrent with and wholly dependent on the faithful fulfillment of these three proposals and subject to existing treaty rights:

"That all the nations of the world should enter into a solemn and definite pact of nonaggression.

"That they should solemnly reaffirm the obligations they have assumed to limit and reduce their armaments, and, provided these obligations are faithfully executed by all signatory powers, individually agree that they will send no armed force of whatsoever nature across their frontiers.

Must Be Universal Agreement.

"Common sense points out that if any strong nation refuses to join with genuine sincerity in these concerted efforts for political and economic peace—the one at Geneva and the other at London—progress can be obstructed and ultimately blocked. In such event the civilized world, seeking both forms of peace, will know where the responsibility for failure lies.

"I urge that no nation assume such a responsibility, and that all the nations joined in these great conferences translate their professed policies into action. This is the way to political and economic peace.

"I trust that your government will join in the fulfillment of these hopes."

RUSSIA'S HOPES FOR RECOGNITION BY U. S. LIFTED

MOSCOW, May 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's peace message undoubtedly strengthened hopes in soviet circles today that it may be the first step toward formal recognition of Russia by the United States. It was considered certain that Mr. Roosevelt's proposal for a world nonaggression agreement will appeal strongly to the soviet government, which feared for the safety of its far eastern border since the Japanese occupation of Manchuria.

Mikhail I. Kalinin, senior president of the central executive committee of the soviet union, to whom the message was addressed, is now on an inspection tour in the Volga river agricultural region. Telephone calls to government offices seeking information tonight on the government's attitude brought the response that responsible officials will not be available until tomorrow.

The message represents the first direct communication from an American President to Moscow officialdom since President Wilson's message to the congress of soviets in March, 1918, in an effort to forestall a bolshevist peace with Germany.

JAPAN SHOCKED BY ROOSEVELT'S PLEA TO MIKADO

TOKIO, May 17 (Wednesday).—(AP)—Astonishment at the method used by President Roosevelt in his peace appeal marked Japan's first reaction to the President's message.

This at present outweighed any semblance of the usual hostility with which Tokio has received similar proposals, such as the MacDonald disarmament plan and soviet Russia's nonaggression pact overtures.

The President's action in addressing his message directly to the emperor instead of to the foreign office was declared unprecedented.

This created difficulty in problems of procedure which probably will delay a reply. A spokesman explained that "the emperor never speaks with foreign nations on political matters and the foreign office cannot comment on communications to the emperor."

Whitehall, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—Olaf Gusk, Blair, was sentenced to 40 days in jail today for peddling meat from a cow that died after giving birth to calf. S. J. Miles, state department of dairy and foods, joined District Attorney O. J. Eggum in the prosecution.

WORLD'S FUTURE UP TO U. S. AND BRITAIN: BINGHAM

COBH, Irish Free State, May 16.—(AP)—Robert W. Bingham, arriving here tonight on the steamship Washington, en route to London to take up his post as the United States ambassador, expressed the belief that the salvation of the world depends on coöperation between the United States and Great Britain.

"I have the greatest good will towards Great Britain and towards the British people," he said, "and I think that on the coöperation and the understanding between the people of the United States and Great Britain depends not only the whole welfare of the two countries but also the salvation of the entire world.

"So far as my efforts are concerned and so far as I can help I shall do what I can to maintain and promote that good will."

GASTON B. MEANS FOUND GUILTY OF KIDNAPING FRAUD

Convicted, with Aid, of McLean Plot.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—Gaston B. Means, ex-detective, and Norman T. Whitaker, ex-lawyer, were found guilty tonight of conspiracy to defraud Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean of $35,000 for the promised return, last year, of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

A jury of seven women and five men deliberated for two and a half hours, finally overcame the objections of one man who thought Whitaker more of a hireling of Means than a co-conspirator, and returned their verdict to a crowd of curious in the district Supreme court here.

Means Goes Back to Prison.

Sentence, which carries a maximum penalty of two years in the penitentiary with the possibility of a maximum fine of $10,000, will be imposed within the next four days.

For Means, who dubs himself a "super-sleuth" the sentence means merely that he returns to Atlanta penitentiary, where he is serving the first year of a 15 year term for having taken $104,000 from Mrs. McLean in connection with the same case. Whether or not the new sentence will run concurrently with the present one lies within the discretion of Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue.

For Whitaker, the champion chess player designated as "The Fox" in the Means-McLean transaction, it means a brand new stretch behind the bars.

Mrs. Means Searched.

While the jury was deliberating the fate of her husband, Mrs. Means was hurried out of the District Supreme court building, on orders from District Attorney Leo A. Rover, in charge of the prosecution. She was taken to the women's bureau, where she was searched in a futile effort to locate on her person all or part of the $104,000 which Mrs. McLean handed over to Means March 7, 1932. Weeping her protest, Mrs. Means was searched for the mythical "money belt" which, according to Rover, informants had told him she wore.

Attorney Rover also declared that the search was really a protection for her; for word had come to him that "somebody planned to assassinate her and steal the concealed money."

Back at the court, Mrs. Means made a number of telephone calls, smoked a number of cigarets and went in for a conference with her husband.

Then she took her place in the courtroom and listened, calm and scornful, as the verdict was read.

Mrs. McLean, who received the news over the telephone at her home, said she was "delighted" but "not surprised."

Means Sticks to Spotlight.

To the very last Means occupied the spotlight. This morning, as Rover, in his closing argument, reminded the jury that Means had testified that his brother, Tony, had been present when the alleged kidnapers had talked to him, but that Means had not called Tony as a corroborating witness, Means leaped to his feet and yelled:

"I gave no such testimony."

Rover shook his fist in Means' face and shouted back, "I say you did," and produced the record to prove his point.

The trial, in progress for a week, has been a patchwork of excitement and mystery.

U. S. AND EUROPE NOW 'PARTNERS,' MACDONALD SAYS

Hails Roosevelt Message as Binding Pledge.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 16.—Prime Minister MacDonald, in one of the most remarkable speeches of his career before a gathering of 200 prominent persons at a Pilgrims' society banquet, tonight grew almost lyrical in his praise of President Roosevelt's peace plan.

At the same time Mr. MacDonald issued a stern warning to Germany and other nations that any attempt to disturb the peace of the world would have direct consequences to the disturbers. The British premier clearly intimated that the United States, as a result of President Roosevelt's pronouncement today, was now definitely expected to take a hand in imposing those consequences. He referred repeatedly in his speech to the United States and Europe now being "partners in misfortune."

Sees U. S. on New Path.

"This is a historic day," the premier declared. "America has boldly and openly cut her moorings on the quays of the new world and has launched herself with courage and very fine determination on new waters. Henceforth, America, by her own declaration, is to be indifferent to nothing that concerns the peace of the world.

"I do not know whether we shall succeed or not, but it is for us to do our very best to fulfill our intention to change the face of the world so that where there is jealousy there will be confidence, and where there is enmity there will be peace. And in doing that we shall adopt every method of that expediency and common sense put at our disposal."

Blunt Warning to Germany.

MacDonald's warning to Germany was blunt and to the point. He said: "We court the coöperation of France and Italy and the invaluable help of the United States—and even stronger terms can be used after today's pronouncement from Washington—in showing disapproval of any policy which threatens to become a menace to the peace of Europe.

"If any one says we are against the Germans, we are not. The other Europeans states have shown again and again a determination to put Germany back again in European relations consistent with her self-respect and enable her to fulfill her duties and desires as a coöperating state in European unity and prosperity.

Must Recognize Situation.

"We don't want to interfere in Germany's internal administration. But we cannot shut our eyes to the German situation. If the Germans are going to put a pistol to our head and pull the trigger, they must submit to the verdict of an international jury. We cannot be indifferent to the situation, and we are not. And by today's declaration the United States is not to be indifferent to it, either. We are partners in misfortune.

"The cardinal point of British policy is to get into active, not quiescent, coöperative relationship with the United States, in everything that relationship with the United States, in everything that relates to the peace of the world, prosperity and human progress. I am sure Mr. Roosevelt would associate himself with this statement—that I would like Great Britain to get into such relationship with the United States that we can quarrel, dispute and disagree and still trust the confidence we have in each other to remain absolutely unimpaired.

Likens U. S.-British Problems.

"The declaration this afternoon, I am perfectly certain, will be regarded in time to come as one of those great monuments, one of those great landmarks, which will show how human progress has been made through the years of time."

The prime minister drew a graphic word picture of the similarity of American and British problems. He told how he watched Mr. Roosevelt's reforestation army go into action, how he talked to Gloucester fishermen and midwestern farmers and how their stories of misfortune were the same as told him here by Lossiemouth fishermen, Lancashire cotton workers and midland farmers.

"We are partners, economically, in misfortune. Does it not make you want to grasp the hand of America in such a way that that grasp communicates, soul to soul, and determination with determination, that we are to march together to face the world difficulties?" he asked.

"In how many things are we not partners in misfortune today? Debts! How can any one who surveys with a clear eye the breadth and depth of our economic difficulties, object to the definition of the debt problem as a manifestation of the United States and ourselves being partners in misfortune? Why cannot we approach it from that point of view?"

DENIED A FAIR TRIAL, PASCHEN'S LAWYER ARGUES

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals took under advisement yesterday the appeal of Christian P. Paschen, former building commissioner, from a sentence of two years in Leavenworth and fine of $10,000 for income tax fraud. Paschen was convicted by a jury and sentenced by Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Oral arguments in the appeal were heard by Judges Samuel Alschuler, Evan A. Evans and William M. Sparks. Defense Attorney Franklin J. Stransky held that his client did not receive a fair trial.

"The prosecutor," he said, "paraded before the jury the large figure of $1,200,000 which he claimed Paschen earned from his tuck-pointing and cleaning business in 1927 and 1928. These figures remained with the jury all the time because the government would not permit us to show that part of the deposits in Paschen's ten different bank accounts consisted of political contributions amounting to nearly $400,000 which he handled as treasurer of a political faction."

Special Assistant United States Attorney General Samuel G. Clawson, who prosecuted the case, appeared for the government.

LONDON PAPERS HAIL ROOSEVELT PLEA FOR PEACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 17 [Wednesday].—With but one outstanding exception, London newspapers this morning expressed approval of President Roosevelt's appeal for peace. The Daily Telegraph complained that "we might have expected something more than an invitation to subscribe to yet another pact of nonaggression."

"What Europe desires from America," the Telegraph continued, "is assurance that in case of war she will manifest actively her disapproval of the aggressor."

Elsewhere strong praise was expressed. Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said that the Roosevelt pronouncement was "a stirring message to the world" to end the present period of unrest and dread of war. The Laborite Daily Herald said that the message is an "appeal for that common sense which is the world's greatest need; it affords a way out of the world impasse."

The Liberal News Chronicle interpreted the declaration as "obviously and immediately ending the isolation of America. It commits the United States to a continuous concern for the execution of disarmament in Europe and to more or less direct intervention in the event of open defiance of a new pledge of peace by any strong nation."

FAIR PLAY FOR GERMANY! PLEA OF LLOYD GEORGE

Insists Allies Treated Reich "Abominably."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 16.—David Lloyd George, Great Britain's war time prime minister, who was one of the "big three" responsible for the treaty of Versailles, today denounced the treatment accorded Germany under that treaty. He also pleaded for fair play for Britain's former enemy.

He assailed a bellicose speech delivered a few nights ago in the house of lords by Lord Hailsham, minister for war. Hailsham advocated taking sanctions against Germany to bring it into line in case that nation insisted on exercising its declared right of equality in armaments.

Criticizes War Chief.

Lloyd George, speaking at a conference of the Women's National Liberal federation at Scarborough, displayed his old fighting spirit, but this time in the cause of peace. Criticizing Lord Hailsham, he said:

"I don't like some things being said in very high places. There was that very foolish speech in the house of lords by the secretary of state for war when he talked about sanctions against Germany. Sanctions involve war. They include war. Lord Hailsham made that speech without permission. It was a monstrous thing to do."

Lloyd George then declared there are two questions facing Germany.

"It is a fatal error to mix them," he said. "One is the perfectly abominable treatment of the Jews and the other is the abominable treatment of Germany by the allies over disarmament.

Feels Personal Responsibility.

"I find no palliation or excuse for the treatment of the Jews, but when you come to the question of disarmament I feel a personal responsibility because I was one of those who drafted those disarmament clauses. You may have any opinion you like about the treaty of Versailles. It was a human document and therefore imperfect. In two years Germany was disarmed to the minimum fixed by the treaty.

"But what have the other signatories of the treaty done, the draftsmen who compelled Germany to sign that treaty? They not only have failed to carry out their pledge to disarm but have increased their armaments. It is ill to provoke a brave people by the imposition of a flagrant wrong. First, we would cause them to go into a frenzy by injustice and then make that an excuse for not redressing the wrong.

"Are you surprised that after waiting fourteen years the Germans have got angry and that probably they have lost their balance? I plead for caution and good counsel before we rush into another blunder.

"Let us talk to Germany in the league of nations on the basis of insisting on a just level of fair play all around, fair play for the 600,000 Jews in Germany and fair play also for the 60,000,000 Germans who are inside Germany."

RUSSIA REDUCES ARMY RATIONS BY ONE-THIRD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, May 16.—Russian army rations have been reduced one-third, according to a diplomat who arrived here from Moscow today. He reported that the Russian food shortage now equals the famine conditions which prevailed in 1927, with the possibility that the famine will equal that of 1921 by the end of the summer.

This man, who is considered an authority on Russian conditions, said that optimistic reports sent from Moscow concerning large spring sowings a month ago are exaggerated and that official soviet statistics about increased areas under cultivation are faked.

The seriousness of the situation, he said, is shown by the 30 per cent cut in army rations, which is the first time the Red army's food allowance has been reduced since the food shortage developed a year ago.

FRENCH WORRIED; FEAR HITLER MAY ACCEPT U. S. PLAN

Paris Sees Self in Hole Over Roosevelt Idea.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 16.—The first French reaction to President Roosevelt's peace message, which has not yet taken official form, is exceedingly sour.

It is feared here that Chancellor Hitler, in an unexpected flash of intelligence, may come out tomorrow and formally accept the President's proposition for adoption of the MacDonald disarmament plan and a new nonaggression pact. This would put the French in an exceedingly bad hole, for if they then failed to join up, the responsibility for wrecking the disarmament conference would be placed upon them.

Insist Upon Security.

The feeling here is that unqualified acceptance of the Roosevelt plan is out of the question. The French refuse to accept the theory that a general scrapping of offensive weapons would enhance their security. They only envisage giving up their tanks and heavy artillery against a concrete engagement from the other powers to intervene if Germany should attack France.

As the American message is silent on this point, France feels it cannot accept an invitation to disarm on the mere strength of a German pledge not to rearm.

It is believed that if Germany accepts the American proposition, France will not reject it officially, but will stall for time by raising the issue of secret German armaments, which, if sustained by facts, would contradict the German pledge not to rearm during the conference.

Cabinet Debates Situation.

Premier Daladier and his cabinet at a long session tonight discussed the President's message. As far as could be learned, no definite decision was taken. The final stand still depends upon Hitler's message in the reichstag tomorrow.

The cabinet also took cognizance of the complete stalemate in war debt negotiations following receipt of official word from Washington that a moratorium on the June payment will not be granted. The feeling in government circles is that a second default is inevitable, and there is no great eagerness to do anything to prevent it.

In well informed circles here it is considered that the French diplomatic position, which yesterday was stronger than at any time since the war, is now somewhat precarious. There are many who would not be surprised if in a few weeks the present hue and cry after Germany throughout the world shifted to France.

France Orders War Inventory.

PARIS, May 16.—(AP)—As a national defense measure, French factories which produce materials useful for war purposes were ordered today to report to the "passive defense bureau" upon their productive capacity. Within a month the factories must present an estimate of their powers of production as well as a list showing the number of their employés.

The order was issued by Jean Chiappe, prefect of police. It applies to all factories employing more than 100 workers, which turn out metal, wood, food, chemicals, and clothing products. Banking concerns and army supply plants are also included in this official checkup on productive power.

It was also learned today that the council of ambassadors, the executive body of the treaty of Versailles, may shortly resume activity. The council has been idle for several years but still maintains its office. Paris and London are discussing the revival of the council in anticipation of renewed application of the treaty provisions.

Norway Accepts Proposal.

OSLO, Norway, May 16.—(AP)—Norway gave quick approval today to President Roosevelt's peace proposals. It was believed here to be the first nation to place itself officially in line with the American plan. The cabinet was called into session immediately after the message was received by King Haakon. It unanimously accepted the President's suggestions and proposals.

Mussolini Summons Advisers.

ROME, May 16.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today changed the date of the next grand council meeting from May 27 to May 20 to facilitate the earliest possible discussions by his highest collaborators of the suggestions contained in President Roosevelt's message.

Meanwhile the government delayed official comment. Unofficially the President's statement was considered most opportune and caused favorable reaction.

Balkans Are Cautious.

VIENNA, May 16.—(AP)—Comment was cautious, though friendly, as incomplete versions of President Roosevelt's message appeared in newspapers tonight in Danubian countries.

The Rumanian press, however, was practically unanimous in hailing the proposal as momentous and likely to mean national security at last for Rumania.

Czechoslovakian unofficial reaction also was friendly. The Hungarian attitude, too, is friendly and receptive. In Austria the proposal made the biggest impression in Socialist quarters. Others were waiting for further details and Chancellor Hitler's reaction.

Mexico Sends Reply.

MEXICO CITY, May 16.—(AP)—President Rodriguez sent a reply tonight to President Roosevelt's peace message, in which he said:

"Mexico is resolved to be a better neighbor, and close the differences with other nations, which never affected the friendships of our people, but has led to discord. Inspired by the friendly spirit and coöperation suggested by you, Mexico expects to resume diplomatic relations with brother nations which now are suspended.

"Mexico, a nation that has never been aggressive, wants to give proof of adhesion to you and to the splendid people of the United States, with hope for peace and international prosperity."

His reference to resuming diplomatic relations is believed to have meant that Mexico is negotiating for resumption of relations with Peru and Venezuela.

League Expresses Satisfaction.

THREE BILLION WORKS BILL TO CONGRESS TODAY

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—(AP)—Redrafted for the ninth time, the huge public works-industrial regulation bill, in which President Roosevelt will ask almost unlimited powers to combat the depression through a 3 billion 300 million dollar construction program and through regulation of industry, tonight was finally ready for speedy dispatch to congress.

Declaring in its preamble the existence of "a state of national emergency" because of the unemployment situation and the "disorganization" of industry, the momentous legislation would clothe the chief executive with broad loan making authority and provide permission for voluntary agreements within industry. The power is included, however, to enforce agreements if necessary.

The legislation is to be introduced tomorrow shortly after noon with the full weight of the administration behind it for enactment at this session of congress.

Works Authorized.

As finally completed late tonight at the office of Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, who conferred with the President until after sundown, the bill would authorize the following construction works:

1. Public highways—$400,000,000, of which $250,000,000 would follow the present allocation and $150,000,000 would be for extensions.
2. Public buildings—No set limit.
3. Naval construction—$100,000,000 maximum.
4. Army, including equipment and possibly a huge airplane flotilla should the disarmament conference fail—$100,000,000 maximum.
5. Slums and housing following the pattern of the United States Housing corporation of war days—No set limit.
6. Natural resources, including soil and erosion work, forestry and similar projects—No set limit.
7. Loans to railroads for maintenance and equipment—No limit.

Almost Unlimited Power.

The bill was described as giving the President, through the administrator he would appoint, almost unlimited power in the handling of this enormous construction fund designed to put men back to work and increase the nation's purchasing power.

While spokesmen of the administration declined to discuss in detail the manner in which the $3,300,000,000 program would be financed, it was said that the money would be raised under the Second Liberty loan act's authority.

Word came out of the White House late today after the conference between Douglas and the President that the plan to raise the necessary $220,000,000 for paying interest and amortizing the issue by a manufacturers' sales tax had been virtually abandoned.

Can Compel Agreements.

In authorizing industries to come together in voluntary agreements for fixing minimum wages, regulating work hours, and stabilizing production the measure provides the President with power to compel the agreements and stipulates a fine of $500 or two years in prison or both for violations.

The final draft also eliminated all loans to industries except those to the railroads, despite the contention of the National Association of Manufacturers that they be permitted to borrow.

Taxes Still Undecided.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—In connection with the public works bill which provides a maximum of 3 billion 300 million dollars, President Roosevelt was still in a quandary tonight about means to provide the interest and sinking fund.

Congress will not stand for a sales tax to provide the 220 million dollars required during the first year for interest and amortization charges, the President was informed, and none of the congressional leaders seemed to have any happy alternative ideas.

As to whether bonds will be issued by the treasury to provide funds for the public works construction or short term notes, no decision has been made, the President said, and he will recommend that this matter be left by congress to the discretion of the treasury department.

May Aid Chicago Teachers.

The public works bill may include a provision under which a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan for paying Chicago school teachers will be possible. No definite information was available today, but it is understood that senators who drafted the measure have assured congressmen from Illinois that such a provision will be made.

4,000 REGISTER, JAM OFFICES OF ELECTION BOARD

More than 4,000 Chicagoans crowded into the offices of the election commissioners in the city hall yesterday to register and become eligible to vote in the judicial and prohibition repeal elections, which are to be held on June 5. Those who have come of age, or have moved their residences since the last general registration, were required to have their names placed on the rolls.

Last night was the deadline. So great was the crush that 800 were waiting at 9 p. m., the announced time for the closing of the office. The outer doors of the office were closed at that time, but those inside were all registered.

Chief Clerk John Rusch said that 16,358 persons in all had submitted their affidavits since the registration was started on April 7. The total registered vote in Chicago and the country towns under the election commissioners, for the last voting, was 1,566,190. The changes made in the new registration are expected to increase this total slightly.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney and Mrs. Courtney were among those who registered yesterday. They have moved since the last election.

EDITORS DISCUSS PEACE PLEA

American editorial comment on President Roosevelt's disarmament message to the world as gathered by The Associated Press, follows:

BALTIMORE SUN [Ind. Dem.]—Mr. Roosevelt offers American coöperation in the effort to disarm and restore economic peace to a fuller degree than has been suggested since Woodrow Wilson proposed the league of nations.

BIRMINGHAM AGE-HERALD [Dem.]—In this case the United States is laboring to halt the sweep toward a ghastly collision, while in Wilson's day we waited until the agony had run much of its course.

BOISE IDAHO STATESMAN [Rep.]—One fears the bold move of President Roosevelt will come to naught.

BOSTON HERALD [Rep.]—Here is a document which may be considered ultimately the magna charta of humanity. It is plainly intended for the common people of the world . . . to make them parties, unseen but all-powerful, at the London and Geneva meetings.

BOSTON GLOBE [Ind.]—It becomes apparent that a new, lucid, unambiguous foreign policy for the United States is in the making.

COLUMBUS (O.) DISPATCH [Ind.]—Let us be ready to lend any possible diplomatic aid, at any time, in the peaceful settlement of specific differences which might lead to war; but we would only be breeding trouble for the future by using present economic emergencies to force ourselves into the position of a sort of world dictator of international relations.

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER [Ind.-Dem.]—Even the resourceful Wilson, dreaming of the conquest of peace, never conceived a plan more spirited or courageous than this.

DETROIT FREE PRESS [Ind.]—The communication was . . . to the civilized world in general, but more particularly . . . addressed by implication to Herr Hitler.

HOUSTON (TEX.) POST [Dem.]—A significant phase of the Roosevelt call to peace was the inclusion of soviet Russia among the nations addressed. Roosevelt common sense was in action then.

KANSAS CITY STAR [Ind.]—A world nonaggression pact will not enforce itself. If it is to be of practical value there must be agreements for consultation among nations when violation is threatened. . . The United States would have to take part in such consultation.

LINCOLN [NEB.] JOURNAL [Independent-Republican.]—The possibility of the United States declaring another Monroe Doctrine, this being a Roosevelt doctrine, brings the American people up with a start. The vigor he displays is inspiring.

LEXINGTON [KY.] HERALD [Dem.]—It is important that Mr. Roosevelt speaks at a time when Germany and Japan are saber rattling.

LOUISVILLE [KY.] COURIER-JOURNAL [Ind.]—President Roosevelt dramatically has blazed another new trail. It is a noble objective; nobler, the Courier-Journal fears, than probable of realization.

MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL [Dem.]—No single historical event since the armistice has so emboldened the hopes of a discouraged world as the Roosevelt appeal.

MINNEAPOLIS TRIBUNE [Ind.]—The immediate demands for accomplishment which the President makes are not excessive. . . . It should not be hard for Europe to show a favorable reaction to so generous a proposal.

NASHVILLE BANNER [Ind. Dem.]—The appeal to the rulers of every land is the natural sequence and climax of his steadfast and enlightened purpose to serve and save civilization.

THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE [Rep.]—Until the President spoke, it was open to the chancellor [Hitler] simply to reassert the established German policy of disarmament . . . a direct question has been presented to him; whatever he says will be read as his direct answer.

THE NEW YORK TIMES [Ind. Dem.]—The quiet assurance and audacity of it [the message] would startle an older American generation. But it is plain that Mr. Roosevelt perceived a great opportunity.

NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PICAYUNE [Dem.]—His specific proposals are strongly fortified by reason, logic, and fact. . . . But the fury and unreason prevailing in some parts of the world prevent any confident prediction of success.

OAKLAND, CAL., TRIBUNE [Rep.]—In its way this document, on the peace side of the ledger, may be as far reaching and significant as any war declaration on the other.

OHIO STATE JOURNAL [Rep.]—If President Roosevelt's aim is to help the European nations to get together in an effort to settle their differences in their own way, that is a laudable object. If his purpose is to extend the Monroe Doctrine over all continents, that is all wrong.

OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES [Ind. Dem.]—This forthright utterance carries the hope of mankind.

PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER [Ind. Rep.]—President Roosevelt's message was a dramatic application of the "new deal" to international affairs. . . . Unprecedented in diplomatic history.

PHILADELPHIA RECORD [Ind.]—His message, coming on the eve of the Nazi dictator's arms address to the reichstag, coming at a time when Europe is closer to war than it has been since 1914, may tip the scales in favor of peace.

SALT LAKE TRIBUNE [Ind. Rep.]—Mr. Roosevelt does not make clear what the future policy of the United States will be if his overtures are rejected by other nations.

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE [Rep.]—President Roosevelt has taken a great and dramatic step to return America to the world and the world to sanity.

SEATTLE TIMES (Ind. Rep.)—Mr. Roosevelt's move is a bold one . . . yet his admonition is so timely, his advice so sound, as almost to insure sympathetic reaction in every land.

SIOUX FALLS ARGUS-LEADER (Ind.)—President Roosevelt's message to the world was logical, concise and timely. It was a bold stroke in behalf of universal peace.

ST. PAUL PIONEER PRESS (Ind.)—President Roosevelt's message to the world governments is fully deserving of the enthusiasm which it elicited among members of congress. . . . It seems plain their can be no economic peace unless the United States is willing to coöperate for the preservation of political peace.

TOPEKA [KAS.] CAPITAL (Rep.)—President Roosevelt's ringing appeal to the world's governments in behalf of disarmament comes at an opportune time and it is to be assumed was not made without feeling out the principal powers.

WASHINGTON [D. C.] POST (Ind.)—Obviously the message is intended to dissuade the dictator of Germany from giving utterance Wednesday to such language as would destroy hope of conciliation and coöperation at the disarmament and economic conferences."

PAINT MITCHELL IN CONTRASTS AT BANKER'S TRIAL

"Robber" to Prosecutor, "Noble" to His Lawyer.

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City bank, was portrayed in two sharply conflicting lights today as lawyers for the government and for the defense delivered their opening addresses to the jury at Mr. Mitchell's trial on the charge of evading payment of $850,000 income taxes for 1929 and 1930.

George Z. Medalie, United States attorney, pictured the banker as having deliberately defrauded the government. He said Mitchell had shifted the burden of his own just taxes upon the shoulders of other taxpayers by stock sales to his wife and to friends which were "shams, fakes, pretenses, and wash sales" and by failing to report a large payment to him from the management fund of the National City company.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for the defense, not only defended Mr. Mitchell's stock sales as legally and morally proper and of a type upheld by a decision of the United States Supreme court, but also portrayed the banker in the rôle of a once rich man, who had ruined himself for the noblest of motives, and is now a poor man, "threadbare" and suffering like everybody else from the effects of the depression.

"Personal Fortune Lost."

According to his lawyer, Mr. Mitchell has lost his personal fortune of from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000, and has pledged all his property, even to mortgaging his three homes in New York city, Tuxedo and Southampton, as collateral for a $12,000,000 loan from J. P. Morgan & Co., now reduced to about $6,000,000, which was obtained right after the stock market crash in 1929 in an effort to maintain the prestige of the National City bank.

Mr. Steuer declared that the banker risked his entire personal fortune in 1929 in an effort not only to protect his own banking institution, but also the country as a whole from the effects of a sharp decline in values of the National City bank stock.

The lawyer contended that when Mr. Mitchell sold 18,300 shares of National City bank stock to his wife, it was not with the purpose of defrauding the government, but merely to avoid the disastrous effect which would have been inevitable if the stock had been thrown into the open market under the existing circumstances.

Alleges Persecution.

In addition to presenting Mr. Mitchell as a man of noble motives who had been misunderstood, Mr. Steuer struck the note of persecution. Demanding why the government had waited until 1933 to prosecute a man which it had investigated in 1931, with apparent satisfaction then that everything was all right, Mr. Steuer said:

"Somebody must be made a victim when mob psychology is in control. Who is to be made the victim—some underling? We need some big fish, so it's Mitchell.

"Despite the clamor, which is only born of misunderstanding, the American people do not want a victim really. To you fourteen men, into whose custody this man has delivered himself, he has but one request: 'Deal with me as you would deal with any one else. No worse, no better. I ask no favors, but I expect justice.'"

Still Rich, Is Claim.

Mr. Medalie declared in his address to the jury that Mr. Mitchell was still worth some seven or eight million dollars at the end of 1930, and that his alleged evasion of income tax payments for 1929 and 1930 was to be viewed in the light of that fact.

Mr. Medalie repeatedly denounced the banker in such terms as having "robbed the public treasury," and as having evaded his just duty of shouldering part of the country's tax burden. He said he would have to try to prove his case out of the mouths of reluctant and hostile witnesses, friends, and business associates of Mr. Mitchell and from records and documents.

Both sides agreed that Mr. Mitchell established a tax loss of $2,800,000 in 1929 by selling 18,300 shares of National City bank stock to his wife, which he repurchased in 1932. The government contended this sale was a fraud upon the government; the defense that it was entirely legal and proper.

Points That Are Conceded.

Both sides agreed that Mr. Mitchell established a tax loss of $758,000 in 1930 by selling 8,500 shares of Anaconda Copper stock to W. D. Thornton, president of the Greene Cananea Copper company, an Anaconda subsidiary, which he repurchased in 1921. The government and defense each interpreted this in the same way as the 1929 sale.

Both sides agreed that Mr. Mitchell failed to report on his 1929 income tax return an item of $666,666 which he received from the management fund of the National City company. The government contended this was properly to be considered as income and taxable; the defense said that it was not income but was an "advance," which was to be repaid, and therefore not taxable under the law.

Both sides agreed that as a result of these transactions Mr. Mitchell paid no income taxes in 1929 and 1930. The government said that he was well able to pay a tax; the defense that he was really a ruined man then, with all his personal fortune at stake.

Testimony will begin tomorrow.

TEACHERS WILL GET THEIR PAY TOMORROW FOR THREE MONTHS

The 14,000 teachers and 4,000 other school employés will receive their pay checks for last October, November, and December tomorrow morning unless an unforeseen delay arises. The pay roll, which is the result of a series of conferences between Mayor Kelly and the bankers, will total $12,467,629.

A crew of accountants in the office of Harry Brackett, school auditor, worked late last night to complete the pay roll, which will be entered on the books in the city controller's office. The proxies for Mayor Kelly, Orville J. Taylor, president of the school board, City Controller Szymczak, and Charles Gilbert, school board secretary, completed the signing of more than 10,000 tax anticipation warrants which are to be purchased by the banks to provide the pay roll money.

In accordance with an announcement of Supt. William J. Bogan, the district superintendents will go to the school board offices tomorrow morning for the teachers' checks. At noon school principals will go to their district superintendents, get the checks, and take them back to the teachers.

LEAGUE COUNCIL BODY ASKS WAR PROBE IN CHACO

GENEVA, May 16.—(AP)—The dispatch of a league of nations commission to the Gran Chaco to investigate the Paraguay-Bolivia dispute is favored by the committee of the council which reports to the council tomorrow.

The idea of the committee is to give to the proposed commission wide powers, even including the power of arbitration.

The question of an embargo on exports to the two countries has been found to be a delicate one. While countries which do not produce arms accept the embargo idea unconditionally, those which manufacture arms generally wish to make sure that all other arms manufacturing countries would coöperate in the embargo.

U. S. INDICTS 17 IN $1,000,000 STOCK SWINDLE

Defendants Accused of Bucket Shop Fraud.

Seventeen officials of five alleged bucket shops were indicted yesterday in the United States District court on charges of using the mails to defraud clients of between $500,000 and $1,000,000. Judge James H. Wilkerson, before whom the indictments were returned, fixed bonds of $10,000 each and issued bench warrants for the arrest of the defendants.

Victims are listed from almost every state in the Union, the government charged. Individual losses ranged upwards to $62,000. The companies named in the indictments, all now closed, are Paul A. Leschuck & Co., 231 South La Salle street; Keane & Co., 120 South La Salle street; Dunne, Bauer & Co., 231 South La Salle street; Stansbury & Co., and Sherman McEwen & Co.

Sponsor a "Rescue" Plan.

The first three companies, according to the indictment, were dominated by Len Rollnick and Ben Rubin, who sponsored a plan to take over Chicago stock companies that had fallen into financial difficulties. The indictment said that Rollnick and Rubin offered to furnish the cash necessary to make the stock company a going concern and to retain the old head of the business. Then, the government said, Rollnick and Rubin placed their own manager in charge and installed a battery of telephones to reach customers.

"Rollnick and Rubin mailed to these customers a prospectus that would attract and interest the victim," said Assistant United States District Attorney Warren Canady. "This would be followed by long distance telephone calls by their specialty men, who would induce the victim to forward whatever securities he owned to the particular house under the pretense that they would be held as collateral for the purchase of some well known listed stock in which supposed pools were being formed.

"After the victim had been subjected to high pressure telephone salesmanship and had parted with all of his securities, and in a great many instances all of his available cash, he would be advised that his account had been switched to some inferior stock or that he had been sold out. The victim was never allowed to have a definite interview with the operators of the company, nor did the customers ever receive anything of value for money or securities they would forward."

Defendants Are Listed.

Those indicted as operators of Paul A. Leschuck & Co. are Rollnick, Rubin, Paul A. Leschuck, Peter J. Greene, Harry Rudyn, Barney Lavin, Richard Guest, and Ernest Simons. John Keane, Thomas H. Gibbons, Morton Gold, Rollnick, Rubin, Simons, Greene, and Guest were indicted as operators of Keane & Co. The indictments against Dunne, Bauer & Co. named G. William Herbst, Albert L. Sherman, Rollnick, and Rubin.

The government said that Stansbury & Co. and McEwen & Co. conducted their operations along the same lines as the other companies. Those indicted as operators of these companies are Samuel Cooperman, William Turk, J. S. Stinson, and William V. Keating.

Mrs. Sabina Young celebrated her 92d birthday yesterday at her home, 613 West 18th street, the site of the cottage where she began housekeeping 67 years ago.

Mrs. Young came to this country from Coblenz, Germany, settled in Chicago, married, and went to live in a home on the prairie which later became 18th street. One of the hardships of those early days, she said, was carrying water two blocks.

"I saw the Fair of 1893 and I'm going to see this one," she said. "I have told my children that they can start planning to take me."

Mrs. Young is able to read and sew. She sits at her favorite window taking fine stitches, or reading the newspapers for the latest developments in politics, particularly from a Republican point of view.

Two daughters, Lillie and Mamie, and a son, Charles, live with her. Another daughter, Mrs. E. Wickham, lives on the second floor of the two story house. A son, Louis, lives at 1118 South Cuyler avenue, Oak Park.

BABY IS KILLED WHILE PLAYING ON RAIL TRACK

Free temporarily from parental surveillance, Edith Evans, 18 months old, toddled into the back yard of her home at 322 Fillmore street, Gary, last evening, and began a childish investigation of her surroundings.

A small hole in the rear fence attracted her attention, and she made for it. In a few moments she had wriggled through. Elated with this greater freedom, she began putting distance between herself and her home as fast as she could.

About 200 feet away Edith came upon the tracks of the South Shore electric line. There, between the rails, she found sand and pebbles and sat down to play.

Edith didn't hear the warning cries of Hilary Wisocks, 14 years old, and Kenneth Stephan, 15, as they signaled frantically to the motorman of a fast train which had come up suddenly around a curve and was now bearing down upon her. Ray Sanford, the motorman, heard the boys' cries, but he didn't see Edith until too late, and when he finally stopped his heavy train, she lay dead where she had been playing in her newly found playground between the rails.

WOMAN KILLED IN LEAP.

Miss Irene Everett, 33 years old, was probably fatally injured yesterday when she jumped or fell from the third floor window of her apartment at 655 South State street. She was paroled recently from the Elgin state hospital.

COURTNEY WARNS RACKETEERS: GET OUT OR GO TO JAIL

New Deal Is Promised for Union Labor.

Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney last night proclaimed a policy which the labor leaders backing them believe may bring a regeneration of the labor union movement throughout the United States and save it from destruction by racketeers.

The state's attorney summed up the policy in one sentence: "The racketeers, whether in big business, within labor ranks, or in the gangs that prey upon the unions, are out. If they refuse to get out, they go to jail."

Labor's new deal, which is designed to deprive the racketeers of their extortionate income from both toiler and employer, was outlined following a conference of the mayor and state's attorney with leaders of the Chicago Federation of Labor and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters in the mayor's office.

Labor Chiefs at Conference.

Present were Daniel J. Tobin of Indianapolis, president; Thomas L. Hughes, general secretary, and J. Gillespie, general organizer of the Teamsters' Brotherhood; John Fitzpatrick, president, and Edward N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Victor Olander, secretary of the Illinois State Federation of Labor; and Leslie G. Goudie, president of the teamsters' joint council. The seven labor leaders agreed to designate Mayor Kelly as spokesman on the results of the conference.

"These labor leaders were summoned here to find out what they would do to rid their movement of recketeers," said the mayor. "They agreed that if something were not done the movement would be destroyed within a year. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will be here this week-end and we hope to start a general housecleaning."

An inquiry was made as to when the housecleaning would begin and where. State's Attorney Courtney supplied the answer.

"Extortion Days Are Over."

"It's begun already and in one of the worst places, the outlaw teamsters' unions," Mr. Courtney said. "The old deal is off and the racketeers are through. The old setup was a sweet one for the racketeers. They first got control of the teamsters' unions, and through them made a deal to give certain big employers labor at reduced wages.

"There was graft from there, but it wasn't enough. On top of that they squeezed every union man for a fee of 50 cents a day for the privilege of working. The extortion days are over."

Mr. Courtney was asked what labor leaders were "out," and he answered specifically. Among those out, he said, are John Sheridan Sr., head of the Chicago Teamsters' union; John Sheridan Jr. and Milton Booth Jr., heads of the coal teamsters and hikers; Danny Cain, brother-in-law of the slain George [Red] Barker, also with the coal teamsters, and Mike Galvin, head of the Chicago General Teamsters' union.

Courtney Explains Plan.

Q.—What about the big coal dealers who were supposed to have gotten favored wage contracts from the racketeers? A.—They'd better get religion or they're going to the Criminal court.

Q.—How are you going to put the racketeers out of the teamsters' unions? A.—As I announced before, a meeting will be called where every man with a genuine union card may cast his vote on a new set of officers. The International Brotherhood has agreed to take them in without initiation fees and has promised to abolish the 50 cent extortion. That promise and the knowledge that their new leaders will not sell them out to big employers should be sufficient consideration for the rank and file.

Mr. Courtney was reminded that Galvin had called at the state's attorney's office yesterday on behalf of himself and his outlaw ally, Sheridan, suing for peace and pledging to "go along." The state's attorney was asked if he would receive Mr. Galvin's offer.

"I will be glad to see him," Mr. Courtney said, "if only for the pleasure of telling him that he and his kind are through."

Mr. Courtney was informed that Sheridan and Galvin had their business agents out instructing the men to boycott any meeting the state's attorney called. In view of this situation he was asked how soon he would call the meeting.

"Give me the name of any business agent who has been fostering a boycott," he demanded. "If any such are caught, they'll have to deal with me. We will not be bluffed in this thing. The meeting is going through to give these working men a chance, for once, to rid themselves of the leaders who exploit them."

The state's attorney was reminded that some Chicago locals of the international brotherhood, notably those in the laundry and dye house business, had also been accused of racketeering.

"The mayor and I believe that the national leadership of the brotherhood is sincere," Mr. Courtney said. "They have pledged their word to clean up the sore spots in their own organizations. We are relying on that pledge."

Laundry Leaders Ask Peace.

Prior to the conference in the mayor's office directors of the Chicago Laundry Owners' association, representing the employers' side in the alleged laundry racket, called at the Criminal court building with an olive branch. They said they wanted to reform.

"As it operates today your organization will not be tolerated," Mr. Courtney told the delegation. "You've been collecting $1 a week from every member for each truck he has in service and 60 cents for each man in his employ. That practice is out. Moreover, you've got to reform your bookkeeping methods so that every dime of income can be traced and permit inspection of the books on demand, so that if the racketeers levy tribute we'll know how much, if anything, you pay them."

William [Three-Fingered Jack] White, public enemy No. 2, labor racketeer and gangster, was sentenced yesterday to serve one year in the county jail and fined $300 on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. The hoodlum, his hands trembling violently, stood before the bar as Judge James F. Fardy imposed sentence after overruling a special plea in bar.

The conviction was the fourth obtained in recent weeks by Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty against major hoodlums on the gun charges. Other convicted, all of whom are at liberty in bond pending appeals, are Murray Humphries, public enemy No. 1, alleged leader of the gang once headed by Al Capone; Charles Fischetti, cousin and former bodyguard of Capone, and Gus Winkler, who succeeded the slain Ted Newberry as head of the north side gang.

Old Law Invoked Again.

For the second time in two days the state invoked an almost forgotten rule of common law to get an immediate sentence for a defendant. The law, used Monday in the conviction of John Bain, former banker, holds that a defendant making a plea in bar elects trial on points of law and, if overruled, allows the judge to pass sentence without further hearing on the facts.

The plea in bar of Defense Attorney Everett Jennings in behalf of White pointed out that the case had been stricken from the docket, with leave to reinstate, almost two years ago. Jennings argued that the state had no right to reinstate the case after so long a time.

Plea in Bar Overruled.

The judge overruled the plea and imposed sentence. Then he allowed White 30 days in which to perfect an appeal. The gangster's bond of $10,000, posted in cash by White during the bank moratorium, was allowed to stand.

White is known as a killer and robber. In 1919 he was sent to Joliet penitentiary for robbery and served four years before he was paroled.

White also spent approximately three years in the county jail before and during his two trials for the murder of Policeman Edward Pflaume of Forest Park on Dec. 13, 1925. He was convicted in these trials, but both convictions were reversed by the state Supreme court.

The gun charge on which White was convicted grew out of his arrest as he lay in a drunken stupor in an automobile in Riverside on July 16, 1930. Two revolvers were found in the automobile.

Another Jailed on Gun Charge.

Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden yesterday sent Ernest Fryer, 38 years old, 7926 Anthony avenue, member of a gang charged with several robberies and burglaries, to the Bridewell for one year for carrying concealed weapons.

ACCARDO FINED $25; HE PROTESTS 'PUSHING AROUND'

Tony Accardo, 28 years old, said to be a member of Murray Humphries' gang, was fined $25 and costs yesterday by Judge Joseph H. McGarry on a charge of disorderly conduct. Accardo was arrested Sunday on suspicion at Jackson boulevard and Canal street. He was given 30 days in which to file an appeal and freed in bond of $100.

Questioned by City Prosecutor Samuel Epstein, Accardo admitted that he had not worked for six months. Police testified that he was carrying $500 when arrested.

"So the police have been pushing you around," Judge McGarry said. "That's too bad. Why, when you were arrested, the home address you gave turned out to be a vacant lot."

"If I gave the police my right address," Accardo said, "they would be all over my place all the time."

Judge McGarry imposed the fine and overruled a motion for a new trial. Sam Messina, 29 years old, a west side hoodlum, who was also arrested on suspicion, watched the proceedings and then announced that he would take a jury trial. His case was assigned to the jury court for hearing on May 23.

SHOOT UP LYNCH HOME

Three charges of buckshot were fired into the home of James (Lefty) Lynch, a leader of a rebel faction of the outlaw coal teamsters and hikers' union, at 2322 North Harlem avenue, Elmwood Park, early this morning. Lynch, his wife, and five young daughters were aroused. The only damage done was to the front windows of their home.

"That's an attempt of the Johnny Sheridan and 'Three Fingered Jack' White gang to scare me out of court, but they can't do it," asserted Lynch. "Only a week ago I got a letter telling me to get my family out of the house because it was to be bombed."

Lynch, who says he was elected business agent and secretary-treasurer of the teamsters' union two years ago, expects to appear before Judge William J. Lindsay today in an injunction fight over control of the union. George Roy Baker is the principal leader of the insurgent faction. He may be in court today, too. Last week a gunman fired bullets into Baker's home at 1946½ North Spaulding avenue.

Rebukes Conferees Asking Its Ratification.

were representatives of Tidewater association. Gov. Futrell of Arkansas and Gov. Allen of Louisiana wired vigorous protest but conference refused to include this in telegram to you.

"Protests were received from leading organizations in eight other states vigorously opposing ratification of treaty without adequate reservation protecting Lake Michigan and lakes to gulf waterway. The meeting also refused to even hear the protests and objections of representatives of Mississippi Valley association which represents more than twenty states who are adversely affected by the proposed treaty.

"Today the Illinois legislature adopted a joint resolution opposing treaty in its present form.

"I am hoping you will withhold your approval of the treaty until representatives of more than fifty per cent of the country adversely affected by Article 8 have an opportunity to present their case to you."

Main Arguments Advanced.

In the prolonged debate that marked the conference Gov. Horner had expanded the arguments that he placed before the President. These points in brief were that Article 8 of the proposed treaty would dry up the Illinois waterway on which $107,500,000 has been spent, that it would give Canada joint control with congress over Lake Michigan, and that it is based on a diversion of 1,500 cubic feet of water from the lake. This latter point is embodied in the terms of the United States Supreme court decision in the Chicago sanitary district case, limiting the diversion for sanitary purposes to 1,500 cubic feet after Dec. 31, 1938.

To ratify the treaty in its present form, Gov. Horner argued, would take from congress its rights to prescribe diversion for navigation purposes—a phase not covered in the Supreme court decision—and would nullify the provision in the act of 1930 in which the government took over the Illinois waterway and directed the secretary of war to study the amount of water needed for a commercially useful waterway and to report to congress before July 31, 1938.

The Conferees Are Named.

Besides Govs. Horner and Comstock those who sat in the conference were: Ex-Gov. John Hammill of Iowa, representing Gov. Clyde L. Herring; ex-Gov. Henry Allen of Kansas, representing Gov. Alf M. Landon; John H. Skinner of Indiana, proxy for Gov. Paul V. McNutt; Elbert H. Baker of Ohio, proxy for Gov. George White; Harry E. Boyle of Minnesota, proxy for Gov. Floyd B. Olson; William George Bruce of Wisconsin, proxy for Gov. A. G. Schmedeman; E. D. Lum, proxy for Gov. William Langer of North Dakota, and W. D. Larkin, proxy for Gov. Tom Berry of South Dakota.

In the near background were Charles P. Craig, director of the Tidewater association; R. F. Malia of Milwaukee, of the Great Lakes Harbors association; Leo Harmon of Lansing, Mich., of the Michigan waterway commission, and George Hardy of Toledo, of the Ohio waterway commission.

Horner Asks the Purpose.

"I would like to inquire the object of the conference," said Gov. Horner.

"Active opposition has developed to the St. Lawrence treaty," answered Gov. Comstock, who served as chairman. "The president is for it. This meeting was called to let the President know this organization is back of the treaty."

Delegate Boyle of Minnesota began to press for an executive session to enable talk behind closed doors. With only two governors out of the 23 invited governors present, the conference took on a passing air of comicality. As the demand for untrammeled talk behind locked doors kept up, a sotto voce murmur was heard in a corner—"Sounds like Amos and Andy and the exec of the mystic knights of the seaway."

Gov. Horner, who plunged right in, declared if it were to be a real discussion of the treaty, there were several experts from the Mississippi Valley association he would like invited into the room. They were Cleveland Newton, Maj. W. Rufus Putnam, and Lachlan Macleay.

The idea got nowhere and after a motion for a closed session was put and carried, all outsiders were shooed out of the room.

After the closed meeting broke up Gov. Horner repeated in further detail the arguments he is advancing against adoption of the treaty.

"While Illinois is not opposed to the St. Lawrence seaway under just conditions," he said, "it is definitely and unequivocally opposed to the St. Lawrence treaty in its present form.

"The two senators from Illinois have formally declared against it in its present form and I am advised that 38 other senators are opposed to approval of the treaty as now drawn.

"I oppose the treaty on the basis of Article 8, by which Lake Michigan becomes an international lake, partly under control of Canada, and which undertakes to limit the flow of water down the Illinois waterway to the Mississippi to an amount less than may be sufficient for navigation.

Assails Treaty Provisions.

"Little need be said on the subject of surrender of the integrity and the control of Lake Michigan by the United States, for, from the language of the treaty, diversion from the lake, even under authority of the United States government or the Supreme court, could be prohibited by the international arbitration committee proposed in the treaty.

"Lake Michigan is not an international body of water. It does not touch Canada at any point. It is no part of the continental boundary. Its nearest point is within 70 miles of Canada. To concede to any tribunal not controlled entirely by this nation the right to question any diversion which our government should see fit to make, would make the forefathers of the nation rise in their graves to protest.

"We have been careful not to concede to any other nation the control of Lake Michigan. A recession from the Monroe doctrine would offend the domestic and foreign policy of the nation no more seriously.

All the Valley Protests.

"It is not Illinois alone which protests—it is practically the entire Mississippi valley, which for years has been looking forward to the great lakes and gulf waterway, which has just been completed.

"Take Article 8 out of the treaty and you obviate an objection made to it by at least half of the country. All the great statesmen of the past have fought for the integrity of our inland waters.

"In 1909 when Elihu Root negotiated the treaty with Canada and there was an effort then on the part of Canadian diplomats to include Lake Michigan within its lines, he refused to allow Lake Michigan to go in.

"In discussing the seaway treaty I offer no criticism of our friendly neighbor, Canada. I rather give them credit for having better bargainers and treaty makers than we seem to have had in the negotiation of the present treaty. We have a waterway now and unless we get sufficient water into it for navigation purposes it will be merely in name a lakes to gulf waterway.

"The St. Lawrence treaty includes the decree of the Supreme court of April, 1930, which reduces the present diversion from the lake down the waterway to 1,500 cubic second feet by 1938. That decree was passed on an investigation the court made of the amount necessary for sanitation purposes and for navigation of the Chicago river only.

"It did not consider the amount necessary for full navigation of the Illinois waterway.

"The consensus of competent engineers is that for successful operation the Illinois waterway will require a minimum average diversion from Lake Michigan of 5,000 cubic feet a second. Article 8 limits the permissible quantity of diversion after 1938 to 1,500 cubic feet a second. Navigation requires more than a minimum quantity of fluid. There must be a reasonable quantity of water for flotation and lockage.

"So long as the permissible diversion is not fixed by an international treaty it is within the power of the Supreme court itself to change it and it is also within the power of congress to change it. But if the treaty in its present form is ratified it becomes the paramount law of the land and thereafter neither the Supreme court nor congress will have any power over the matter of diversion except with the consent of Canada.

"Under the treaty of 1909, now in force, no restriction is placed on the amount of diversion from Lake Michigan. Article 2 of the treaty says it shall not apply to cases already existing. This was intended to cover the diversion at Chicago. It recognized that the settlement of the question of the use of waters of Lake Michigan is purely a domestic question, and leaves undisturbed the rights of the United States.

Diversion Clause Thrown Out.

"At that time the Canadians were willing to stipulate that water might be diverted from Lake Michigan to the extent of 10,000 feet. Mr. Root, then secretary of state, refused to permit in the treaty any provision limiting the diversion at Chicago because he said Lake Michigan was a purely American lake.

"At that time the diversion at Chicago was approximately 10,000 feet. Although all reference to this was excluded from the treaty by Mr. Root it was taken into account in fixing the allocation of water diverted at Niagara Falls, and Canada was given the right to divert 36,500 cubic second feet there whereas the United States was allowed only 20,000 cubic second feet.

"In the pending treaty, Canada is given decidedly the advantage in the matter of water diversion. Subsequent to 1938 this treaty would give Canada about 40,000 cubic feet per second and the United States about 22,425 feet.

U. S. Would Pay Most of Bill.

"Canada also would get by far the greater portion of the power which ultimately will be developed on the St. Lawrence. The United States would pay the greater part of the cost. It therefore is absurd to contend that Canada would refuse to accept the treaty without the limitation in Article 8.

"It would be as though one argued that one to whom a Christmas tree had been promised would refuse to accept it if a single stick of candy were to be removed.

"The question resolves itself into this: Shall we have adequate water for navigation in a lakes-to-gulf waterway for all time or shall all the water be sent down the St. Lawrence river for the use of Canadian power plants?"

LEGISLATURE CALLS ON CONGRESS TO REJECT ST. LAWRENCE TREATY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—At the request of Gov. Horner, the Illinois legislature today memorialized congress to refuse to ratify the St. Lawrence waterway treaty with Canada. Both houses met the plea promptly, acting while the governor was doing his part to oppose the international pact before the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association in Chicago.

The general assembly agreed with Mr. Horner that the treaty was "grossly unfair and extremely injurious to the United States"—to quote a resolution passed—because it "surrendered American control of Lake Michigan."

Some resistance to immediate passage of the resolution was made in the senate. Richard J. Barr of Joliet, the Republican floor leader, said the senate "didn't know what it was doing." He found support in Charles H. Thompson [Rep., Harrisburg], N. M. Mason [Rep., Oglesby], and others who are consistent downstate battlers against many of the things which Chicago wants. The Democratic majority was working as a unit, however, and the resolution was passed, 27 to 4.

In the house there was no debate nor hesitation in the giving of immediate approval, once the resolution had been sent across the aisle.

WOULD SHIELD VISITORS FROM HIGHWAY TRAPS

Rep. Lyons Argues to Aid Motorists.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—[Special]—Representative Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Mundelein] began a forceful effort today to put an end to speed traps and similar abuses of the motor vehicle act before visitors to A Century of Progress are victimized by them.

He placed in the mail boxes of all members of the house copies of an extended argument urging immediate enactment of two bills he introduced early this month. The bills still are in committee. He said that the practice of "shaking down" motorists by motorcycle policemen, justices of the peace and other officers of the law persists in Illinois.

Treats Them as Plotters.

His bills provide punishment for such conspiracies to make arrests for personal gain, for splitting up court costs and for the failure to pay over all money collected in the guise of fines and to eliminate the present minimum fine of $10 which enables the motorcycle policemen to "settle" cases on the road.

Representative Lyons cited an example of extortion practiced under the present law.

"A man is arrested for speeding," read his argument. "He is apprehended by an officer and, being a first offender, he immediately asks what can be done to him for his law violation.

"The officer tells him he will have to go to a justice of the peace for trial and that his fine will be at least $10 and his costs at $2. He brings out a copy of the motor vehicle act and reads the section which prescribes a minimum fine of $10.

Court by Roadside.

"The officer suggests that the only thing the offender can expect to derive from going to trial is a waste of a good deal of time and a chance of losing even more than $12, and that it would be much more convenient and only one-half as expensive to settle at once with the officer. This is finally done and a formal charge is not made.

"This practice is bad for more than one reason. It defeats justice in many cases where severe punishment should be meted out; it robs many persons who should be fined only a very small amount and it prompts officers to make unwarranted arrests. It encourages bribery, the most pernicious of all corruption. And it destroys respect for the law. The simplest way to avoid the renewal of this practice among the new officers is to disarm them of the weapon of extortion contained in Section 11 by striking out the minimum fine provision.

"Past experience has seen many cases where officer and justice of the peace conspire to split the fees chargeable upon convictions for violations of the motor vehicle law. The judge agrees that on all cases brought to him by the officer, the officer shall receive one-half of the costs. Sometimes even part of the money collected for fines is divided between the officer and the justice.

Provides Prison Term.

"A desire for the accomplishment of justice as a motive for making arrests is supplanted by hope of personal gain. House bill No. 834 prescribes a penalty of a year's imprisonment in county jail or a $1,000 fine, or both, such fine and imprisonment, together with immediate removal from office for the justice who does not pay over all fines collected by him to the proper authorities.

"Our type of government cannot at any time provide a place for grafting officers and justices, least of all at a time when our state will be crowded with motorists from sister states and foreign countries."

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Automobiles stolen, 85; recovered, 65; stripped, 10 [from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Monday].

Walter Galla, 19 years old, 1423 Chicago avenue, has been arrested three times in recent months as a suspected automobile thief.

He was arrested for the same thing for the fourth time this morning. This time he was caught in an automobile that had been stolen from Stanley Wojnicki, 533 North Crawford avenue.

Policemen Adam Klonowski, Arthur March, and Otto Buck sighted Galla and two other youths in the car twenty minutes after the theft and chased them to Bickerdike and Huron streets, firing several shots during the pursuit. Galla's companions fled. He surrendered.

BILL TO ABOLISH COOK COUNTY TAX BOARD IS KILLED

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Senate bill 601, the measure intended to abolish the present taxing system in Cook county and establish a joint board of assessment and revision, was stricken from the senate calendar today by its sponsor, Senator Francis J. Loughran [Dem., Chicago].

Loughran had intended to withdraw the bill early in the day but, with the rest of the senate, was forced to listen to a speech against it made by Senator Roy C. Woods [Rep., Chicago] who condemned it roundly.

Woods contended that passage of "the Kelly bill" last year constituted a bargain between all interested parties" as to the taxing machinery in Cook county and that any revision would mean violation of this agreement. He insisted also that the taxing board should be bipartisan, indicating that he felt if the present board was abolished, and its successors made appointive, politics would see to it that all members would belong to one party—probably the Democratic.

POLICE CAPTURE SON OF BURGLAR IN A BURGLARY

Alex Martin Jr., 20 years old, who says he is the son of a convicted burglar, was arrested as a burglar last night by Sergt. Fred Webster and a Hyde Park police squad.

Seized also was Edmund Flood, 19 years old, 6036 Harper avenue. Martin lives at 6232 Blackstone avenue. Police captured the pair as they were trying to break into the home of Mrs. Sarah Angus at 5555 Maryland avenue. They admitted ten burglaries, according to Sergt. Webster.

In reciting his family history young Martin told police, they said, that his father served a term in the prison at Jackson, Mich., on a charge of burglary and was released two years ago. Police are seeking the father now.

Detective Tells How He Trailed King Vidor, Girl

BANDIT GIVES GUN TO HIS VICTIM AND WAITS FOR POLICE

Piqua, O., May 16.—(AP)—A man walked into the postoffice here late today, demanded $5,000 in cash and then handed his revolver to Postmaster Clifford Fisher and surrendered when Fisher said he had no large amount of money. The man who said he was Frank Edwards, 33, of Piqua, waited while the postmaster called the sheriff.

Edwards cautioned Fisher not to summon a uniformed policemen, saying he was afraid two companions in a waiting automobile might kill the officer with machine gun bullets. Police said they were convinced, however, that Edwards planned the holdup alone.

Cow in Baggage Car Yields Milk on Marooned Train

Mountainburg, Ark., May 16.—(AP)—How passengers and crew on a Frisco train marooned for twenty hours near here by floods were furnished fresh milk was told today by railroad officials. Kenneth Williams, express messenger, had a milch cow as baggage in the express car. While workmen repaired washouts Williams turned milkman and the passengers foraged for feed for "bossy."

2,000 CITIZENS VOTE FOR OUSTER OF POORMASTER

More than 2,000 citizens of Deerfield township attended the town meeting in the Deerfield-Shields High school auditorium last night and voted affirmatively on a report demanding the immediate resignation of William J. Obee, Deerfield poormaster.

At a meeting of the town board the night previously Obee's resignation was formally asked. He refused to quit. He attended the town meeting last night with his attorney, George W. Field. Mr. Field defended Obee and announced that Obee would not resign. He also presented a petition bearing 500 signatures urging Obee to stay on the job.

During the meeting Charles Glass, a Highwood merchant, rose to Obee's defense and asked for a rising vote of confidence in Obee. Thirteen of the 2,000 persons assembled stood up.

CITY'S REVENUE FIGURES POINT TO BUDGET CUT

Council Finance Committee Starts Sessions.

The council finance committee opened its 1933 budget making sessions yesterday by considering estimates of the city's corporate fund revenue for the year. The figures given to it indicated that if it is to take a sensible view of tax collections, the city must spend this year about $5,500,000 less than it did in 1932, and almost $10,000,000 less than was appropriated to be spent last year.

The 1932 corporate fund budget, after allowances for deficiencies [loss and cost] in tax collections, totaled $50,293,834. Expenditures for the year, however, were only $46,252,041.

Two estimates of 1933 revenue were placed before the finance committee. The first, and slightly more optimistic one, was the official estimate of the city controller and the committee's technical staff. This estimate placed the total 1933 assessments on real estate, personal property and railroads within the city at $3,030,030,030.

Maximum Levy of $40,000,000.

The maximum tax rate allowed the corporate fund by law would give a tax levy of $40,000,000 on these valuations. Added to this would be $12,705,000 in miscellaneous revenue, mainly from the sale of licenses, and an estimated surplus of $185,686 from the tax levies for 1928 to 1932.

This would give total revenue of $52,890,686 before making allowances for the loss and cost of the tax levy. The finance committee estimated this at 12 per cent of the tax levy, or $4,800,000, which would leave net funds of $48,090,686 available for appropriation. However, Mayor Kelly has indicated that the budget should be so drawn up that actual expenditures will not create a deficit, even though tax collections for 1933 are no better than they have been on current taxes.

Must Cut Spending $5,361,355.

A 70 per cent collection of the 1933 levy has been suggested as a proper basis for such appropriations and expenditures. This would mean a loss and cost of $12,000,000 on the levy, reducing the funds actually available for expenditure to $40,890,686. That would mean that whatever is appropriated the city must spend $5,361,355 less out of its corporate fund this year than it did last, if it is to balance its budget.

The other estimate of revenue given to the committee was prepared by the Civic Federation and Bureaus of Public Efficiency. It estimated that 1933 assessed valuations in Chicago will not exceed $2,917,809,000, and that instead of having a surplus from previous years' tax collections the city may face a deficit. Upon this basis, assuming that 70 per cent of the 1933 taxes will be collected, the organization warned the aldermen that they must keep expenditures for 1933 below $39,665,500 if they wish to avoid a deficit.

The committee adopted the motion of Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] that it use the controller's estimates as a basis for its budget.

	Held by City Funds.	Held by Public.
1928	$ 4,582,000	None
1929	2,270,000	$3,155,000
1930	9,528,000	26,000
1931	14,632,000	6,632,600
1932	9,252,000	9,386,000

"That shows that the banks haven't heavy investments in city tax warrants," commented Ald. Nelson. "Our present mayor has done more to get action from them than any mayor we've had for some time."

SUES NOBLEMAN

MRS. SARI MAR ELIA.

In a divorce bill filed yesterday in the Circuit court Mrs. Sari Mar Elia, 18 years old, 1531 North Park avenue, charged that Pera Mar Elia married her and deserted her within an hour in order to humiliate her parents, who had refused to sanction the marriage. Mar Elia, she states in her bill, is a member of the Persian nobility and has returned to his native land.

They were married in Philadelphia in 1929, according to her bill, which was filed by Attorney Norman Becker. Under Persian custom, the bill states, it is necessary for the bride's parents to sanction a marriage, and this her parents refused to do.

The bill charges that Mar Elia "brooded and schemed" to retaliate and induced her to marry him. He deserted her after telling her that she could not expect to be his wife because he was of noble birth and she was a commoner. She asks permission to resume her maiden name, Sari Sayad.

WOMAN WOUNDED BY AUNT'S MATE DIES; HE'S SUICIDE

Miss Margaret Bernard, 26 year old member of the Gleaners' club of the Belden Avenue Baptist church and Bible class teacher, died yesterday, a victim of the insane passion of her uncle by marriage, John W. Berndt, 42 years old, 4115 North Ridgeway avenue. Berndt visited her room in the Anita apartments, 2827 Burling street, yesterday morning as she was about to leave for work and shot her in the back with a sawed-off shotgun. Then, reloading the weapon, he knelt and fired it into his own breast, killing himself instantly.

Miss Bernard wrote a letter to her aunt on Monday complaining that her Uncle John was pestering her with his attentions. Mrs. Berndt said this was the first she knew of her husband's attitude toward her niece. Miss Bernard begged the aunt to have Berndt stop bothering her and expressed the belief he was losing his mind. Mrs. Berndt remonstrated with him. Yesterday morning he said nothing, but left home about 7:30 o'clock in his automobile and forced his way into Miss Bernard's room.

Miss Bernard was employed by the Realty and Mortgage company, 3115 Logan boulevard. Berndt was an unemployed laundry driver and recently he and his wife borrowed $250 from their niece.

KILLED RESISTING ARREST.

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—(AP)—George Harriman, 58, was fatally wounded this afternoon by police in a hotel room, where he had barricaded himself after wounding James E. Davis, 57, in a quarrel. Harriman died in a hospital.

63 MORE SUITS FILED ASKING TAX RECEIVERS

M'Donough Lauds Results of Skarda Law.

As sixty-three more suits were filed against tax delinquent properties yesterday by the county treasurer, representatives of several properties already made defendants in county receivership actions appeared in court to resist the appointments of receivers to collect income and apply it to 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes due.

Sol H. Goldberg, lessee of the Loop-End building, 177 North State street, appeared before Circuit Judge Fisher and announced that he had just paid $20,000 of the $36,466 due in 1930 taxes upon the building. He said the remainder of the taxes due would be placed in escrow pending his appeal to the Supreme court against County Judge Jarecki's overruling his objections to the assessment.

Hailed as Proof That Plan Works.

Goldberg's $20,000 payment on his taxes was hailed by County Treasurer McDonough as proof of the efficacy of the Skarda act in forcing taxpayers to pay up. Yesterday's batch of suits brought the total of suits filed by the county treasurer to 175. The total delinquent taxes due on these properties is approximately $7,500,000.

Another receivership suit was heard by Circuit Judge Joseph Burke. Representatives of the 219 Lake Shore Building corporation told the judge that $49,000 in back taxes had been paid since Dec. 1. Attorney D. I. Jarrett said he would turn over $6,000 more immediately to apply upon the $44,408 taxes still due and that the entire net monthly income of the building, estimated by him at approximately $4,000, would be paid to the county treasurer until the entire tax bill was paid.

Awaits Fulfillment of Promise.

Judge Burke said he would not appoint a county receiver under these circumstances, but maintained jurisdiction in the case to see that the taxpayer's promises were kept.

The Metropolitan Trust company, through Barnet Rossett, president, made its report as receiver of the 180 West Washington street building to Circuit Judge Hugo M. Friend. It was revealed that $70,000 gross income had been received from the building in two years and that almost that entire amount had been spent, leaving a balance of $12.08.

Assistant State's Attorney Francis Clamitz said that $50,072 was owed upon the building in delinquent taxes. He asked that the county treasurer be appointed receiver to collect the income for taxes hereafter. The First Union Trust company, owner of the property, however, offered to take the building over and pay all the income on the tax bill.

Collections Show Big Gain.

County Treasurer McDonough made public figures which he said showed that the average daily collection of delinquent taxes has leaped since enforcement of the Skarda act was begun.

In the period between April 13 and 27, inclusive, just before passage of the Skarda act, the average daily collection of 1928 taxes was $5,691; of 1929 taxes, $22,002, and of 1930 taxes, $32,840, the figures showed.

In comparison, between April 28 and May 15, inclusive, the average daily collection of 1928 taxes has been $37,710; of 1929 taxes, $87,287, and of 1930 taxes, $157,969, the treasurer's report revealed.

JUDGES SEEKING RE-ELECTION

(Election June 5)

DAVID F. MATCHETT

Judge David F. Matchett, Republican, was one of the top three in the bar primaries. He was born 65 years ago on a farm at Newton, Ia., of pioneer parents. He attended the rural schools and Hazel Dell, Morning Sun, and Washington academies, and Colorado college at Colorado Springs, from which he was graduated with the degree of B. A. in 1892.

He entered Cornell university school of law and studied there in the teaching days of Charles Evans Hughes, now chief justice of the United States Supreme court. Supplementary to the law Judge Matchett studied American constitutional history under Moses Coit Tyler. He received his law degree at Cornell in 1894.

For the following three years Judge Matchett was instructor in political history and science at Colorado college. In 1893 he came to Chicago, was admitted to the bar, and engaged in practice. In 1907 he was appointed master in chancery by the late Judge Albert C. Barnes.

In the period 1914-1915 Judge Matchett, a Deneen supporter, was chairman of the Republican county committee. He was elected to the Circuit bench in 1915 and was reëlected in 1921 and 1927.

For the last sixteen years Judge Matchett has been sitting in the Appellate court by appointment of the state Supreme court. The "Old Roman," as he is known to his colleagues, is regarded as exceptionally well versed in constitutional law, and as one of the strong figures of the bench.

Monmouth college in 1928 conferred on him the honorary degree of LL. D., as did Colorado college in 1932. The family home is at 6133 Ellis avenue.

Judge Matchett's judicial record was indorsed at the primaries of the bar association, and the report of the association said: "He possesses to an unusual degree the qualifications for judicial office."

SECY. WALLACE CANCELS DATE TO SPEAK HERE

Secretary Henry A. Wallace of the department of agriculture, yesterday notified officials of the Inland Daily Press association, in convention at the Morrison hotel, that business connected with the administration of the new farm adjustment act would prevent his scheduled appearance at noon today at the organization luncheon. H. A. Lewis, assistant general manager of sales of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, will be advanced on the program to occupy the secretary's time. Mr. Lewis will talk on "Marketing and Advertising, Today and Tomorrow."

In a busy schedule of discussion yesterday, the publishers and editors considered newspaper costs and production, advertising promotion in the inland field, the postal situation, chain store and newspaper relations, typography of the modern newspaper, and various other topics in and out of a round table session. Other "shop talks" are scheduled for the closing gatherings today, including a review of the banking crisis as it was handled by the newspapers.

A resolution in support of the Capper bill recently introduced into the senate by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, newspaper publisher, was passed by the convention. The bill makes misrepresentation in advertising matter a misdemeanor, and replaces an earlier piece of legislation providing for censorship of such copy.

"The absolute purity of these flakes," says

Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall

JUST where Evanston ends and Wilmette begins, stands a low pink stucco building known to all Chicagoans who follow Sheridan Road north . . . the Marshall studio. Enchanting . . exotic . . . a bit of European charm set down on our own lake shore . . . think of supervising the management of this magical place! Yet exactly that is Mrs. Marshall's task—besides maintaining the loveliness of her town apartment.

"I would indeed be helpless without the aid of American Family Flakes," she says with sincerity. "You see, the thing I look for in a laundry soap is purity. Often one washing in a harsh soap will ruin colorful fabrics that make a home lovely—or sheer silks and laces that make a wardrobe charming.

"The absolute purity of American Family Flakes gives fresh, new beauty to everything they touch. Even the tile floors of the studio are brighter when these pure flakes are used.

"My maid tells me, too, that American Family gives twice as much suds as ordinary flakes, and so makes faster work of dishwashing and general cleaning. I have yet to see the china whose colored pattern has faded—the crystal whose luster has dimmed—or the woodwork whose surface has been marred through the regular use of Kirk's American Family Flakes."

• • •

Buy these pure soap flakes next time you are at the grocer's. And try them. You'll be amazed how much less soap you'll need . . . how much longer your washables will last, because you don't have to rub them . . . how many dollars you'll save. Look at your hands too—how soft and smooth! It's the pure, rich double-suds that makes the difference!

IT'S THE DOUBLE-SUDS THAT MAKES THE DIFFERENCE

JAIL MILK STRIKE LEADER AND 24 YOUNG PICKETS

Accused Youths Recruited from Ranks of Idle.

Twenty-five milk strike pickets, all youths between 18 and 25 years old, and led by a college graduate who believes "capitalists have too much power," were arrested by McHenry county deputy sheriffs near Woodstock yesterday. The pickets had dumped a small quantity of milk destined for Chicago and had forced a number of farmers to turn back home without delivering their loads.

All were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Battern in Woodstock yesterday afternoon on charges of disorderly conduct and riot. The case of one man, Owen Callahan, was set for today, and the others had their trials delayed to May 26. None was able to furnish a $500 bond and all were taken to the McHenry county jail for the night.

Pickets Are Recruited.

Inquiry by Sheriff Lester Edinger, McHenry county, showed that the arrested men were not farmers, but had been recruited for picketing duty among the idle of Glen Ellyn, Arlington Heights, and other nearby towns.

Their leader is Donald Locke, who is interested with his father, Richard F. Locke, and his brother, Philip, in a dairy farm near Union This farm does not ship milk to Chicago, and the elder Locke, who is an attorney, recently tried to obtain a court order to force the Chicago health department to inspect his and other Illinois farm,s whose owners wished to sell in the local market.

Donald Locke's action was disapproved, both by his father and brother, according to the latter. He said Donald had been warned by them to stay away from McHenry. The twenty-five youths, however, were given support by the more radical element among the McHenry farmers and stuck it out.

"Donald got his education in high school and the Chicago Academy of Sciences," said Philip Locke. "He is convinced that the farmers are being treated unfairly by racketeers and profiteers in the milk industry."

Want to Be Martyrs.

In the jail Donald and R. V. Johnson of Glen Ellyn, one of his aids, declared they were willing to be "martyrs" to the cause of the milk strikers. They said they had been incited to their picketing by Nick Schaeffer, a farmer, in whose barn they slept, and by Thomas King, E. L. Bost, William French, and George Whipple, leaders in a demand for a strike of Illinois milk producers.

The case against the pickets, brought by Alvin Harlin, farmer whose milk was dumped, and a witness, L. B. McCannan, will be prosecuted by State's Attorney A. V. Lumley of McHenry county.

Bundesen Plans Action.

One of the most important developments in the milk strike situation yesterday was a decision by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, to cut off the market of Wisconsin farmers here unless he is assured that supplies from that state are protected and sent in regularly. If the strike of Wisconsin farmers, still in progress, interferes with the safety of the local supply, he said, he would be obliged to revoke licenses of plants in that state shipping here.

Five United States deputy marshals were assigned yesterday to guard shipments of milk from Union City, Ill., to the Crescent Dairy Products company, 515 North Crawford avenue, Chicago. This action was taken because the company is in federal receivership.

Aurora yesterday followed the lead of Chicago and increased the retail price of milk to 10 cents a quart, 7 cents a pint.

WALLACE, PEEK GET AGREEMENT ON CHICAGO MILK

Representatives of Chicago milk distributors and farmers who furnish the primary supply yesterday in Washington submitted to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and George N. Peek, general administrator of the farm emergency act, an agreement under which both the retail and the farm prices of milk would be stabilized in this market.

Although no official announcement of the terms was made, it was understood that the new prices which became effective on Monday would form the basis for the whole agreement. Milk is now 10 cents a quart from the large dairy companies, 1 cent over recent levels; and farmers get $1.75 a hundred pounds, a raise of 30 cents, providing they sell through the Pure Milk association.

Secretary Wallace and Mr. Peek, to whom a memorandum was submitted, said that they had taken no advance position and would not approve or disapprove the plan until hearings had been held.

DIVORCE ASKED BY MRS. KENLAY, KIN OF CERMAK

Mrs. Helena Cermak Kenlay, daughter of the late Mayor Cermak, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Circuit court against Floyd M. Kenlay. Her bill disclosed that she and her husband separated on Feb. 10, five days before her father was struck by an assassin's bullet.

Mrs. Kenlay charges extreme and repeated cruelty. Her bill cites two instances, one on Feb. 10 and previously on Jan. 2, when, she charges, her husband struck and abused her. At the time that Mayor Cermak was shot, it was recalled, Mrs. Kenlay had left her husband in Chicago and was driving to Miami to her father, accompanied by her young daughter and a woman friend.

Occupies Cermak Home.

Mrs. Kenlay is 28 years old and lives at 2342 South Millard avenue. Her father made his home there with her before his death. Her attorney, Joseph J. Jaros, said that Kenlay had lived under the same roof with his wife following the last act of cruelty charged in the bill because of the illness and death of the late mayor, but that the real separation dates from Feb. 10.

Kenlay is an assistant attorney general of Illinois.

The Kenlays' marriage followed a romance at the University of Illinois, where both were students. They were secretly married on May 28, 1926, at Covington, Ind., and the marriage did not become known until some time later.

No Plea for Alimony.

They have one child, Mary Alyce, 2 years old. Mrs. Kenlay asks the custody of the child, but her bill contains no plea for alimony.

2 Berwyn Schools Closed Because of Scarlet Fever

Because of the prevalence of scarlet fever, two of the twelve Berwyn elementary schools, the Washington Irving and the Jefferson, will close this morning and remain closed until next Monday. The buildings are to be fumigated. Arthur Herron, superintendent of the Berwyn health department, said there were about forty cases of scarlet fever in the suburb. The city council, at a meeting last night, approved the closing of the two schools.

WISCONSIN PUTS MORE SOLDIERS ON STRIKE DUTY

Shawano May Be Trouble Center Today.

BULLETIN.

Racine, Wis., May 17 (Wednesday).—(Special.)—Several hundred milk strikers who gathered at the country home of Allen Gifford, manager of a dairy company, six miles from Racine, last night booing and demanding that a shipment of milk be dumped, were dispersed early today by fifty Kenosha National Guardsmen armed with tear gas bombs. Later the strikers returned, but were routed again and seven of them arrested.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—Additional state troops were called out tonight as the milk strike, now in its fourth day, became more threatening. All indications pointed to a showdown tomorrow with Shawano, in the northern part of the state, as the possible battleground.

Threaten Milk Shippers.

The action of the state authorities in augmenting their forces followed a day of violence on the part of pickets who stood as a constant threat against the movement of milk to markets. During the late afternoon it appeared that the strikers were growing in number and that by morning they would be too formidable for the deputies, both county officers and troops acting with them, unless the latter were reënforced. Tonight both picketers and law enforcers appeared to be converging on Shawano.

To Act as Deputies.

The state troops mobilized tonight will not be used in a strict military undertaking. They will in civilian dress, wear pistols only, and act as special deputy sheriffs. Several hundred have been on duty in this manner for 24 hours.

The troops ordered out tonight were from Milwaukee, Kenosha, and Beloit. Three hundred were mobilized here. In Beloit 200 members of Company L were called out, and in Kenosha fifty troopers from Company E, 105th cavalry, were mobilized.

The Milwaukee men it was announced, would be used in Milwaukee, Ozaukee, and Racine counties, one of the strategic points where it is planned to break the strike. No immediate traveling orders were given to the cavalry outfit in Kenosha, but Capt. A. E. Axtell said he was ready to move at once. The company was supplied with night sticks and tear gas bombs.

Meanwhile, Shawano's 4,000 citizens are awaiting anxiously to see what happens. Sheriff Oscar B. Dettman, appointed by the governor, announced at midnight he had 1,200 men deputized, 200 of them guardsmen.

"These men are sufficiently equipped to combat any situation," the sheriff said.

From various courses it was learned that the strikers were planning to converge on Shawano to open an attack in the morning on the plants of the Consolidated Badger Coöperative company. The plants were closed Monday, but opened today under protection. The principal highways were thickly dotted with trucks and cars belonging obviously to pickets. However, other vehicles carried deputies in almost equal number. The sheriffs and district attorneys from Brown, Outagamie, Waupaca, and Oconto counties are coöperating with Shawano officials to stem any attacks. A number of Indians from the Menominee reservation near Shawano may be used as deputies.

Shawano appeared strangely active tonight, because of the imminence of a showdown. Young men walked the streets with pistols at their belts, pickets loitered all around. At midnight tonight no encounters had occurred, and the calm was believed to presage a possible storm.

FAST PACE CREATES A CLASS OF 'LIVING DEAD,' SAYS DR. MAYO

Memphis, Tenn., May 16.—(AP)—Modern high tension life, Dr. Charles H. Mayo said today, has produced a class of "living dead."

"We find old people all around us who have been dead for years and don't know it," the Rochester, Minn., surgeon said. "They do not think any more. Their minds have died, although their bodies live on.

"Life today is too fast a pace. The mind gives out years before the body."

TURN OF EVENTS IS DISAPPOINTING TO JOSEPHINE, 12

If everything had gone as planned 12 year old Josephine Zegtino might now be flying somewhere over the western states on her way to California instead of being held at the Juvenile detention home, where flying is taboo.

At 4:30 yesterday afternoon at the Chicago airport a fourteen passenger plane of the United Air Lines was due to take off. About three minutes before that time a mechanic made a final inspection of the ship. Entering the baggage compartment, he came upon Josephine hiding as a stowaway.

"I wanted to go to Los Angeles and I'm crazy about flying," wept Josephine in disappointment. She told the police she lived at 2421 Lexington street, but investigation later revealed no one of her name there.

COMMODITIES RISE ON INFLATION FEAR

Some Are Up 100 Per Cent From Low Marks of Depression.

CHICAGO, May 12—(AP)—Commodity prices were on a high perch today as the farm relief and currency-inflation bill became a law. They had been scared upward by the plans for inflation, which President Roosevelt has said he would use to force prices to pre-war averages.

Wool prices were substantially higher, the increase amounting to 20 per cent. within a fortnight.

MRS. ROOSEVELT VISITS CAMP OF BONUS MARCHERS

Cheered as She Talks of "Fair Treatment."

Washington, D. C., May 16.—(AP)—Wading through ankle deep mud, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight visited the bonus marchers' encampment at Fort Hunt, Va., and amid their cheers told them she felt all of them would have "fair consideration."

The wife of the chief executive was accompanied by Louis M. Howe, one of the President's secretaries. The men lined the road in the government provided encampment for them and were silent as she arrived driving, herself at the wheel of Howe's automobile.

As she stepped from the automobile she was greeted by George A. Brady of Oklahoma, permanent chairman of the convention for which the 1,200 marchers, demanding immediate payment of the bonus, are assembled. She smiled and said a word to each of ten men who had been decorated in the war as they were presented by Brady.

Give Three Cheers.

A cry of "three cheers for the first lady of the land," broke the silence of the crowd which heartily responded.

Ignoring a heavy clay mud which had formed after a pelting rain, Mrs. Roosevelt inspected the cooking arrangements for the men. Then Brady escorted her to the circus tent set up for meetings.

Mrs. Roosevelt sat chatting with the men who gathered nearest her until the "Star Spangled Banner" was played over loud speakers from a phonograph.

After an introduction by Brady, Mrs. Roosevelt crossed to the microphone and smiling told the men she could not talk with them "of the thing about which you want to know most," saying "it is not my business to talk politics."

She recounted her work with soldiers during the war, including canteen work in the capital and visits to local service hospitals and later, in 1918, to the northern front in Europe.

Leads Them in Singing.

"I always had a feeling that all of you would have fair consideration," she said, "and that those of us who did not go would have consideration for those who did."

She added that she desired all those who did serve in the war to serve in peace as a requirement of patriotism.

"I will always try to be a friend to you," Mrs. Roosevelt concluded.

A Negro singer sang "Mother Machree." Mrs. Roosevelt waved to the men and asked "How many of you know 'A Long, Long Trail.'"

CEMENT DISPUTE TIES UP CITY'S STREET REPAIRS

Inability of the city to purchase cement and other materials at what city officials believe are fair prices has made necessary an almost total cessation of street repairs, and the laying off of more than half the men engaged in constructing the Chicago avenue water tunnel. Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt revealed this situation to the council finance committee yesterday.

Cement manufacturers submitted identical bids to the city at the beginning of the year, all asking $2 a barrel in place of the $1.28 a barrel which the city paid last year. As a result the bids were refused. Commissioner Hewitt told the aldermen that because of a shortage of cement for the walls of the water tunnel, 416 of the 767 men working on the tunnel have been laid off. The commisisoner is conducting an investigation to determine whether it is feasible to line the tunnel with brick in place of cement.

The number of street repair gangs has been reduced to four. Usually there are 40 to 45 gangs working at this season.

RELIEF GOES ON, THOUGH U. S. CASH STOPS FOR WHILE

The $300,000,000 fund which the Reconstruction Finance corporation was authorized to lend to states for relief work has been exhausted, and no further funds will be available for relief of the idle in Chicago until the new federal relief legislation becomes effective, it was announced yesterday by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

The funds shortage will not interrupt relief operations in Chicago, however. Out of R. F. C. funds already furnished to the Illinois commission and allocated to Cook county, about $800,000 remains. The commission is spending about $200,000 a day in Chicago, but Mr. Reynolds believes it will be possible to stretch this money until Monday.

By that time, he hopes, President Roosevelt will have appointed the federal relief administrator, who will have authority to disburse the half billion dollar federal fund. Even if there is a delay of a few days or a week in getting fresh funds, the relief organization can run on credit and avoid closing relief stations.

Dean G. Acheson Confirmed for U. S. Treasury Post

Washington, D. C., May 16.—(AP)—The nomination of Dean G. Acheson of Maryland, as undersecretary of the treasury was confirmed today by the senate, despite the opposition of Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.].

Stresses Religion

"Students today want to feel religion as a reality and not have it painted to them as a picture," said Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam, president of De Pauw university, Greencastle, Ind., at the annual banquet of the Chicago De Pauw Alumni association held last night at the Knickerbocker hotel. He stressed that the students are getting back to the simpler things of life and leaving a blasé period.

Dr. Henry Boyer Longden, vice president of the university, spoke briefly on "My Fifty-three Years at De Pauw." James E. Watson, former senator from Indiana, an alumnus of De Pauw, was toastmaster. Guests of honor included James P. Goodrich, former governor of Indiana; Federal Judge Will M. Sparks, and Roy O. West, chairman of the De Pauw board of trustees and former secretary of the interior, all graduates of the university.

Officers of the association were elected as follows: Phil Maxwell, president; Mrs. Alvin Rockwell, vice president; Fred Bacon, secretary, and Le Grand Cannon, treasurer.

Gandhi Weakens on Ninth Day of Fast; Voice Feeble

POONA, India, May 16.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi's voice was feeble and his condition weaker tonight after beginning at noon the ninth day of his fast. However, a board of six doctors, after a second examination, reported his condition "very satisfactory." Gandhi intends to fast three weeks to draw attention to restrictions imposed on India's "untouchables."

DISLIKES FREE RELIEF FOOD, SO HE TURNS RED

Hans Pfeiffer, 45 years old, 2236 North Lowell avenue, has been on the relief rolls for more than two years.

On March 30 he was arrested at the Cragin relief station, where he was passing out red pamphlets urging all good communists to make a "hunger march" to Springfield. Yesterday he was arraigned before Judge Erwin J. Hasten on a charge of disorderly conduct.

"I don't get enough relief," declared Pfeiffer. "It ought to be more. And I don't like the way they give out the food. They give spaghetti to German families and sauerkraut to Italians."

Judge Hasten, remarking that Pfeiffer was "an ingrate," fined him $25 and costs.

Eva Puck White, Stage Comedienne, Wins Divorce

Circuit Judge Frank H. Bicek yesterday granted Mrs. Eva Puck White, 1220 North State parkway, stage comedienne, a divorce from Samuel White. Under the questioning of her attorney, Benjamin H. Ehrlich, Mrs. White testified that her husband gambled constantly during their married life and deserted her on Feb. 19, 1932. They were married on Dec. 23, 1922. The couple was formerly a stage team. Mrs. White waived alimony.

NIGHT CREWS BEGIN WORK ON RELIEF GARDENS

Rush Planting of 3,000 Free Plots.

Tractor crews under the direction of the emergency relief commission began working in 24 hour shifts yesterday preparing 3,000 garden plots for needy families on the relief rolls. The night crews were ordered because the spring rains have delayed plowing, harrowing and planting until now.

This year the commission has directed that the garden plots be prepared and planted by crews of workers under the direction of Joseph Machotka, superintendent of the garden service committee. Families on the relief rolls will have only to weed and tend their gardens as they grow.

May Ease Relief Load.

Cultivation of the gardens is expected to ease the load of providing food for nearly 20,000 families on the county relief rolls. The 3,000 gardens being prepared under the direction of the relief commission will take care of as many Chicago families. Virtually every suburban community will provide gardens for destitute families in their areas and a number of business service clubs are planning free gardens. In all some 20,000 gardens are expected to be available to the idle in Cook county.

Relief commission officials said yesterday that they have had only 1,200 applications for the 3,000 gardens under their direction. They blamed this situation on the late spring and the fact that no campaign for "recruits" was undertaken by the commission while the weather was unfavorable. Relief worker's are now trying to find applicants and it is expected that the 3,000 gardens will be allotted by the end of the week.

Expects Ready Response.

"We believe that needy families who have been sustained throughout the winter on the relief rolls will be eager to raise their own fresh vegetables," said County Commissioner Amelia Sears, head of the relief committe, yesterday.

Supt. Machotka said that the relief commission is furnishing transportation, tools and seeds to those who agree to cultivate the gardens. The most difficult work, he added—plowing and planting—is being done by expert crews now working on the grounds. This work will cost the relief client $9 which will be deducted from his food budget for the months of July, August and September.

The first night work on gardens was done last night at the old Gage farm, 22d street and Harlem avenue. Among the vegetables to be raised are lettuce, radishes, peas, string beans, lima beans, sweet corn, onions, parsnips, potatoes, tomatoes, squash, pumpkins, and turnips.

GOV. OLSON MORTGAGE MORATORIUM LAW IS OVERRULED BY COURT

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—(AP)—District Judge Arthur W. Selover today declared unconstitutional a new state moratorium law enacted to give relief to farmers and other owners of real estate. Refusing the request of a mortgagor for extension of the period during which he might redeem his city real estate, he ruled the measure violated federal and state constitutions.

LOESCH QUIZZES WITNESSES AT MURDER INQUEST

Rocco Belcastro Slaying Story Told Jury.

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime commission, acted as foreman of a coroner's jury yesterday at the inquest into the murder of Rocco Belcastro, a hoodlum. Charles Kunowski, alias Casey, 2510 Iowa street, an ex-convict, whom Belcastro had wounded two months ago, is accused of the slaying.

The investigation of the killing, which occurred early Monday, involved visits by the coroner's jury to two saloons, the Oakley café, 2335 Chicago avenue, and the Delmonti cafe, 458 North Halsted street. Mr. Loesch, who served on former President Hoover's crime commission, termed the two places hell-holes.

U. of C. Professor on Jury.

On the jury with Mr. Loesch were Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the crime commission; Gabriel Slaughter, an official of American Steel Foundries corporation; Prof. E. W. Puttkamer of the University of Chicago, author of a policeman's manuel; Charles Berquist, an executive of the Western Electric company, and Frederick W. Melhop, former official of Armour & Co.

Mr. Loesch questioned Police Captains John Stege, John Horan, and Patrick Collins, who accompanied them, concerning police regulations over saloons such as they visited.

The testimony in regard to the murder concerned Belcastro's appearance at the Oakley café a few hours before his body was found in a stolen automobile in front of 1213 Carroll avenue. The slain man was identified by three persons as a criminal.

Miss Lillian Nance, 4027 School street, identified Belcastro as the man who killed Francis Holbrook, division circulation manager for the Daily Times, and then with others kidnaped and raped her. Her escort, Stephen Hanahan, 4345 West Monroe street, joined in the identification.

Killer Is Identified.

Deputy Chief of Detectives William V. Blaul informed the jurors that Kunowski was under arrest as the killer and had been identified by two witnesses. Kunowski was wanted by police on other criminal charges and after his arrest they learned that he had gone to the Oakley cafe seeking to kill Belcastro, who had left for the Delmonti cafe a few minutes earlier.

William Mayo, one of the owners of the Oakley cafe, hastened to the Delmonti to warn Belcastro but arrived too late, Blaul said. Kunowski killed Belcastro in the Delmonti cafe, according to Blaul, and the owners of the café placed the body in a stolen automobile, which was driven to the Carroll avenue address.

LICENSE CLAUSE IN INDIANA BEER LAW IS UPHELD

Indianapolis, Ind., May 16.—[Special.]—Sections of the state beer control law that cover requirements for issuance to a restaurant owner of a license to sell alcoholic malt beverages at retail were held constitutional today by Joseph T. Markey, judge pro tempore, in Municipal court.

The decision was made in the case of Martin Levy, who recently went into the beer business without a retailer's permit and invited arrest for his failure to have such a permit.

At the time of his arrest Levy asserted he had been following a decision made by Judge Frank P. Baker of the Criminal court here that the beer act in many ways was unconstitutional.

A million and a half baby salmon and lake trout were placed in Lake Michigan yesterday by workmen directed by Floyd F. Young, director of the Lincoln park zoo, in coöperation with the United States bureau of fisheries. The fish, about two months old, were taken out in the lake by a city tug and dumped into the water. About 500,000 of the fish are salmon and the rest are trout. They were hatched in Lincoln park hatcheries.

BRITISH FLYER LANDS IN STREET; TOLD IT'S CALAIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CALAIS, France, May 16.—Allan Starling, British flyer from Croyden, slid uncertainly down through a half mile of fog at 1 a. m. today in what he considered a rather unlucky landing. His plane's right wheel snapped, brushing something solid, presumably a hilltop, shortly before landing. climbing out of his plane, he discovered "the hilltop" he had brushed was a church spire.

Halfway between the spire and the spot where he landed were high tension wires. He had missed them by inches. The smooth field where he believed he had landed was a city street lined with houses. His next surprise came when two policemen pedalled out of the mist.

"I say, constable, how far is Lympe?" Starling called out.

Starling discovered he had crossed the English channel unknowingly and had landed in the Boulevard des Allies, one of the main avenues of Calais. He offered to pay for the slate shingles he knocked off the cathedral spire but the municipal authorities generously waived any claim.

Policeman Edward Fellow said that Miss Armstrong was driving forty miles an hour and failed to stop for a light at Seward street.

CHAIN STORE TAX BILL IS KILLED BY ILLINOIS SENATE

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Senator Thomas P. Gunning's chain store tax bill was killed in the senate today by a vote of 19 to 11. It needed 26 votes to become effective July 1.

Assessing a tax of $3 for independent stores and a graduated scale terminating at $50 for more than 20 stores, this measure has been fought long and hard since it was introduced in the interests of independent merchants. Gunning called it for passage this afternoon more or less convinced that it would fail

Another tax measure fared better in committee, however. Senator Noah M. Mason's bill to assess a one-eighths of one per cent tax on grain future sales was recommended for passage by the senate revenue committee. It will be on the order of first reading tomorrow.

GREEN ORDERS THE ARREST OF SLOW DRIVERS

Scolds Taxi Chauffeurs for Blocking Traffic.

Judge Thomas A. Green of the Traffic court, in reprimanding fifty taxicab drivers for cruising in the loop, recommended that the police enforce a minimum speed regulation on boulevards, through streets and congested points. He suggested that motorists were entitled to go 40 miles an hour under favorable street conditions, and on the outer drives 50 miles an hour is not too fast.

"The slow driver is a road hog, a dangerous nuisance like his cousin the speed demon," said the judge. "If the police will bring these slow drivers into court I'll find them guilty of blockading traffic.

Gives Them a Warning.

"In the loop, you taxicab drivers are the worst offenders, cruising around the block at five miles an hour, interfering with pedestrians trying to cross the street and forcing all vehicles to go around you. I'm not assessing any fines now because I think you're entitled to a warning. You've got your warning, and this goes for all cab drivers. Now stay in your cab stands.

"Private car owners can likewise take heed that loafing on the public streets is not going to be permitted. We must speed up traffic if we are going to accommodate the crowds here for the fair.

"This doesn't mean the police should countenance recklessly fast driving. It does mean that the police don't have to tolerate the slow drivers who are blocking traffic.

Judge's Rule for Drivers.

"On our wide streets and boulevards I think forty miles an hour is reasonable when all conditions are favorable. On the outer drives, under favorable conditions, I see no reason why the motorists shouldn't move fifty miles an hour.

"A good rule to follow is to keep moving with traffic. If cars are streaming around you, you aren't going fast enough. You're in the way. Keep up with the average pace."

AND THAT DEFINES HILLS BROS COFFEE!

FRESH ALWAYS!

The vacuum process of packing coffee, originated by Hills Bros. in 1900, is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness — the air is removed from the can and kept out. There is no magic about a vacuum can — it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh. No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." The vacuum can keeps it fresh always!

Ground Right to Taste Right

No coffee, however good, can be uniform in taste unless uniformly roasted and uniformly ground. Hills Bros.' exclusive, continuous process — Controlled Roasting — and correct granulation insure this uniformity. Hills Bros.' granulation will give best results by the drip process or any other method.

The exclusive Controlled Roasting process roasts every coffee-berry to the same degree of goodness

YOU can depend on the wonderful flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee! It isn't changeable like the weather. Controlled Roasting—Hills Bros.' exclusive process—gives the same depth of goodness to every pound, year after year. Hills Bros. Coffee always comes to you without any variation!

Instead of roasting in bulk, Hills Bros. roast their coffee evenly, continuously, a little at a time. Not a single berry becomes over-roasted or is left under-roasted! Every one is done to the very degree that gives the richest flavor.

Such unerring uniformity isn't possible in bulk-roasting. For roasting in big batches doesn't let the heat spread itself evenly. And variation in roast makes variation in flavor.

You'll hardly believe your own taste, the first time you drink Hills Bros. Coffee! For, honestly, it has a flavor you never dreamed possible. And every pound is exactly the same! Order Hills Bros. Coffee today, by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

GREENBACKS FOR PUBLIC WORKS.

President Roosevelt, sending his public works bill to congress this week, is expected not to recommend the specific taxes to help meet its costs. He is disposed to give over to the ways and means committee of the house without recommendation the task of finding the revenue or such portion of it as is contemplated from taxation. The works bill will provide for expenditure of three billion three hundred million dollars. It is the idea in Washington that the interest and amortization charges of $220,000,000 a year should be covered by taxes.

Although much diligent genius is being used, no one yet has discovered a way in which the collection of taxes can be other than the taking of money. It may hurt less seemingly if the method is indirect, but the hurt is there and to change the form does not change the substance. If the collector goes to the pocketbook the taxpayer must cut down on purchases he would like to make. If the tax goes into the price of goods the taxpayer comes to the same conclusion in his private management. He can't lose money to the government without losing money, even if he's given a whiff of chloroform before the operation. He is nevertheless out of pocket when he comes to.

Business is picking up, but it is naturally fearful that fresh drains will be made upon the resources which its recovery requires. The essence of the public works projects, their worth and their value, will be found first in their own nature and second in the process of getting money for them. If they require another smothering blanket of taxes they will defeat the purpose for which they are put forth. Rather than seek new taxes the government would do better to use its authority to issue greenbacks and convert them later into a long term debt. It should be repeated that the soundest financial mind in the Democratic party, Senator Glass of Virginia, has advocated the greenback as the safest instrument of monetary inflation proposed, although his instinct is against all of it. Mr. Glass feels that he is a voice on the outside, but safety would be promoted by consulting him more often.

FOR EDUCATORS, NOT EDUCATION.

Resolutions framed by the committee on resolutions of a "conference of representative citizens" [chairman, School Superintendent Bogan] are significant of similar pronouncements from educational bodies. They are in the interest of educators rather than of education. They are marked by a desire to prevent reduction of expenditures and preserve or even enlarge existing activities, and there is little apparent disposition to face the difficulties with which government and taxpayers are struggling at the present time.

The outstanding characteristic of these resolutions is the effort to find new means of wringing money from the taxpayers. This appears in the plausible but not deceptive guise of protection of education. Of 23 recommendations 17 are concerned with increasing revenue and with questions of appropriation and salaries. The other five propose changes in organization and control. In a whereas the taxpayers are informed that it is their duty to insist that the schools be economically managed, a Pickwickian sentiment quickly disposed of.

It is interesting to set these resolutions beside the communication of the Parents' Public School association to the Chicago board of education. We think the parents' association members are quite as anxious to preserve the privilege of education for the children as the authors of the resolutions referred to. But they are not educational jobholders. They are taxed to pay the educational bill. They find that the elementary schools are suffering more than the secondary from retrenchment, and their demand is not for money that cannot be found but for further curtailment of unnecessary spending in the luxury branch of the system. The communication is founded on a sensible recognition of the fiscal situation. It calls attention to the fact that during the last four years many supervisory and administrative positions in the educational, business, and operating departments have been created and much expensive equipment purchased. It recommends the elimination of these positions, which carry high salaries compared to the teachers'; that no appropriations be made for more equipment, and that substantial savings be accomplished in permanent improvements, bureau of repairs, and repair appropriations.

There is nothing more conspicuous in the years of depression than the fight being made by the educational bureaucracy against the retrenchments compelled by drastic depletion of the public revenue. Organized educators have uniformly demanded that educational expenditure should be excepted from the otherwise universal requirements of economy, and some have even demanded increase of expenditure. It is an illuminating commentary on the personnel of our tax supported system, and it is the more offensive for appearing as a defense of education and of the right of youth to it. It is in fact only another manifestation of the jobholders' self-interest. The educational bureaucracy is not doing such a good job that it deserves special immunities or privileges. It ought to take advantage of present conditions to put its house in order, cut out its extravagances, reform its methods and practices, and restudy its problems, both administrative and educational.

SPILLING THE MILK.

Wisconsin law, in some regions at least, seems to concede that private property has lost its rights. If certain farmers desire to appear in force on the highways and take other farmers' property from them and destroy it they have leave to do so.

The farmers who are spilling milk in this fashion might ask themselves what is to prevent other men from regarding their private property as without rights. Just what will they have to say to a mob of city gorillas who appear on a farm to slaughter the stock and take the carcasses away to the city market? If one farmer cannot rely upon law to protect him in the possession of his milk, why should another expect law to protect him in the possession of his wheat, corn, pigs, or beef cattle?

If one farmer thinks that a low price for milk is his warrant for the destruction of another man's goods, how can he object if other people act upon the assumption that the high price of pork chops is their warrant for killing his pigs? Common sense says that if one thing will work, so will the other. Probability says that that is precisely what will happen. Pursue this course of conduct to its conclusion and the farmer will have less security in his fields under the new administration of American law than the old farmer had in making his clearing in an Indian infested forest.

POLITICS AND BANK EXAMINERS.

The transfer of the chief national bank examiner of the Seventh reserve district, Mr. Leyburn, procured by Senators Van Nuys, Vandenberg, La Follette, and Murphy, should remind bank depositors that they must not lean very hard upon official bank examination as security for their money. No matter how conscientious and able the examiner may be, he is subject to political interference and discipline, and his protection can be and is very likely to be thrust aside when it is most needed. Sound financial policy in the interest of the whole community is certain to be resented by clamorous minorities or shortsighted majorities, and pressure politics will overrule it in most cases.

The depositor cannot escape responsibility for judging wisely the character of the institution to which he confides his money. He has available for his information many of the facts governing the condition of the banks he has under consideration. They are not sufficient, but they are a foundation. He can, and he must if he is to protect himself, inquire into the conditions, the resources, and policies of the institution. He must take into consideration the record of the institution and inform himself as fully as possible of the character and caliber of its managers and directors. He must take little for granted, as he will take little for granted if he is embarking upon an important enterprise of his own.

It is to be hoped the American banking system will be substantially improved and strengthened in consequence of the disastrous experience of this depression. But no system can be devised which will relieve depositors from all responsibility for informing themselves of the essential factors of safety in banking institutions. At any rate the bank examiner, under a political system like ours, cannot be relied upon as a guarantor of safety, no matter how competent and conscientious he may be.

Editorial of the Day

OUR WATERWAY SHARE.

[Peoria Transcript.]

The secretary of war, according to Congressman Dirksen, has assured Peoria that it has nothing to fear from the new Chicago to New Orleans barge service and should, in fact, profit by the development.

"I want to reiterate," said the secretary in a letter to the congressman, "that proper consideration will be given to the fact that Peoria has an investment of $400,000 of the taxpayers' money in a terminal which was built upon the expressed representations that Peoria would be designated as a key city for navigation and terminal purposes and that such investment can only be justly liquidated by a proper share of the barge traffic on the Illinois river."

There is no danger, the secretary went on, that barge freight will be taken past Peoria and unloaded at Chicago to be returned here by rail. On the contrary, the secretary quotes Gen. Ashburn, president of the federal barge lines, as authority that when the new rail-water rates are established this city will benefit even more than it has in the past.

This is good news. During April the city's share of the terminal's earnings was $1,730.70. Obviously, for the terminal to pay for itself, this must be increased to twice as much. An income of $600 a week for forty weeks of navigation would just about pay the bonded interest on the investment. Peoria could well afford to pay off the principal if the interest were paid. Lower living costs and increased business would compensate for the expenditure of money to retire the bonds.

Peoria's investment in the river-rail terminal was part of its expression of faith in the future. Conditioned upon the belief that the Illinois waterway was to become a most important link in the transportation system of this country, the city built the terminal long before other cities on the Illinois were aware of the possibilities such an institution had. Obviously the waterway is going to carry a tremendous amount of freight. So far the loadings have been as much as could be expected. Chicago, however, has just commenced to ship and to receive shipments. In a couple of years, at the outside, tonnage on barges for the middle western metropolis should be ten times as great as it is now. Manifestly, with such a tremendous artery of trade past our door, this city cannot fail to cash in on its river terminal investment.

It is delightful to have the assurance of the secretary of war that Peoria is not to be forgotten. Even without it, however, we are sure the river terminal would succeed. The business will be going past; that Peoria would not get its share is unthinkable. Local shippers can begin doing their bit now—and with profit to themselves as they do it.

A BIRTHDAY POEM FOR MYSELF.

It is not so sad a thing, this knowing
That youth, the sprightly elf, my running mate,
Will soon outdistance me; my pace is slowing,
I have kept up so long, and I have shared
Her moments of bewilderment, unrest,
Her impulses, quick tears, her unprepared,
It is not so sad a thing to find
That I can plant my feet on solid ground
And feel the power of expanding mind,
Divorced from heart, and thereby made more sound.

But, oh, I must not miss too much hereafter

FERRY ADAMS.

"ROOSEVELT to Warn Hitler."—W. G. N. All right, Franklin Delano, go ahead if you think it will do any good, but giving warnings to Herr Hitler, to our way of thinking, is very much like pouring water on a duck's back.

WE'RE OFF cross word puzzles. We used to alibi ourself to ourself when we caught ourself doing one of the silly things by telling ourself that cross word puzzles increased our vocabulary. But since we've bumped in xylyl and yapok and reaws and golader we've laid off the darned things. It wouldn't do us a bit of good to add xylyl, yapok, reaws, and golader to our vocabulary. If we ever used them in polite conversation nobody would ever know what we were saying and some might think we were swearing.

Yeah, You'll Dig Us One.

Sir: I notice that you are hollering because you haven't got a farm. Come out to Ioway and I'll give you a farm, all covered with grass 'n oats, 'n a mortgage, 'n hogs, 'n corn, 'n soldiers, 'n farm strikers, 'n trees, 'n everything. Come on out and I'll give you a home. H. T. F.

"KING GEORGE BETTER; Back at His Desk."—Headline. Oh, these dull, prosaic machine age days! Time was when a king was sick he returned to his throne and the guns fired salvos and the trumpets did their stuff. Flags waved, soldiers in their best uniforms paraded and the excited multitude filled the streets and cheered until they were hoarse. The king put on his plush duds and ermine coat and cocked his jeweled crown over his left ear. Then escorted by the court and followed by the Royal Family, dukes, earls, viscounts, barons, the Master of the Horse, the Master of the Hounds, Gentlemen in Waiting, the Lord of the Exchequer, the Lord Chancellor, the Bishop of Canterbury, the Lord Mayor of Upper Tootingham, and others of the great and glorious too numerous to mention the king again resumed his throne. Now what? He puts on a tweed suit, pulls his soft hat down over his ears and motors over to his office. He goes in and looks at his mail, hangs out a sign, "In Conference," works a couple of crossword puzzles and reads the last chapter of a detective story. Then he taps a bell on his desk and as the stenographer sails majestically in he says: "Miss Chewgumme, take a letter and try to get some of the words spelled right." Ah, these are the gray, drab days. "The king returns to his desk." What's the use! The glory has all gone out of life. Let us then, dear friends, repair to the back garden and eat worms.

BEAUTY FOR ASHES.

The South Wind calls, and soon shall wake once more
A myriad virgin lilies. Out the door
Who thought to slaughter beauty. In some spot
Far, far away, on some Antarctic shore
Must he abide, forlorn. Oh, nevermore
Need Joy repine—now Spring regains the plot!
The meadows wake to green; in hillside nooks
Lurk violets; the orchards soon shall wear
New robes of pink and white. The halted brooks
At last break bonds, and sing. The beauty fair
Is on! O man, lay down your prosy books;

PREVENTION OF TOOTH DECAY.

THE members of the dental profession are in a ferment over the causes of tooth decay. This is of very great moment to the public. The old plan of filling teeth when cavities were found was a good one, so far as it went, and the dentists made a good job of it. But that was not enough to satisfy. Now the endeavor is to find the causes of dental decay. This has precipitated the merry war for which we will eventually be grateful. One group claims that certain bacteria are the cause of dental decay, and they offer very good proof of their contention. Some of these offer demonstration of plaques as one verification of the correctness of their contention.

Several others hold the diet to be responsible, but they do not agree among themselves as to which food ingredients are the causative or preventive agents, as the case may be.

One subgroup says the foods rich in vitamin C are those which prevent tooth decay. For instance, those holding this theory say that children will have good teeth if they are given plenty of orange juice, tomato juice, or the juices of other fruits and fresh vegetables. Another thinks that the foods which prevent tooth decay are those rich in vitamin D. The vitamin D foods are: Milk and milk products, the fish liver oils, salmon and maybe sardines, and other fish fats and meats.

Another argues that the foods required are those rich in vitamin A. These are: Carrots, spinach, tomatoes, oranges, and all other colored vegetables, fruits and grains, and, in addition, dairy products, eggs, and cod liver oils.

They say that fish liver oils are superior to viosterol because they contain vitamin A as well as vitamin D.

Still another group ranks minerals above vitamins. They offer laboratory data and evidence based on experience with some of the lower animals to prove that an ample supply of phosphorus and plenty of lime, ranking their importance in the order named, are necessary if we are to escape tooth decay.

There are many foods in common use that supply both phosphorus and lime. Those made from milk rank high in this particular.

The public is considerably bewildered by this conflict of evidence. If they try to eat all the foods found in all the groups and in the quantities advised they would die fat, but busted financially. The saving feature of the situation is that the truth will finally prevail. The man who stands on the sidelines is bound to be the gainer. The time is not far off when we can be certain that our teeth will not decay prior to old age if we will follow certain rules.

When the dentists have settled the decay question they will have a fight over the prevention of pyorrhea. Again the result will be progress.

CALF'S BLOOD.

H. E. J. writes: I am anemic. Wishing not to take iron pills and other drugs to build myself up and having heard that calf's blood contained all of the required mineral salts, I wish you would kindly advise me the dosage and how I should sterilize this blood before taking; that is, if it is best to take it.

REPLY.

Have some physician examine your blood to decide what kind of anemia you have, what degree of it you have, and what treatment you need. I know nothing of drinking calf's blood as a treatment for any kind of anemia. Why not ask the man who told you about it how much you are to take and how it is to be prepared? You probably will find that it is a case of the blind leading the blind.

BATH ITCH.

E. M. writes: If Mrs. J. P., who made inquiry about bath itch, will take a tablespoon of some good mineral oil night and morning for a few weeks I think she will be greatly relieved, if not cured.

DIVIDING PROPERTY.

Onarga, Ill., May 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A, B, C, and D owned a small farm and traded it as follows: They received an equity in a house placed at $825 and $1,825 in cash. D has a very small share in the place, so they paid him cash for his share. 1. Should they pay him on a basis of $2,600, the total value placed on the farm, or on a cash basis of $2,200, the amount it is estimated it would bring at cash sale? J. M.

He was under no legal obligation to enter into such a deal. If he did enter his rights would depend on the understanding. If he signed without anything being said we would say that the presumption was that he would receive one-quarter of the cash and have a one-quarter interest in the house that was received in exchange.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

APARTMENT LEASE.

Chicago, May 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a receiver for a building create a lease? 2. Can that receiver force a lease on a tenant if the tenant loses his position a week after the new lease has been signed and the tenant has a chance to obtain a much cheaper apartment? 3. What can be done to effect a release from this lease? L. S.

1. Yes, but in general the powers of a receiver depend upon the wording of the court order under which he is appointed.

2. If the lease was valid when executed it would continue to be binding on the tenant in spite of his losing his position.

3. Nothing on the bare facts that you state, but it is possible that by examining the court records and ascertaining the wording of the order appointing him receiver you might find some basis of questioning his action.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 17, 1893.

CHICAGO.—With the exception of Directors I. N. Camp and Victor F. Lawson, the board of directors of the World's Columbian Exposition yesterday decided to open the entire exposition to the public Sundays, beginning May 21. At the same time it was decided to return the partly retained gift of $2,500,000 to the government. The decision was placed in the form of a rule and will be submitted to the national commission today. Many of the commissioners are pleased with the board's action, and the chances for a seven days' Fair are brighter than ever before.

With 762 concessionaire cashiers to keep track of now, and the number increasing at the rate of twenty a day, the World's Fair bureau of collections and admissions is about the busiest concern these days in Jackson park. The work of auditing the first ten days' receipts was completed yesterday, but no information could be obtained as to the amount taken in.

Gov. Knute Nelson of Minnesota will be here today and will speak at the Norwegian celebration at the World's Fair, his subject being "Norse Liberty." This will be Norway's day at the Fair, and Norsemen will be out in force both from Chicago and abroad. Delegations from all the Norse societies will take part in the program.

Nearly 20,000 persons paid to see the World's Fair yesterday, notwithstanding the temperature was unusually low, while Lake Michigan contributed some bleak winds to make the day uncomfortable.

Word was received at the Lapland village of the safe arrival in New York of the land's enders, with their reindeers and all their huts, sledges, arms, and costumes. The party includes twenty-five Lapps in all, including five Dalcarien girls, who are of the highest nobility of Lapland. It is probable that before another world's exposition is held the race of Lapps will have become extinct, as there are now surviving only about 11,000 of them as against 27,000 ten years ago.

Visitors are carefully excluded from the Bedouin encampment, behind the walls of which there is in course of reconstruction a palace brought from Damascus, which is said to be a trifle over 600 years old.

There was the usual amount of suffering among the people from eastern and southern climes along the Midway yesterday, but business was brisk in all the attractions that were open.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 17, 1917.

LONDON.—The first American war vessel has had an engagement with a German submarine. This announcement was made by the admiralty following an official communication saying that a flotilla of American torpedo boat destroyers now is engaged in patrolling the war zone in coöperation with the British navy. The results of the engagement were not disclosed.

LONDON. — David Lloyd George, the British prime minister, sent a letter to John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalist party, outlining the government's project for the settlement of the home rule question. He asked Mr. Redmond to state his views on the government's suggestions in order that the government may be able to consider the matter before May 21.

THE WAR.—London claims "exceptionally heavy losses" were inflicted on the German troops which were sent against the British between Gavrelle and the Scarpe river. The British advanced posts were forced back by the Germans, but the latter were driven out almost immediately. Rome reports that Italian troops are succeeding in a great offensive along the whole line from Tolmino to the sea, many Austrian positions being captured. British troops on the Macedonian front captured the village of Kjapri, on the Struma line, and seized enemy trenches on a front of 3,000 yards southwest of Ernekeoi. The admiralty report of the last week's U-boat toll shows a total of 26 British ships sunk. This makes 440 British ships sunk in the 11 weeks ended yesterday.

CHICAGO.—War was brought closer home last night when the first trainload of Chicagoans left for "somewhere in France." It was the Red Cross base hospital unit No. 12, of which Dr. Frederic Besley is director.

CHICAGO.—With the thermometer in the 80s, north side swimming fans decided it was time to open the bathing season unofficially.

HOUSE BILL 697.

Chicago, May 14.—A short time ago THE TRIBUNE had an article on house bill 697. The purpose of this bill is to do away with the tenure of the attorney and business manager of the board of education. Just why these two officials are singled out is a little hard to understand unless the present political administration of the city wants the patronage. If that is what they want, they have overlooked their best bet. The educational department with "temporary appointments" and "sabbatical leaves" has much the best opportunity for patronage of any department in our school system.

I can easily understand, if the party in power has definite policies it would like to follow, how holdover appointees in many instances make it very difficult. If that is the reason for house bill 697, then the bill should be amended to include the superintendent and board members, making all school appointments concurrent with the election of a mayor. It is true, if this action were carried out, it would be an open declaration that our schools, at least the administration of the schools, including the educational, business and legal departments, was political.

Let us be honest and do it openly by including the superintendent and board members in house bill 697 or leave the Otis law as it is until such amendments as will improve our situation can be thought out by those who know facts and who honestly want politics eliminated from our public schools in so far as it is possible under our present form of municipal government. Let us hope this bill will be defeated.

MRS. HARVEY A. TYLER,
President Parents' Public School Association of Chicago.

WHERE OUR MONEY HAS GONE.

Washington, D. C., May 8.—In the rotogravure section of your issue dated April 2 there appears a column of illustrations of buildings in London, Ottawa, Rome, and Paris owned by the American government. Your heading for the illustrations is, "Where Our Money Has Gone—in Europe. Princely Dwellings Built by American Taxpayers for 'Society Jobholders.'"

The heading contains inaccuracies which may mislead a good many of your readers personally unacquainted with the properties.

Three out of the four structures shown are office buildings rather than dwellings. That of the ambassador's residence in London was a gift to the government made by Mr. J. P. Morgan.

In view of your interest in the Paris office building, which has been well described in your Paris edition of Aug. 28, 1930, I am transmitting for possible use the most recent progress photograph of the construction.

You will note that the American contractors responsible for the work are the same concern which erected your present Chicago building. I would appreciate the return of this photograph when with you it has served every useful purpose.

Very truly yours,
ROBERT J. PHILLIPS,
Acting Chief, Foreign Buildings Office.

THE LONG LIFE OF A BEDSPREAD.

Chicago, May 13.—I have in my possession a lace bedspread and shams woven at the World's Fair in '93. It has all the Exposition buildings woven in it.

POISONERS BY TEMPERAMENT.

Chicago, May 15.—I hope that somebody is keeping a list of the riotous and murderous farmers who are destroying property and attacking men, so that their milk will forever be kept out of the Chicago market. It would not be safe to let it in because men who will do what they are doing would not hesitate to poison the milk.

A CHICAGO MOTHER.

HOW IT'S DONE.

Chicago, May 9.—I am referring to articles in your paper about Moe Rosenberg, ward committeeman of the 24th ward. Has it ever occurred to certain mud-slingers to try and duplicate what Moe Rosenberg has been doing in his community for a number of years? An organization at 3244 West Roosevelt road is open 365 days a year. Here charity is dispensed regardless of party affiliations, citizenship, race, creed, or color; the only requirement is need. A man or woman makes known his need, a precinct captain in whose territory the case lies is dispatched, and immediate relief given, and kept up, with coal, gas, and electric light bills, and in some cases rent also. Relief is given a family until the emergency welfare makes its investigation, which sometimes is very slow. A small part of these expenses is met by amateur prize fights which were inaugurated by Mr. Rosenberg two years ago, and many times these fights were run at a loss, but Mr. Rosenberg never slowed up with his generosity but always dug down. Not contented with helping the adult unfortunates, he overheard how children were going to school without being fed, and after making a personal investigation he called in his woman's organization, headed by Mrs. Esther Cooper, and told them to start a kitchen at the Howland school. This work has since been extended to the Lawson and Penn schools.

MRS. SAM KOPPEL.

CEMENT.

Maywood, Ill., May 13.—May I take the liberty of writing you regarding the cement situation, the seriousness of which few people not directly engaged in the construction of highways, bridges, etc., understand? This industry employs thousands of people throughout the state every year, and at present is at a standstill due to the inability of our officials at Springfield [whom we elected and now must tolerate] to come to some sort of an agreement with the cement companies.

True, the cement companies are asking a seemingly exorbitant price as compared to last year. The state cannot expect to get the same low price now, when it is a well known fact among construction people that there was a competitive war between cement companies for business last year and their profits, if any, were small. J. W. OSBORN.

BRAIN TRUSTS COMPARED.

Chicago, May 14.—Of all the hypocritical, scathing, uncalled-for criticisms of the present administration, Arthur Sears Henning's article in today's TRIBUNE on the President's brain trust is the most amazing.

Why is the counsel of the so-called brain trust in this administration viewed with such alarm whereas the Presidents in the past few administrations have been dictated to by the brain trust of Wall street with purely selfish interests at heart rather than the welfare of our country? E. K. S.

STATIC—

Shakes Dishes Off Walls and Stops Clocks.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—[Special.]—An earth shock of sufficient intensity to rattle windows and rafters, shake dishes off the walls, and stop clocks, was felt in Los Angeles and surrounding areas at 12:59 p. m. today. The quake was described as one of an expected series of minor temblors at Carnegie institution seismological laboratory at Pasadena, and was classified there as a mild shock. Reports from Long Beach, Huntington Park, Compton, and South Gate, all of which were hard hit in the earthquake of last March 10, state that today's seismic movement was felt as two shocks, but that little damage was done.

No One Was Injured.

According to Dr. Charles Richter, director of the Carnegie institution laboratory, there was no connection between the stronger shock at San Francisco last night. Dr. Richter said the epicenter of the San Francisco earth movement seemed to be in a region 400 miles north of Los Angeles.

The local shock which caused a weaving feeling to occupants of upper stories in downtown office buildings, resulted in the emptying of some buildings, whose panicky workers eddyed about in the streets and created a run on the telephones of public offices and newspapers.

Earthquake drill was held in some of the Los Angeles schools where the movement was felt. Children executed a mass maneuver in which each child followed instructions to dodge quickly under his desk and to stay there until directed by the teacher to emerge. School children were instructed under no circumstances to run out of the school buildings, in fear of falling cornices and architectural ornamentations.

MORGAN PARK STUDENT NAMED TO WEST POINT

Paul O. Franson Jr., who will be graduated in June from the Morgan Park Military academy, has received an appointment to the United States Military academy at West Point, it was announced yesterday. His is the first honor appointment for the Morgan Park academy in the history of the school.

PAUL O. FRANSON JR.

Franson has passed his physical examination and his scholastic grades are among the upper ten of his class as required by officials of West Point. He is the son of Maj. and Mrs. Paul O. Franson, 11195 Lothair avenue. Maj. Franson is now assigned to the Morgan Park academy as professor of military science and tactics.

Young Franson has attended school in places where his father has been assigned to duty, including Columbus, Ga.; Lawrence, Ind.; Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; the Philippine islands; Montgomery, Ala.; Cheyenne, Wyo., and Fort Leavenworth, Kas.

EDDIE GUERIN, CONVICTED WITH 'BIG TIM,' SHOT

Eddie Guerin, 40 years old, who served a term in Leavenworth prison with "Big Tim" Murphy, since slain, for conspiracy in the Dearborn street station robbery of 1921, was shot in the left thigh last night by an unidentified gunman.

The assassin trapped Guerin in Peter Montell's tailor shop at 1653 Kimball avenue, chased him into the street, and fired four bullets at him. Guerin fell, and the gunmen fled, evidently believing him dead. Guerin later told police he did not know the man, but that he probably was an enemy he had made while in the speakeasy business.

At the time of the shooting Guerin was moving into a flat in the rear of the Kimball avenue tailor shop, and had stopped for a moment to talk with Montell. Until yesterday Guerin had been living in North Spaulding avenue.

MANSLAUGHTER VERDICT VOTED AGAINST MIDWIFE

Mrs. Barbara Kolar, 2131 West 21st street, mother of six children, was convicted by a jury yesterday in Judge Thomas J. Lynch's Criminal court on a charge of murder by abortion. The jury, however, found her guilty of the lesser count of manslaughter and she faces a sentence of 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary in the event her motion for a new trial is overruled on May 22.

Mrs. Kolar, a midwife, is accused of causing the death of Mrs. Sophie Cirniuk, 2021 West 17th street. The operation was performed on Dec. 7, 1930, and Mrs. Cirniuk died on Feb. 6, 1931. The case was continued thirty-two different times in the Criminal courts until it was finally forced to trial yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Steve Adamowski.

Mrs. Kolar fainted several time during the progress of the trial and again when the jury verdict was returned. The jury deliberated two hours before deciding to give Mrs. Kolar the minimum punishment under the charge.

MRS. H. H. ROGERS, ILL IN WHEEL CHAIR, GETS A DIVORCE AT RENO

Reno, Nev., May 16.—[Special.]—In the basement of the courthouse into which she had been wheeled in a chair Mrs. Marguerite Rogers was granted a divorce today from Col. Henry Huddleston Rogers, Standard Oil official. She was accompanied by a nurse and a physician, who hurried her away as soon as the brief hearing was over.

The case was heard in camera. The testimony and property agreement were sealed.

Mrs. Rogers will leave early tomorrow morning by train for New York accompanied by her nurse and physician.

THREATS TOLD IN HUSBAND'S TRIAL AS WIFE SLAYER

Mrs. Leida Kutz, 4875 North Paulina street, testified yesterday that A. Robert Raymun, former University of Minnesota student who once owned three loop speakeasies, threatened to kill his wife, Leola, on several occasions before she was shot to death in the City Hall Square hotel on Feb. 1. Mrs. Kutz was called as the first state witness in the murder trial of Raymun before Judge Philip L. Sullivan, after a jury qualified for the death penalty had been completed.

Mrs. Nell Rossel, 444 Roslyn place, a friend of the dead woman, was called as a witness by the state. She said that she had met Mrs. Raymun in the loop the day before she was killed.

"She borrowed $15 from me," Mrs. Rossel said, "so that Raymun could pay his hotel bill."

OPEN PARKING LOT FOR TRIBUNE TOWER TENANTS

For the convenience of tenants in Tribune Tower a parking space for automobiles was opened yesterday on East North Water street, just east of the Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co. warehouse. The lot has been covered with cinders and a man in uniform will be on hand during the parking hours, from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. No Sunday or night parking will be permitted. As the facilities are limited to about 150 cars, the policy of "first come, first served" has been adopted.

Tenants of the building have been notified that admission will be by card and that upon request a pass will be issued to them. The new parking space will be maintained during the World's Fair.

"This is an extra service—a gesture of good will—to tenants of Tribune Tower, which we believe will prove a great convenience," said Holmes Onderdonk, manager of the tower.

CROWN POINT'S MAYOR STRIKES FOE IN COUNCIL

Fists flew at the Crown Point, Ind., council meeting Monday evening and yesterday Ald. W. W. Houk appeared before the grand jury to testify against Mayor Vincent Youke. The alderman charged the mayor with malfeasance in office in illegally adjourning the council and "other conduct unbecoming the office of mayor."

The fisticuffs occurred when Ald. Houk presented a motion at the council meeting to impeach the mayor. The mayor then immediately declared the meeting adjourned. Houk and six of the aldermen refused to consider the meeting ended.

The mayor then jumped from his seat and struck Houk. He summoned police and ordered them to clear the council chambers. After a brief struggle against overwhelming numbers Houk and his colleagues departed.

UNARMED DRIVER SHOT IN BATTLE WITH 3 ROBBERS

Edward Bledins, 43 years old, 2431 North Rockwell street, was shot and possibly fatally wounded late yesterday afternoon when he resisted robbery by three young men in front of 831 North Marshfield avenue.

A driver for a beverage company, Bledins had halted his truck to make a delivery when the trio of robbers drove up in an automobile. They ordered him to surrender his money, but Bledins attempted to wrest a pistol from the one nearest him. He was promptly shot in the chest.

The bandits then fled without getting anything. Bledins was taken to the Lutheran Memorial hospital.

An item concerning a strike, following a pay cut in the plant of the Globe rendering plant at Lansing, was published last Saturday. JUDGE RELEASES WIFE OF OFFICIAL FROM SANITARIUM

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday found Mrs. Carrie Manning, 52 years old, 726 Addison street, to be sane and issued a habeas corpus order freeing her from the Pinel sanitarium, 741 Diversey parkway, where she had been confined for several months under the care of Dr. Alexander Hershfield.

Mrs. Manning, in her petition to the court, charged that her husband, Samuel Manning, secretary of the city board of health, had her adjudged insane and confined in order that he might hold control of her property, valued at $50,000.

Judge Trude sent her to the Chicago State hospital for observation two weeks ago. He issued the order freeing her yesterday after two physicians, whom he had assigned to observe Mrs. Manning, told him she is sane.

KELVINATOR

TALK about opportunities! Here is one that has never been duplicated in the 19 years Kelvinator has been building quality electric refrigerators. Now—you can buy a Kelvinator—a full-sized, full-powered, standard 1933 model Kelvinator for only 15 cents a day.

Lowest Price

This generous payment plan, combined with the lowest price in Kelvinator history, brings Kelvinator within the reach of every family. Now—you simply cannot afford not to own a Kelvinator!

Prices May Go Up

The remarkably low price of $98 (installed) may go up at any time. Kelvinator has not cheapened, and will not cheapen the product to meet a low price, therefore, when material costs go up, the price of this Kelvinator goes up.

Standard Model

Powerful Unit

The power plant is the same as is used in the larger Kelvinators. It has abundant power—so much, in fact, that it must operate only about one-third of the time to keep the proper low temperatures. Compare this with small units which must run all the time and you will realize why a Kelvinator costs less to operate and less to maintain.

Notable Features

You will like its many outstanding features—features which contribute so much to its usefulness, its lasting efficiency, and its economical operation.

Things We Might Have Done—But Didn't

We could have offered you a new, untried refrigerator, deliberately built down to this $98 price. We didn't.

We could have adopted a cheaper type of power plant. We didn't. The mechanical unit is of exactly the same type as that of the biggest, highest priced Kelvinator.

We could have used a smaller, less powerful motor and compressor. By running all the time, or most of the time such a power unit would have provided a certain degree of refrigeration. It would have cost us less to build. But it would have cost you a lot more in the long run since a machine that runs only a third of the time will last a lot longer than one that runs continuously. We did not compromise.

We could have built a smaller cabinet, with less insulation. We didn't. This model is full size.

We could have cheapened, substituted, reduced size, power and capacity—to meet a price. We didn't. Instead, we offered you our kind of a refrigerator—a Standard 1933 Kelvinator—at your price.

—KELVINATOR CORPORATION

Temperature Selector, with 8 freezing speeds; large ice capacity; one-piece porcelain interior, with rounded corners for easy cleaning; Keep-Cold Defroster, which permits refrigeration while defrosting; thick, waterproof, indestructible insulation all around; are some of the many features of this fine Kelvinator.

A million dollar Bank—doing SMALL things BIG

Personal LOAN & SAVINGS Bank

We have made the borrowing of small amounts a very simple procedure. Loans of $50 to $5,000 are "set up" on a one-year basis. The entire cost is included in the note, so that the borrower knows exactly how much he has to pay back. There are no "accruing" charges or extras whatsoever during the term of the account.

Suppose you want $300... You get $300 cash. You sign a note for $327.58 and you pay back $327.58—no more. Of course if you pay your loan before maturity we adjust the cost to the time by giving a refund back to you.

Our plan is simple... We know it works. Almost a half million people have made headway when they have borrowed here. We are prepared to meet and to lend to the next half million... Come in

CHINA REPORTED READY TO BURN PEIPING, TIENTSIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 16.—Rumors that the Chinese intend to burn both Peiping and Tientsin when the Chinese find it impossible to hold out further against the Japanese invasion were confirmed by Chinese newspapers tonight. The Chinese defenders are reported to have retreated to a point only 13 miles north of Peiping.

"We must defend Peiping and Tientsin to the utmost of our ability," the China Times said, "but when it is no longer possible to hold them, both cities must be destroyed."

The editorial said that otherwise the Japanese would use the cities as bases for the extension of Japanese military influence to the south toward the Yangtze river, as well as to help in the reëstablishment of a Manchu régime. Occidental interests might help the Japanese for business reasons, it was pointed out. Since China does not intend to become a second India, Annam or Corea, the paper said, the only course is to destroy both cities.

Banks Transfer Money.

The British Kailan mining administration has ordered all mining operations north of Tientsin stopped. The British engineering force and their families have been evacuated to Tientsin. All British engineers employed on the British financed Peiping-Mukden railway have also been ordered to relinquish their posts and go to Tientsin.

Leading universities in Peiping, including the National university, Peiping university, Normal university, and the American Tsinghua Boxer university, are preparing to remove their students, faculties and properties to the south.

The evacuation of the population of Peiping has been speeded up in the belief that a Japanese air attack will soon occur. Seven thousand families have already left.

Town Destroyed by Bombs.

Three Japanese destroyers appeared today at the town of Chapoo, on Hangchow bay, south of Shanghai. After a few sailors had landed and inspected the locality, the warships withdrew to Shanghai.

Dispatches from Tientsin report that Japanese troops in the Lwan river area entered the city of Tangshan. The Chinese Cheehsin cement works, one of the largest in the country, as well as most of the town of Tangshan, was destroyed by a Japanese bombardment.

Gen. Ho Ying-chin, Chinese commander at Peiping, is reported to be transferring his headquarters to Paotingfu, south of Peiping. Japanese planes are flying over Paotingfu.

JAPAN TO HOLD NAVAL GAMES IN SOUTHERN SEAS

TOKIO, May 16.—(AP)—The navy office formally announced today that the 1933 grand maneuvers will be held in "seas south of Japan," beginning early in June.

The first two months will be devoted to tactical exercises by separate units. Fleet maneuvers proper will begin early in August, with practically the entire navy participating under the personal command of the emperor. The exercises will terminate with a grand review off Yokohama Aug. 25.

Admiral Mineo Osumi, naval minister, has explained that "there is nothing significant" in the fact that the maneuvers are being held in waters south of Japan.

"Such a big event cannot be staged on the sea of Japan owing to the lack of space," he said.

Wales Uses New Luxury Plane for First Time

LONDON, May 16.—(AP)—The prince of Wales used his new airplane for the first time today when he flew from Windsor to Cardiff City, where the investiture of the order of St. John of Jerusalem was held. His newest ship—he now owns four—is a monoplane and accommodates ten passengers. It is one of the most luxurious planes in the world and has a maximum speed of 160 miles an hour. The plane is equipped with concealed parachutes which fall on a passenger's lap when an emergency button is pressed.

One Slain as Presidential Campaign Opens in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, May 16.—(AP)—Reports reached here today of the first bloodshed in the presidential campaign just getting under way. One man was killed and two injured when a demonstration in favor of Gen. Lazaro Cardenas, who is seeking government party nomination, was interrupted in Acubaya, near here, last night.

Cost 85 Cents to Put Rheumatic Cripple Back to Work Again

Now Joyously Happy

While all his family looked on in astonishment and all his friends were amazed, one man took the pain, swelling and agony from his tortured joints in 48 hours and did it with that famous rheumatic prescription known to pharmacists as Allenru.

This powerful yet safe remedy is wonderful—its action is almost magical where uric acid and other circulating poisons cause agony and pain—the excess uric acid poison starts to leave your body in 24 hours.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, May 16.—Jazz music is staging a remarkable comeback in soviet Russia after years of prohibition. Visitors here looking for old Russian folk music of the Balalaika and guitar must hunt far and wide.

In cafés, restaurants, and amusement parks they find orchestras playing Russian versions of American jazz songs in response to popular demand. One visitor scoured Tiflis to find an orchestra playing old Georgian music, which is noted for its wild harmony. He could only find jazz pieces. He finally bribed an orchestra to play some of their native music.

For years the communist party frowned on jazz as being bourgeois and nonproletarian. Now they admit it is an authentic and valuable form of music. They still regard the fox trot and other forms of modern dancing as being bourgeois and as a result few real Russian cafés have dancing. Each of the big hotels in Moscow has its own jazz band and dancing floor, presumably for the sake of foreigners and tourists.

CUBAN SOLDIERS PUT IN FIELD TO ROUND UP REBELS

HAVANA, May 16.—(AP)—The Cuban government today put infantry, cavalry, artillery and machine gun units in the field in a determined effort to round up rebel bands operating in Santa Clara province, 210 miles southeast of the capital. A troop train carrying two companies of infantry left Havana today for the scene of the disturbances to assist other units of the army in the rebal hunt.

The "bandit" group which appeared near Sancti Spiritus Sunday and later at Moron and Taguasco is being sought by cavalry from Santa Clara and Camaguey.

The town of Sancti Spiritus, in Santa Clara province, communciated to the capital its apprehensions that armed rebels gathered seven miles away were planning to attack the town. The alleged attackers were said to be about 300 men. A band of rebels attacked the Havana-Santiago train early today while it was passing through Santa Clara province. After firing several shots the rebels escaped.

SOUTH AFRICA TO VOTE TODAY ON COALITION RULE

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, May 16.—(AP)—South Africa goes to the polls tomorrow to endorse or renounce its 10 weeks' old coalition government after one of the quietest election campaigns in the country's history. The government, with 78 house of assembly members out of a total of 150, appeared likely to gain an overwhelming mandate.

Alliance of the two major parties, Nationalists and South Africans, under the premiership of Gen. J. B. Hertzog, more than two months ago removed virtually all contentious issues from the campaign.

Both the premier and Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, deputy premier and South African leader, pledged themselves to a policy of non-racialism and national reconstruction.

THREE SEIZED IN HOLDUP.

Three bandits were arrested yesterday as they tried to rob John Mistro, 11618 Prairie avenue, at 110th street and Michigan avenue. They are Peter Flores, Ignas Hernandez, and Louis Bazgues, all of Blue Island.

A bequest of $20,000 goes to the wardens and vestrymen of St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal church at Hazardville, Conn. A similar legacy goes to the Travelers Aid association after the death of a servant, Helen McCann, who receives the income for life.

The widow, Mrs. Ella Marion Sexton, receives a $20,000 bequest, the residuary estate, amounting to $592,365 and $400,000 in trust. At her death the trust fund is to be divided among various charities.

NAVAL OFFICERS REVIEW PLANES AT GREAT LAKES

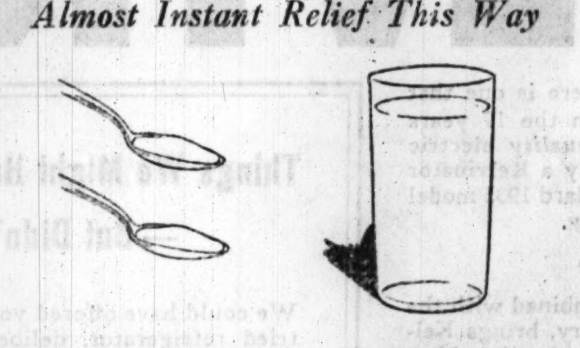
The annual inspection of the air base at the Great Lakes Naval Training station was held yesterday, with the base's squadron of sixteen planes going through several hours of maneuvers.

The maneuvers included bombing, machine gunning, landing, acrobatics, and radio communication. The great lakes squadron tied for first place in the national inspections last year.

In the inspection party yesterday were Capt. Alexander Sharp, Commander C. T. Osborn, and Lieut. W. G. Tomlinson, all of the bureau of navigation, navy department, Washington, D. C., and Capt. Halsey Powell, chief of staff at great lakes.

SIMPLE TO GET RID OF ACID STOMACH NOW

Almost Instant Relief This Way



TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

Rodeo's Grub Table Not So Crowded Now.

Milt Hinkle, a trustful cowboy-manager, who recently brought the Star Ten Ranch Wild West show to the Coliseum in Chicago for an extended stay, was on his way home to Texas last night sorrowfully reflecting that the ways of Texas hospitality are not for the hangers-on of South Wabash avenue.

The retirement of the manager left 75 cowboys, cowgirls and other employés stranded here. Under an agreement with Charles R. Hall, superintendent of the Coliseum, they will carry on their steer wrestling, broncho busting and bareback riding until Saturday night in the hope of getting enough money to pay for the passage of themselves and their horses back home.

His Confiding Nature.

Reports that Hinkle had taken part of the gate money with him when he left were said to be untrue by Hall. He loaned Hinkle $32, he said, enough for railroad fare. The cowboy-manager's troubles were a result of his confiding nature and generous spirit, Hall declared.

On the first night of the stay here, Hall said, Hinkle noted a couple of seedy hangers-on about the Coliseum who seemed hungry. He invited them in to the grub table in the Coliseum where the 75 performers ate three times a day.

"The result might have been forecast by a knowing Chicagoan but it was startling to Hinkle," said Hall. "In a few nights there were 150 to 200 persons sitting down to eat each time the table was set. The food bill nearly ruined Hinkle, but he was too soft hearted to protest."

Harden Their Hearts.

Necessity hardened the hearts of the remaining cowboys and cowgirls last night. With the thought in their minds that some of them might have to ride horseback to Texas, Arizona and points west if expenses were not kept down, the present managers of the show put into use a harsh city expression which hitherto had not existed in their vocabulary.

To all the hobos who appeared to sit down at the dinner table the cowboys growled, "Scram!"

PETER HOFFMAN CAR IN COLLISION; ONE IS KILLED

Ex-Sheriff's Family Shaken Up in Crash.

One man was killed and the wife, two daughters and a granddaughter of former Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman were shaken up in a collision last evening between a truck and the Hoffman car at Carpenter and Wolf roads, Berkeley.

The victim was Bruno Bertucci, 51 years old, of 268 West 24th street. In the truck with him were Vincent Indovina, 21, 259 West 24th street; Michael Gargilo, 40, 302 West 24th street; John Giomingo, 28, 264 West 24th street, and Nicholas Chirnontio, 21, 336 West 24h street. The Hoffman car carried Mrs. Peter M. Hoffman, Mrs. Edith Kinder, wife of Mayor George Kinder of Des Plaines; Mrs. Evelyn Johnson, and Mrs. Johnson's daughter, Nettie, 3 years old.

Hoffman Family Uninjured.

Police said that the truck, driven by Indovina, was proceeding east in Carpenter road, and that Indovina tried to pass the Hoffman car, also going east, and driven by Mrs. Kinder, just as she was turning left into Wolf road. A crash resulted and the truck overturned. Bertucci was thrown to the pavement and killed. His companions were slightly hurt. The Hoffman automobile was only slightly damaged, and the occupants unhurt.

This death and three others increased the Cook county motor toll to 340 since Jan. 1. The other victims:

Mrs. Johanna Foray, 41 years old, 13336 Buffalo avenue. Died in her home of injuries received May 8 in an automobile accident at Sturgis, Mich.

Price Mayo, 71 years old, Negro, 1415 Washburne avenue. Died in the county hospital. He was struck Monday by an automobile at Roosevelt road and Clinton street.

Mrs. Minnie Lange, 70 years old, of Thornton. Died last night in Ingalls Memorial hospital, Harvey. She was found unconscious in Ridge road in front of her home during a heavy rain last Wednesday night. It is believed she was hit by an auto.

Freed by Jury, Ten Arrested.

Immediately after a coroner's jury yesterday had exonerated Anthony Morello, 1511 East 61st street, of blame for an accident in which Jacqueline Borgan, 4 years old, 6067 Harper avenue, was killed, police arrested him for manslaughter. The arrest was ordered by Capt. William H. Killeen of Woodlawn station. The girl was fatally injured May 8 while riding a tricycle on the sidewalk in front of her home. Police asserted that Morello backed his car upon the sidewalk, striking Jacqueline. The inquest through which he was exonerated was conducted by Deputy Coroner S. F. Vyzral.

George Messner, 23 years old, 4449 Malden street, died yesterday in Sherman hospital, Elgin, of injuries suffered on Monday when his car collided with a truck near Bloomingdale.

NEW GRANT PARK DRIVE TO HONOR ILLINOIS WOMEN

Plans for the dedication of a new driveway in Grant park in tribute to Illinois women are being completed by Mrs. Paul J. Wimsey, 7020 Jeffery avenue, chairman of the Illinois Women's memorial. Mrs. Wimsey is the wife of the assistant state treasurer.

The driveway, which leads from Leif Ericson drive to the Adler planetarium, is to be called Achsah Bond drive as a tribute to Mrs. Shadrach Bond, wife of the first governor of Illinois. A suitable marker will be erected. The dedication will take place during A Century of Progress.

Funds for the marker are being contributed by clubwomen throughout the state.

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

An exhibition of paintings and sculpture valued at $75,000,000 will be ready for visitors to the World's Fair when Art institute opens on May 23, it was announced yesterday by Robert G. Harshe, director. A preview of the exhibition will be held for lenders of the works of art, some 200 individuals and 27 galleries, on the afternoon of May 26 by the trustees and governing members of the institute.

The building proper will be open to the public free of charge, but there will be a charge of 25 cents for the Century of Progress exhibition on the second floor. The famous "Portrait of the Painter's Mother" by James A. McNeill Whistler will arrive on May 29. Among the masterpieces to be exhibited will be works of Titian, El Greco, Van Dyck, Rubens, Hals, Rembrandt, and many others.

Denmark's contribution to the fair will consist of Georg Jensen hand made silver, Royal Copenhagen porcelain, made in the potteries founded in 1779 by Queen Mathilde, and Tonder lace made by needlewomen of traditional skill in a village of Jutland. P. B. Nelson, chairman of the American-Denmark committee, said the Danish exhibit would not match others in size but would be representative of the fineness and enduring nature of the country's handiwork.

The band of the Chicago Board of Trade post, American Legion, which holds the national Legion championship, has been selected to play at the opening ceremonies of the fair on May 27. Armin H. Hand, the director, is a son of John F. Hand, who directed a band at the opening of the Columbian exposition in 1893.

The flower show in the Horticultural hall, Northerly island, will be opened on the first day of the fair, May 27. North shore estates and iris fanciers of the central states will provide the flowers for the opening display, which will continue to June 8, after which changes will be made weekly. A varied assortment of gardens will be displayed in the outdoor section.

The California flower festival of San Leandro is sponsoring a special train to Chicago for the exposition. The train will arrive on June 14, bringing several California notables and a great supply of blossoms for the California flower festival week, June 16 to 20.

Construction work has been started by the Chicago Rapid Transit company on a new and enlarged station at Roosevelt road—the World's Fair station of the "L" lines. With these improvements the company will be able to accommodate 22,000 persons an hour at the three stations near the main entrance to the fair, including the 22d street and 18th street stations, Harley Johnson, general manager, said. The company has also let contracts for the repainting of all loop stations.

The prehistoric monsters of the Sinclair Oil company, which attracted 75,000 visitors at Fort Wayne, were unloaded yesterday for the company's exhibit at the fair. These replicas of the giants that roamed the earth in the geologic periods when oil was formed will be shown in a setting of huge rock formations, like the beds where the fossils were found. They include the dinosauri, with the tyrannosaurus, most formidable of the species, and the saber toothed tiger. They are mechanically operated and rise on their mighty hind legs and roam about.

FETE IS PLANNED HERE FOR ITALY'S ARMADA OF AIR

A banquet at which leaders of Chicago will be hosts has been arranged for Saturday, June 10, in honor of Gen. Italo Balbo, minister of aviation for Italy, Amadeo di Savoia, duc d'Aosta, Gen. Aldo Pellegrini, flight commander, and the 100 Italian flyers who will bring 24 huge flying boats across the Atlantic for the World's Fair.

The air armada will leave Rome on June 1 and arrive here on June 8 or 9. The banquet, in the Stevens hotel, will climax the civic welcome planned for them.

Prince Ludovico Spada Potenziani, Italian commissioner to the fair, and Count Augusto Rosso, Italian ambassador to the United States, will fly from Washington to Montreal and come from there to Chicago with the flyers. Former Judge John A. Sbarbaro is general chairman of the banquet committee.

WORLD'S FAIR STICKERS READY FOR MOTORISTS

BY HAL FOUST.

"Come to the World's Fair."

This message will be carried throughout the country on automobile windshield stickers approved yesterday by the management of A Century of Progress. The stickers will be distributed through the Fair's official parking stations, information booth's, and tourist camps. They may also be obtained at THE TRIBUNE public service offices.

"It's fitting that motorists should spread this word of welcome," said

Come to the World's Fair

Maj. E. S. J. Irvine, director of transportation for A Century of Progress, "since we estimate that 70 per cent of the visitors from out of town will arrive by automobile."

Price of the Stickers.

The stickers will sell for 1 cent each. The price by mail is two for 5 cents or one for 3 cents. The plan, originated by THE TRIBUNE, is not a money making scheme.

The sticker is seven and a half by five inches, small enough so as not to interfere with the vision of the driver. It is decorative, with marine blue letters on a light lemon background. It carries only five words, "Come to the World's Fair," printed in bold letters as legible as the eight column streamer line of a newspaper.

Stickers to Travel Far.

With the touring season just opening, the stickers will travel far in large numbers. At this time of the year, every week-end with good weather finds between 100,000 and 150,000 automobiles radiating from the city for distances ranging from 50 to 350 miles.

"Visitors to the Fair will also want to drive away with the stickers for their friends to see," said Major Irvine. "We estimate there will be a million out of town cars coming to the city for A Century of Progress during the next five months."

PUBLISHERS FAVOR BILL PUNISHING MISLEADING ADS

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—Publishers and advertisers are urgently favoring a bill recently introduced by Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.], himself a publisher, to punish by a $1,000 fine or five years' imprisonment persons inserting false or misleading advertisements in interstate commerce or sent through the mails, or persons broadcasting such advertisements by radio.

The measure is essentially a backfire against even more drastic regulations embodied in the pending securities bill and the proposed amendment to the food and drugs act, under which advertising matter would have to be approved in Washington before publication.

The Capper bill is based on a measure sponsored by the trade publication, Printer's Ink, which has been passed by twenty-four states, including Illinois. The bill makes the originator and not the publisher of the advertisement responsible.

"There is an inclination to subject advertising to government censorship in order that minority abuses may be eliminated," said Senator Capper today. "This would be deadly. Carried to its ultimate conclusion such a policy would cut advertising volume 50 per cent. Federal prosecution of dishonest advertisers, on the other hand, could easily be a powerful aid to righteousness in the printed word."

SIGHTS AT FAIR ARE DESCRIBED TO 1,200 WOMEN

Twelve hundred women crowding the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman yesterday heard Rufus Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, give details of the wonders to be seen when the exposition opens. The women are attending the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs. Other speakers were Mrs. Martin K. Northam, Mrs. Wallace C. Combs, Mrs. Anne Faulkner Oberndorfer, and Kenneth Bangs.

Dr. Albert Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, will address the convention this morning on "Imperishable Ideals of Citizenship." This afternoon luncheons and conferences will occupy the time of the delegates, and open house will be held in the federation headquarters. This evening a humorous review of the last 100 years in women's organization will be presented. It was written by Mrs. George W. Plummer and directed by Mrs. H. G. Jones.

Election of officers will be held tomorrow, the closing day of the convention.

Century Club Housewarming to Be May 31

All Day Celebration Will Be Held.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SOCIETY probably will be out in force for the opening of A Century of Progress on Saturday, the 27th, but it certainly will be out en masse for the housewarming on May 31 of the Century club. Only members and their families will be eligible, but most of our socialites are members and those who aren't will wish they were when they read about the plans for the housewarming.

Robert McCormick Adams is chairman of the house committee that has planned the opening party, an all day one, and his confreres in this undertaking have been Howard F. Gillette, George Dickson and Willoughby G. Walling.

The latch-string will be out at 10 o'clock in the morning and from noon until 2 a buffet luncheon will be served; high tea from 4 to 6 o'clock, and a special birthday dinner with continental service from 7 on. The staff of the club has been selected very carefully and familiar faces will greet the members when they visit the club for the first time.

"Tony" Esser of the Casino will be maitre d'hotel; "Frenchy" of the Ambassador will mix salads and prepare chafing dish foods; "Pete," loaned by the Onwentsia, will have charge of the south solarium, and Kathryn, who has set many a curl for debut and assembly halls, will be in charge of the powder room.

More Reservations for "Paris" Ball.

Just above we wrote "society probably will be out in force for the opening of A Century of Progress," but we were forgetting that the gay Bal des Quat'z Arts, the inaugural ball of A Century of Progress, was on the opening night or we would have left out that word "probably," for every one apparently is going to the ball.

More and more dinner parties are being arranged each day; Mr. and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour have made reservations for a party of 16, and others who just recently planned to go are Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, Thomas Seyster, the Willett N. Gorhams, Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Wegg, and the Irving Florsheims. All of "Paris" at the fair will be open for the ball, including the cafés, bars, shops, shows, dance pavilions, and the swimming pool, where Olympic champions will give exhibitions.

The price of a "passport" includes supper, to be served from 8 until 11, and breakfast from 2 a. m. until—well, until the ball is over, and dancing.

Y. W. C. A. to Aid Visitors to Fair.

According to the Century of Progress program announced yesterday by the board of the Y. W. C. A., lost children and grownups will be the least of the worries of World's Fair officials. Feeling its responsibilities as a national woman's organization, the association has prepared to make itself a hospitality and service center for women visitors to the Fair with an elaborate system of guides its greatest service.

Mrs. Frank P. Hixon yesterday accepted the chairmanship of the hospitality committee with such lieutenants as Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, president of the Chicago association; Mrs. Howard Fenton, chairman of the publicity committee; Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey, and Mrs. Philip S. Post.

The guide service is the special chore of Mrs. Clifford W. Barnes, who is chairman of the association's service bureau. In working it out she is combining service to unemployed girls in Chicago with service to women visitors at the Fair. Already she has a corps of 50 attractive, intelligent, and capable young women . . . called the Y. W. C. A. aids . . . going through an intensive training course on the Fair and the city itself that they may be able to interpret both to out of town visitors.

Another Y. W. C. A. service this summer is to be tours for younger girls . . . these in coöperation with Y. M. C. A. tours for boys. Twenty-five groups of ten girls each have already registered for a week's visit to the Fair according to this plan. Mrs. Arthur M. Houser Jr. is the chairman. A similar plan is also being worked out for industrial girls through the business and professional department of the Fair, of which Mrs. Hixon is the chairman.

Service Club Will Consider Fair Plans.

At 10 o'clock next Monday morning in the David F. Bremners' apartment at 1430 Lake Shore drive there will

Visits Family of Fiance

Miss Sylvia Beinecke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Beinecke of New York, arrived in Chicago last Saturday to visit the family of her fiance, Thomas Dodd Healy, for three weeks. Miss Beinecke's engagement to Mr. Healy, the son of Mrs. Thomas J. Healy of 5039 Ellis avenue, was announced several weeks ago at a dinner dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Beinecke at the Central Park casino in New York City. The wedding is to take place in the early fall.

Louis E. Laflin Writes Play of Civil War Hero

Depicts Dramatic Life of Col. Ellsworth.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

It was boyhood hero worship that prompted that pioneer Chicagoan, George H. Laflin, to give his son the name of Louis Ellsworth. Today it is that same boyhood interest that has inspired Louis Ellsworth Laflin Jr. to write his latest play, "Ellsworth of the Zouaves."

From Mr. Laflin's Lake Forest workshop comes news of the completion of this three act drama which commemorates an event in early Lake Forest history as well as that famous soldier, Col. Ephraim Elmer Ellsworth, the first officer to die by bullets in the civil war. Along with this announcement also comes the news that the play is to be produced next October by the students of Lake Forest academy.

It is appropriate, indeed, that the academy should be the scene of its "première," since the hero of the story drilled the academy cadets in 1859, and Mr. Laflin attended classes there many years later for a part of his preparatory school training. A week ago consideration was given to the production of the play this June in connection with the diamond jubilee of the academy, but postponement was later agreed upon because of the limited time for casting and rehearsing.

Stephen Peacock, Canada's humorist, will deliver the jubilee convocation speech at the academy the morning of June 17, it was announced yesterday.

"I wrote the play," explained Mr. Laflin, "because of my interest in the academy and Col. Ellsworth's association with it, but more especially, I suppose, because of my grandfather's enthusiasm for the soldier and his career. This is responsible for the name of Ellsworth in our family. There is no relationship as most persons are inclined to suppose."

The first act of "Ellsworth of the Zouaves" occurs in Rockford, the second in Lincoln's law office, and the third in the war office in Washington, then in the Marshall house in Alexandria [Va.] and back to Rockford. Mr. Laflin has portrayed the brilliant, daring career of the civil war colonel.

"Col. Ellsworth was born in Mechanicsville, N. Y., in the days before there was an national militia," Mr. Laflin states. "Every city had only companies of volunteers. Coming from a poor family, Col. Ellsworth never received a formal education but he studied, nevertheless, the tactics of famous generals as well as those of the Zouaves [pronounced 'zoo-ahvz'].

"These were regiments in the French army that derived their name from the Zouaoua tribe of Kabyles in Algeria from whom they were first recruited in 1830. They were distinguished by their peculiar and brilliant uniforms . . . short round and open fronted jackets, baggy red or blue trousers, gaiters, and a tasseled cap or turban . . . as well as by their drills, a short quick step in spirited fashion.

"Adopting these tactics, Col. Ellsworth came to Chicago when he was 19 and organized the U. S. Zouave cadets and with them he later toured the country challenging companies of militia everywhere and beating them one and all. It was at this time in his career that he drilled the cadets at Lake Forest academy and it was also at this time that he fell in love with Carrie Spafford in Rockford who later persuaded him to give up military life for law. Once entered in the Springfield law office of Lincoln and Herndon as an office boy, he won the interest and affection of Lincoln."

All of this Mr. Laflin has incorporated in his play. Then he goes on to show Col. Ellsworth conducting the Lincoln party to Springfield, organizing a Zouave militia of New York firemen at the outbreak of war, and then hauling down the confederate flag over the Marshall house in Alexandria with his own death the result. A lapse of six years returns the final scene of the play to Rockford and Carrie Spafford who mourns her soldier sweetheart but finally marries another.

To finish this play, Mr. Laflin put aside the story account of his wedding trip last summer to Haiti. To his literary credit there also is "The Anxious Bench," a story of his days at Lawrenceville and a dramatization of "Hans Brinker or the Silver Skates."

Good morning!

Now Ronald was a mamma's boy;
His mamma loved him so
That everywhere poor Ronald went
That dame was sure to go.
She followed him with love—and pills
Which down his throat she'd cram,
And Ronald gulped his medicine
As meek as Mary's lamb.
Mom took him to a store one day
A topcoat for to buy,
And lo—a nurse in uniform
Attracted Ronald's eye.
The upshot was he married her
To Mamma's deep distress;
"Without me, that boy's life," Mom said,
"Will be an awful mess!"
They started on their honeymoon
With hearts all in a glow,
But—to Niag'ra Falls, along
With them Mamma did go.
She stayed with them the livelong day
A-chatting gay and bright,
And sat and sat and sat with them
Aye, far into the night.
Then—Ronald coughed! "My son, my son!"
Cried Mamma in high glee.
"I KNEW you never, never COULD Get along without ME. . . .!"
A mustard plaster made she him,
A towel clapped on his dome,
A gargle poured she out for him. . . .
The bride, in wrath, went home!
. . . (Showing lapse of some weeks.)
In Mamma's clutches Ronald moped.
Said Mr. Arnold, "Tush, tush, tush!
This is the bunk, no end!"
And so he did concoct a plot
Of tres diablerie.
The outcome, Readers, you will ken
When the fil-lum you see.
"Out All Night" has its funny spots.
The yarn, though's, pretty thin;
But acting and the di-a-logue
Produce quite oft a grin.

It follows the fortunes of a patriotic, God fearing German-American brewer and his family through happy days when Hoffman's Brew were household words and through sad days after the 18th amendment has closed the brewery.

When the picture opens the Hoffmans have two sons. One is killed in war. The other returns to assist his father in the product of near beer.

Racketeers, headed sadly enough by Joe "Nails" Anderson, the chap who had at one time been Hoffman's star driver, muscle in, and there is a very great deal of trouble to pay. The mobilizing of ex-service men under the leadership of Bill Hoffman to put a quietus on the havoc mongers provides sequences of unusual and exciting activity.

When Mamma Hoffman, believing herself an instrument of God's vengeance, settles one hard boiled customer once and for all—why find the observer who will blame her! It is always such a joy to watch Louise Dresser work!

The picture is excellently acted throughout. It is a timely affair coming, as it does, when a paramount national concern is the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Junior League Considers Members' Finance Strain

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—(AP)—Problems of increasing welfare work and at the same time lessening financial strain on members were taken up today by the Association of Junior Leagues of America. Pratt of New Orleans, association president, said in telling of recent action to temporarily refund dues and meet expenses out of surplus.

Popular and vivacious Miss Betty Offield, squired by John Nash Ott Jr., at a recent dinner dance. Miss Offield, the daughter of the James R. Offields and granddaughter of Mrs. William Wrigley, is wearing one of the Alice in Wonderland combs which are so becoming to youthful faces and make young women who wear them look even younger than they are. Miss Offield's green and white striped linen evening gown was dressed up with a shoulder corsage of orchids.

Families' Woes Balk Wedding of This Couple

Should They Throw Them Aside and Get Married?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

It is better to wait patiently [or impatiently would be putting it more truthfully] for better days, or shut the eyes to fears and warnings and financial obligations to parents and families, and take the plunge?

We're speaking of young couples who have been going together for a couple of years, intending to marry but at the moment more or less fearful of the risk, with salaries uncertain and obligations toward their respective homes pressing heavily. There are hundreds and hundreds of couples answering the description. What should they do? We'll say couples whose ages are around 24, 25, 26.

To be specific, let's take Anne's dilemma. She is 24. She and her sweetheart have been planning on marriage for three years. Both their salaries have declined in the last two years and in each case fathers have lost their jobs and most of their savings, if not all. There are younger members in each family to be helped along.

"As time goes on," Anne explains, "each of us seems more and more saddled with our families' financial responsibilities, and it has seemed so futiles. One day we decide to brave the obstacles and try marriage. We feel we are losing the best years of our lives and had better risk the financial obstacles rather than the tragic denouement of our love.

"The next day we're back, weighted down with fear. What is the solution for couples like us? There must be many more situated exactly as we are. In fact, I know several."

Readers, what is your opinion? Your help is needed. Your advice is courted. Have any of you managed to meet the so-called obstacles in a satisfactory way?

It is a difficult phase through which these young people are passing. Fine young people, as illustrated in their sense of loyalty to parents in their hour of need. Yet, demanding in their hearts their inalienable right to fly from the home nest and set up one of their own.

What is the solution?

Bolero Suit, Basque Bodice Is Paris Departure from Swagger Tailleurs

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Some of the hot weather suits coming out in Paris are a departure from the swagger jacket tailleurs that are so popular, and some of the fashionable women here are choosing them instead of the more popular type. They will be different, you know. In this way the suit with a bolero jacket and a basque blouse, shown today, gets a break, though it is one of the season's oddities, and departs entirely from the usual silhouette.

The skirt has a hip yoke across the front and the two front gores that begin from this yoke flare from about halfway down. At the back Regny puts two chevron shaped bands instead of a hip yoke, and below them four nonflared gores appear in the skirt. The body of the yellow wool jacket is straight and short, with squared corners, and a rope of the material, grass green in color, functions as a collar. The sleeves are bell-shaped, elbow length, and have no under arm seams, being folded over and seamed on top of the arms.

Annual Event to Be Held Tomorrow, Friday.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The owners of thousands of lilac bushes, just bursting into bloom, are urged to pick the blossoms by the armful and send them by steam and electric suburban trains or in autos into Chicago tomorrow morning.

Conductors and commuters are expecting to lend a hand in bringing the fragrant flowers to the seven locations in the loop where they will be picked up and delivered to hundreds of invalids and others in Chicago hospitals or settlements.

Tomorrow and Friday are "share your lilacs" days, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild. Truckloads of the flowers will cheer the wards and clinics of the city, where those who seldom see a flower or patch of lawn can welcome the tangible signs of spring.

Special booths have been provided to receive the flowers and keep them fresh at the Northwestern, Union, La Salle, Illinois Central, and Aurora and Elgin railroad terminals. Booths for the convenience of motorists and others will be open at the main entrances of the Peoples Gas and Commonwealth Edison buildings.

Twenty-five hospitals and welfare centers caring for the poor or bedridden will receive the blooms. Those who have lilac bushes are reminded that picking the first blossoms stimulates richer blooming this spring and greater production of flowers per bush in succeeding years. Many who do not have lilacs have indicated that they will send tulips and other flowers.

Requests from hospitals and welfare agencies for the flowers are greater this year than in previous years in which the custom has been followed. The nurses and workers report that patients are buoyed up and made happier by the simple gifts from Chicagoland gardens.

"Will you kindly put our hospital and clinic again on your list for flowers?" asks Miss Eva Hagan, director of clinics and social service for the Women's and Children's hospital founded by Dr. Mary Thompson. "All of us looked forward each week last summer to your beautiful gifts and they made life much happier here. We shall appreciate a box of flowers especially for the clinic to cheer the relief patients who now fill our rooms."

Mrs. Frank W. Kingsley of Evanston yesterday announced the following divisional chairmen to provide flowers and keep them fresh until delivered to the sick rooms: Chicago and North Western railway: Milwaukee division, Miss Louise Van Norden, Highland Park; Wisconsin division, Mrs. Fred A. Record, Barrington; Illinois Central: Mrs. M. R. Monroe, 7440 Phillips avenue; Burlington: Mrs. K. Edgar Tholin, Downers Grove; Aurora-Elgin: Mrs. J. E. Callendar; North Shore and Skokie Valley; Mrs. A. H. Harrison, Deerfield, and Rock Island: Mrs. Earl B. Mason, 10421 S. Irving avenue, Chicago.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah who considers him just a hick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also shot him. Jane goes to the theater with Jack after Dinah refuses him. Dinah has a caller. He introduces himself as Pierre Baron. He is the tall dark man with the mustache. Dinah promises to have dinner with him next evening.

INSTALLMENT XV.

FRENZIED IMAGININGS.

These formless terrors of the night had gathered about Dinah in a cloud. She was certain now that she had betrayed her friend and herself, that in the morning the police would come. They would have to answer questions.

"And it'll be worse for Jane," she thought. "They're sure to find out that she knew Philip Divine."

A new thought struck her.

"But what did she shoot him with? How could she possibly have had another revolver?"

She knew, and she had known for some time, that Jane had explained so little, had told her almost nothing. What was more, she knew that Jane did not intend to make any further explanation.

"Very well!" said Dinah to herself, "she's got some good reason. It's because she can't tell me. No. I've got to see this Baron. I've got to—not tell her. I've got to manage alone—if I can."

And now she realized that she, who had thought herself so entirely independent, had never before managed anything alone. When, as sometimes it happened, she was in financial difficulties she had written home and got a check. When she was dubious about a dress there was always another girl to consult. No one now.

"If I tell Jane I'm going to see him she'll try to stop me. And maybe what she said was true. Maybe he does like me. Like me so much that I can keep him from telling any one he saw us. I've got to try."

It was long before she was able to sleep; and afterwards she looked back upon that night as a sort of abyss that cut off her old life from her new one. It was almost as if she could look back on her old self, standing on the brink of the land forever left behind; a little pretty laughing thing, that girl who had gone, without a second thought, to the drug store with Jane that summer evening and by going had crossed into another world darkened with monstrous shadows.

She and Jane waked at the same moment in the morning when the alarm clock rang, and it seemed to Dinah that she saw on her friend's face the same look of somber resolution she fancied her own wore. She was mistaken. The soft colors and contours of youth are not so easily marred. She looked her usual self when she went down to breakfast; the prettiest girl, young Fiske thought, that he had ever seen; the gentle, innocent face of an angel.

"But she's not an angel," he thought. "She's a doll. There's no understanding or kindness in her."

She smiled at him, the sort of smile impossible to misunderstand, the absent minded, polite, aloof smile of one who wishes to be left alone. He and Jane had talked about Dinah last night. Jane had spoken seriously, almost fervently, of her friend's fine qualities, and he had listened with a heavy heart. No doubt she had all those excellences, that generosity, that loyalty, that innate simplicity; but they were not for him.

So he returned her smile with one of equal politeness, but the absent mindedness he could not achieve. He was miserable; he was angry at her for her capricious change towards him. Yet she remained that ideal girl for whom he wished to work and succeed, to whom he wished to give fur coats and diamonds.

"She's not thinking of me at all," he said to himself. "She's forgotten that I exist."

That was true enough. Dinah was talking to Jane with animation about anything that came into her head, anything that might keep Jane from suspecting her secret purpose and her secret dread.

Neither of them bought a newspaper on the way to the subway that morning. And each of them bought one the moment she was alone. The murder of Philip Divine was still a front page affair, and now there was more direct allusion to the "woman of mystery."

"Friends of the murdered man have given the police important information about the exotic Titian haired beauty who is known to have played an important rôle in the life of Broadway's favorite playboy. Sensational revelations are expected within the next few hours."

This caused the unhappy little Dinah a new anguish. What if the police arrested this woman and accused her of the murder?

"Then Jane and I would have to come forward," she thought. "We couldn't let that happen."

She entered the office so unhappy, so troubled that it seemed to her her guilt, her remorse, her dread must be plain upon her face. Yet no one seemed to see; and that was somehow worse. She felt herself isolated, cut off from the rest of the world, which had no such horrible secret to conceal. She thought now that it would be almost a relief to see Baron—who knew.

How much he knew, or guessed, she could not surmise, but it was certain he knew that she and Jane had come from that house.

"I don't think I care if he does tell," she said to herself. "It can't be kept quiet forever."

Murder will out.

She set to work at her typing and the keys clicked that atrocious refrain, "Murder will out."

Suddenly, somewhere, somehow, the heavy hand of justice would fall upon her or upon Jane. Murder will out; they could not escape.

A feverish impatience possessed her. She longed for Pierre Baron to telephone—she wanted, longed to see him and find out definitely what he knew, whom he suspected, and what he meant to do about it. All morning she waited, starting every time the telephone rang; and he did not telephone.

"O, what's he doing?" she thought. "Why did he say he'd ring up?"

In her growing confusion and distress she found it impossible to remember what she had said to him, what fatal words she might have spoken. As for his words, when she recalled them now, they seemed the most preposterous fantasy. She was pretty; she could not help knowing that. But that one glimpse of her face, seen by the light of a street lamp, could so overwhelm a man like Pierre Baron was incredible. No; he had been playing with her for some purpose of his own.

And for what purpose? Had she said whatever he had meant to make her say? Had she betrayed herself and her friend?

And now a new and paralyzing fear seized her. Baron had not rung her up; nothing had happened to her. But what about Jane? Perhaps Jane had already been arrested.

It was after twelve and she knew that Jane went out to lunch between twelve and one, like herself; there was no use in trying to reach her now. She must wait.

She could eat nothing. As she sat in the crowded restaurant horrible little pictures rose in her mind; Jane in a cell, Jane proud, cool and nonchalant, but with fear in her eyes; Jane handcuffed, being shamefully taken away; Jane cut off from her and the rest of the world.

At a quarter past one she slipped out of the office and downstairs to the lobby, where there was a booth. She rang up Jane's office and asked, with a haste she could not conceal, for Miss Rosslyn.

It was unthinkable that Jane should ever be fifteen minutes late.

"Do you? When do you expect her back, please?" asked Dinah.

"If you care to leave a message," said the other.

"Yes. Please tell her to call up Dinah—Miss Allen—the first moment she gets in. It's very urgent."

"I'll be sure to tell her as soon as she comes," said the other.

BY MARY MEADE.

In your dashes through household departments and past kitchen equipment counters about town, have you stopped yet to pick up a bowing acquaintance with waterless cooking utensils.

Not if you were dashing too speedily. For then you may have taken them for pressure cookers, though the earmarks are quite different, as is the way in which they do their job of cooking.

Most of the waterless cooking utensils on the market right now are made of aluminum and equipped with steel bases. They come in a number of sizes and do their work either on top of the stove or in the oven. This aluminum makeup, by the way, conducts the heat well and makes an easy cooker to care for. On the other hand, there are enamel cookers which call for a little more water to keep foods from burning, since enamel seems to conduct heat a little less evenly than does the aluminum cousin.

And now I can hear gasps. What!—a waterless cooking utensil needs water? And the answer is—it does! The name is a bit of a misnomer, perhaps, though much less water is needed than in plain open kettle cooking with a thin sauce pan. A little water is always left on vegetables when we wash them and this adds some moisture. Then, most of these cookers advise us to add two or three tablespoons of water to the food before starting the cooking.

As for the process of cooking, it is really done by steam—but not by steam under pressure, as is the case with pressure cookers. This steam forms when the moist food and the little added water are heated, but the temperature of this steam is only 212 degrees F., the temperature of boiling water. Our waterless cooking utensils should be equipped with tight fitting lids which keep in the steam to cook the food. Also we usually find them with a couple of inset pans and a rack upon which to set them.

But now the big question. If we don't have steam under pressure we can't cook any faster than we would in a pan on top of the stove, can we? And the answer is—no. Waterless cooking utensils don't claim to save a great deal of time. But they do save tremendously on fuel! Once the cooker is heated and the steam is forming inside, we can set the cooker on the heavy metal base and turn the heat very low. You'll find that foods cook almost as fast as if the burner were going full blast.

And the jolly thing about this metal base is that it spreads the heat evenly over the cooker bottom and keeps the food from burning. By putting it directly over the heat we would run the risk of working up too much steam, having it escape—and getting burned food for our trouble! And in one way this base acts as a time saver—taking care of the food and doing away with pot watching.

Now, what's to be cooked? Meats, a good many vegetables, fruits, desserts, and like foods are all customers. As a rule, though, carrots, summer squash, sweet corn and new turnips cooked in one of the inset pans turn out better than new peas, spinach or onions, old turnips and such strong foods. This is because cooking green foods with tight lids sometimes tends to give us a darkish color. Some folks add soda, you've probably noticed, to keep the green, but this isn't a very good stunt. Soda, we've learned, destroys vitamins and sometimes even gives a sticky, unpleasant feel to the food. And as for the strong flavored vegetables—these are better cooked without a lid, where the air can carry away a part of the strong odors.

Those inset pans, by the way, don't have to take part in the program. We can use the cooker bottom—and do, usually, in cooking meats. But as a rule the pans are a little easier to serve foods from and to clean. I find that meats should be seared first in the bottom of the heated cooker, then about 4 tablespoons of water added and the meat cooked slowly till tender. Gravy may then be made right in the cooker bottom.

The big advantage with these cookers—or with pressure cookers, for that matter—is that a whole dinner may be taking care of itself all over one low burner—meat in the bottom, vegetables and perhaps a dessert in the pans on the rack. For instance, here's a combination that bubbles merrily away while we tend to affairs elsewhere:

New potatoes [cooked with pot roast].
Creamed carrots.
Steamed chocolate pudding.

The pot roast can start cooking first, then, later, the potatoes should be slid down around it in the bottom and the carrots and pudding put in the pans and placed above. Allow for the vegetables the usual time needed when they are cooked in a sauce pan.

And, finally, if you're planning to do canning in frequent but moderate amounts this summer, you should find a waterless cooking utensil an asset. It will take about the same time to process cans of food as it would in an ordinary water bath. You'll want the cans about half covered with water during the process. This water should be kept boiling; but, even at that, with the tight lid and heavy base, you will be saving fuel.

Century Club Housewarming to Be May 31

All Day Celebration Will Be Held.

be a regular meeting of the Service club, at which it will be decided whether or no the Service club will take any active part in A Century of Progress. During the winter, under the leadership of Mrs. George Gaylord Olmsted Jr. [Jane Trude], the club has saved the Red Cross $800 by maintaining a table of volunteer workers.

Those who have sewed regularly are Miss Alice Bremner, Miss Helen Marie Castle, Mrs. Edward Erickson, Miss Nancy Traylor, Miss Barbara Graf, Mrs. Walter Crawford, Miss Mary Ruden, Miss Caryl Bloomingston, and Miss Isabel Gordon. Mrs. John Dern, the president; Mrs. Frank S. Sims, and Miss Elizabeth Walsh have also devoted a good deal of time to the table.

St. Luke's Board Holds Spring Meeting.

So smartly gotten up were the 26 members of the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital who attended the spring meeting and buffet luncheon held yesterday at Mrs. A. Watson Armour's apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive that the party amounted to a sort of preview for the fashion show the women were planning for next fall. Oct. 19 is the date and the Stevens hotel the place that were decided some time ago but yesterday all sorts of new ideas were proposed to make next fall's showing the best ever.

Mrs. John W. Gary, president, gave a "pep" talk that rivaled any professional sales manager's "spiel" and each member left determined to work all summer on her particular job. Mrs. Armour and Mrs. Philip L. Reed have the job of selling the boxes; Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed will line up next season's débutantes to act as mannequins; Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor and Mrs. I. Newton Perry will solicit the exhibiting shops; Mrs. Perry and Mrs. John C. Pitcher will see that the show is publicized; Mrs. Sterling Morton will be in charge of the ticket sales; Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland and one of her daughters, Miss Beatrice Borland, and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, will arrange the supper; and Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr. and Mrs. John B. Drake Jr. and all the other board members will be busy arranging the program booklet.

Jam at Tea Table After Musical.

Teasing husbands sometimes call tea parties "tea fights" and that was almost what the tea at the Arts club that followed the lovely musical yesterday afternoon amounted to, so anxious were all the 300 women to get their tea or coffee and sandwiches and cakes.

Not that they really fought—we do not mean that—but turn loose in a room 300 women determined to partake of refreshments that are being served from one long table and there is bound to be quite a bit of pushing and elbowing. It was a very successful affair, however, and every one there was enthusiastic about the delightful program given by the professional musician members, Ruth Hanak, Helen Abbott Byfield, Amy Neill, Heniot Levy, Louise Harrison Slade, and Cara Verson.

A few who were there were Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. C. Barney Goodspeed, Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Edward E. Vincent, Mrs. Andrew Sherriff, Mrs. Samuel M. Rinaker, the Clarence Houghs, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. Otho F. Ball, Miss Gene Bucklin, Mrs. Welch Dickinson, Mrs. Helen Walton, Miss Marie Rozet and her sister, Mrs. Prescott Hunt, Miss Harriet Monroe, Mrs. Leonard A. Busby and her daughter, Miss Janet Busby; Mrs. William S. Ennis, Mr. and Mrs. Van Wagenen Alling and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Brown.

This evening at 7:30 a dozen or so of Robert Hall McCormick's close friends will enjoy his hospitality at a dinner that he is giving for Prince and Princess Vassili, who are here from Cincinnati with Prince and Princess Rostislav.

The F. Thomas Morrises of Winnetka are to be congratulated upon having two such talented children. Their son, Seymour, has made an enviable reputation as composer and lyricist for the Triangle during the four years he has spent at Princeton university, and now his "little sister," Miss Mary Louise Morris, who made her debut last autumn, is making a name for herself at Sarah Lawrence college, where she not only is president of the freshman class but was recently elected to the student council, and to cap it all has been made city editor of the Sarah Lawrence College newspaper. While she is majoring in journalism, Miss Morris is also interested in contemporary drama.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris are going to be in Princeton for the commencement program, which ends June 20, when the students receive their diplomas. Miss Morris will join them there and return with her parents to spend the summer in their charming home on Westmoor road, where they expect many of their friends to drop in during A Century of Progress. Seymour and several of his classmates will be off for Europe, "traveling light," as young men like to do, to spend two months touring around before coming home to develop into business men.

Invitations have been issued by the auxiliary board of the Children's Memorial hospital for a tea next Tuesday which will open an exhibit of things in miniature for the benefit of the hospital. The exhibit, arranged by Mrs. James Ward Thorne, will be in the Ackermann galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue, and will include diminutive rooms completely furnished, peep shows and dioramas.

Take Boxes for Thomas Concert.

Giuseppe Castruccio, the Italian consul general, and Mrs. Castruccio, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Joseph B. Long, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, and Mrs. F. Edson White are a few of those who have taken boxes for the concert John Charles Thomas is to give Sunday afternoon at the Auditorium for the benefit of the Italian Woman's club charity fund.

Mr. Thomas is arriving in town Sunday morning just in time for the concert. On Saturday evening he is to sing in Ann Arbor in the world première of "Merry Mount," an opera by Hanson, an American composer.

Miss Eliza Campbell of the Pearson left Monday for the east to sail on the 26th to spend the summer abroad. While she is in Paris she will be the guest of Mrs. Owen Aldis, who sailed last week to return to her home after a stay in Chicago which was extended because of a broken leg suffered soon after her arrival.

The George W. Blossoms, seniors and juniors, have been slowly drifting back to Chicago from California, where they spent the winter. Mr. Blossom arrived a week or so ago and his wife and son, George W. Blossom Jr., followed him. Mrs. Blossom Jr. remained in Pasadena with their four children and will joint her husband in their Lake Forest home in June.

Mrs. Ames Has New Grandson.

Mrs. Adelaide Schroeder Ames, returning from California to Chicago, arrived just a few days later than her new grandson, William Henry Ames, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Ames, are Mrs. Ames' son and daughter-in-law. Her daughter, the former Rosemary Ames, now Mrs. Bertie A. Meyers, who has been having such continued success on the stage in London, is arriving the end of the month to visit her mother in Chicago. Mrs. Ames will go east again the early part of June.

The Mimes of Highland Park are presenting "From Nine Till Six" next Saturday afternoon and evening in the Highland Park Woman's club. Mrs. Robert M. Jeffries, chairman of drama; Mrs. Henry B. Clark, chairman of fine arts, and Mrs. William L. Winters have been hard workers for the success of the play.

Wedding Plans of Eleanor Litsinger.

Miss Eleanor Litsinger, the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, is sitting busily at the telephone this week. She is inviting her most intimate friends and the family relatives to come to her wedding to Eugene Cary Jr., the son of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Cary, at 4:30 the afternoon of June 7 in the family home in State parkway.

Mrs. W. C. Smith, Miss Litsinger's older sister, is to attend her as matron of honor and Miss Barbara Eldridge will be her maid of honor. Dr. Cary will serve his son as best man.

One of the several pre-nuptial parties for Miss Litsinger is a luncheon and linen shower next Wednesday noon at the home of Mrs. George T. Buckingham in Lake Forest. On June 1 Mrs. Theodore White Smith, with her daughter, Theodosia, is arriving from California to be here for some of the parties and the ceremony.

The day following the wedding the Litsingers are moving out to Lake Forest for the summer months, where the young couple are to live after their return from a honeymoon at White Sulphur Springs.

Vicki Baum is planning to stop in Chicago long enough on her way from Hollywood to New York to introduce Grace Cornell and Kurt Graff, the well known dancing pair, the evening of May 23 in the Chicago Woman's club theater. Chicagoans are delighted that Miss Cornell is coming back here for the summer after four years in Germany and France, for she is the granddaughter of Paul Cornell who is familiarly known in the city's history as "the father of Hyde Park."

Mr. Graff has just come to this country after dancing as the first solo dancer at the State Opera house in Berlin. During the summer Miss Cornell and Mr. Graff will appear at a Chicago hotel.

Mrs. Albert H. Veeder will be on her way to New York the first week in June, for her daughter, Caroline, is landing the 10th, returning from the Casa Alta school in Florence, Italy, where she has studied since February. The Veeders will be in Winnetka for the summer, with the exception of a month in June or July which they will spend on Long Island with the Paul Veeders. Caroline will not make her debut next winter, but will return to Italy for another year of school.

A program of activities for the coming year will be outlined today at the annual spring luncheon of the Sunbeam league at the Stevens hotel. The business session is called for 11 o'clock.

Ann Harding Solemn; Goes Back to Work

Recent Experiences Reflected in Her Mood.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 16.—[Special.]—Experiences of the last year in which Ann Harding first parted with her recently divorced husband, Harry Bannister, and then faced death from sharks and the elements in Havana harbor have sent a different Ann Harding into the resumption of her film career at Radio.

There's the same blonde hair, same blue eyes, same lines of candor about the firm mouth, the same dimple, and the same proud erectness about the actress starring in "Double Harness," but the features seem to be set harder—there is a different mood.

Part of Ann's thoughts are off toward China, where her adventure loving ex-husband, Bannister, is steaming to fly over the Chinese-Japanese battle lines. Part of her thoughts are always—during work, play, or rest—with twinkly eyed 5 year old Jane Bannister, now conquering her first year of school lessons. She has many kind thoughts, too, for Alexander Kirkland, who accompanied her on the plane trip to Havana, and who shared her long vigil in the disabled boat in the shark infested sea. But much of her mind now focuses on Ann Harding's career and how to make it a great success.

There had been reports she was going to quit the movies and Hollywood, where her heart aches developed. "I have no intention of retiring from the films," she says. "I have ten more weeks under my contract with Radio. They can if they wish use me in two pictures before expiration of that time. After that I intend to free lance. I would like to 'shop around' for the stories that I play in; that's why I wish no more long term contracts with any studio. I would like to appear only in stories which I consider advantageous to my career."

This feeling, I learned, moved Miss Harding to refuse an attractive long term contract recently offered her by Louis B. Mayer of MGM, on conclusion of her rôle in "When Ladies Meet," with Alice Joyce and Myrna Loy at that studio.

There is one thing that may take Ann Harding out of films for a time. That is what she calls "my long cherished dream of having some one give me a wonderful stage rôle, a vital part in some stage production that will make a big hit." This phase of her ambition may shortly take her to Broadway for a new try at the stage.

Miss Harding keeps an armed guard always with her daughter. The guard rides with Jane to private school every morning and remains at the school all day. As in the case of Marlene Dietrich, this expensive precaution results from some past kidnap threats.

Paramount has assigned Buster Crabbe, "the lion man," to a part in the cowboy film "Man of the Forest" which has gone on location to Lake Arrowhead, Cal., but was surprised to find the "lion man" had a fear of horses. Barton MacLain, just in from a successful New York stage rôle in "Subway Express" and "Hangman's Whip," makes his film debut, and Rockcliffe Fellows returns to wild west rôles in "Man of the Forest."

Edward Everett Horton made such a hit with Chevalier in "A Bedtime Story" that Paramount cast him with the Frenchman again in "The Way to Love," soon to be started.

Five from Chicago Elected to Senior Societies at Yale

New Haven, Conn., May 16.—[Special.]—Five students from Chicago and vicinity are among the sixty members of the junior class in Yale who were elected to the four Yale senior societies. Skull and Bones, Wolf's Head, Elihu and Scroll and Key.

George Alfred Ranney Jr. of Chicago, Harry Halsted Harper of Geneva, and John Boit Morse of Lake Forest were chosen for Skull and Bones. Harper refused elections to both Wolf's Head and Scroll and Key. Frank Ellis Pierce Jr. of Chicago was elected to Wolf's Head. Robert Livingston Childs of Highland Park was tapped for Elihu.

The tapping ceremonies have not had their counterpart on the campus for more than a century. Instead of appearing on the old campus and being "tapped," the juniors sat in their rooms and waited for the knock on the door from a senior society man. All four societies elected their full quota of fifteen men. Owing to the large number of refusals there was much confusion attending the elections.

MINUTE MYSTERY
CAN YOU SOLVE IT?
BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MURDER AT CONEY ISLAND.

Inspector Kelley and Prof. Fordney were seated in the former's office when Policeman Fanning and his charge entered. After Fanning's hurried explanation Jasper told his story:

"I'm ticket taker on a merry-go-round at Coney Island. This bein' Saturday, we had a big crowd. The ride was almost over when I reached out, saying, 'Ticket, please,' and I see this woman sittin' up in the middle of the chariot with that terrible look on her face. She didn't answer, and when I shook her, she slumped over in the corner. I screamed, jumped off, and ran for the manager. I got blood on my hands when I shook her.

"Yes, sir, she'd ridden a couple of times and I seen the man she was with on the two rides before," continued Jasper, giving a detailed description of him. "I happened to see him jump off just before I got to her."

"The doctor said she had been stabbed through the heart and had died instantly?" queried Prof. Fordney.

"That's right, sir," replied the policeman.

"It seems strange, Jasper," remarked the professor, "that you can give such a good description of this woman's companion on two previous rides when you just 'happened' to notice him jump off. Does the merry-go-round ever make you dizzy?"

"No, sir; I'm used to it."

"Well, inspector," said Fordney, turning to his friend, "I suppose you are going to hold this man?"

"Certainly," replied Kelley. "That's just about the dizziest story I've heard in a long time!"

WHAT JUSTIFIED THE POLICE IN HOLDING JASPER?

[See solution on page 49.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Behavior Woes Not Peculiar to One Household

Little Johnny's Antics Like Other Children's.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"It was such a comfort to me," writes a young mother, "to read about other children having the 'no' habit. I really thought my little girl was different because she said 'no' to half the things I told her to do. It may seem silly, but knowing the universality of it comforts me."

I think many mothers feel that way—not only about this special habit, but about many of the behavior difficulties they see develop in their children from time to time.

And the reason for this is not just that misery loves company. No mother likes to think her child is particularly out of key, or strange, or peculiar. Neither does she like to think of herself as being particularly incompetent. But if she hasn't a great deal of contact with other parents and children, or if she hasn't had much experience, she is apt to think no other children act as hers do, or that she herself is a failure.

So, reading about the trials and tribulations of other mothers comforts her, because it makes her realize that certain behavior is universal in children.

Of course, that doesn't mean we want to let things drift and that because certain behavior is universal it is all right. Because it may not be. It may be a kind of behavior that is a child's protest against something in his life that is not right for him. It may be that that thing should be changed, even if many children act in just the same way under certain conditions.

But the point of this talk is that it is at any rate what you might call a perfectly normal kind of misbehavior, and when a mother learns that this is the case it is comforting to her.

THE STAGE

The Grand Opera house, now occupied by George M. Cohan in his comedy, "Pigeons and People," will offer a new play on May 29 or May 30. This will be "Hard Boiled Angel," with Lenore Ulric as its star.

The piece was staged a few weeks ago by Arch Selwyn, with the intention of sending it on tour to the Pacific coast. A Chicago engagement in August was then announced. Excellent box office receipts on tour in the east has convinced Mr. Selwyn that "Hard Boiled Angel" will make a good World's Fair attraction in Chicago, with a Broadway engagement to follow in August.

Song Popular with Pioneers Inspired Quilt

Susannah

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Susannah" is another song-inspired quilt. "O, Susannah!" was the song, popular in the covered wagon days when the pattern originated. Whether the pattern first saw light in the east or west, or whether, perhaps, it traveled from the east to the west with the covered wagon caravans, is not known. This design usually is pieced from printed fabrics.

For a pattern of this quilt design send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

STATE STREET LOOKING NORTH FROM MADISON

PROGRESS PUTS COLORS, STYLES IN YOUR HOME

Latest Things; Best of Old Displayed.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Spring styles are blossoming in house furnishings just as luxuriantly as they are in the field of frocks and millinery. One has only to take a peek at the delectably decorated new budget houses and model rooms which have recently been making their debuts on the furniture floor of the State street stores to realize that there are lots of new things under the sun and that the Chicago shops have them.

There's the brand new 1933 furniture, for instance. A Century of Progress exposition is giving it a great, big push forward into limelight of public interest. All the furniture departments of the various stores are showing at least one line of contemporary design.

Furniture Styles Blended.

One model house now on display is filled with furniture that is a mixture, for some of it is pure modern, while other is built along period lines, but with an absence of carving and ornamentation, and a simplification of lines that bring it into the semi-modern class. These two styles get along together quite amicably against backgrounds of strictly 1933 flavor—walls of pure white, ceilings of deep blue, and all the lovely pastel colors in the palette.

Have you seen the new chairs and tables made of aluminum? Not a bit uncomfortable, though they may sound a bit steely, for they are upholstered in the most luxurious fashion. The console tables take to glass tops with a most charming effect, and the chairs make use of an angora-like woven fabric in heavenly shades of coral, brilliant greens, beiges, and white. You really haven't seen anything until you've had a good, long glimpse of the new furniture.

Older Fashions There, Too.

If, however, you feel about contemporary pieces as the fellow did about the elephant when he said, "I love to look at 'em, but I'd hate to own one," then there are still whole warehouses full of 18th century English and early American furniture, not to mention the always popular French provincial, chic Biedermeier, and cold and formal Empire. And even Victorian is coming back, in its less ornate forms, of course.

We know at least two most attractive displays by State street stores—six and seven room model houses done in early American and another little white house that stands cozily on the furniture floor of a third store and is a source of delight to those who feel most at home with Georgian and Queen Anne furnishings. At still another there's a house done in modernized regency vein that is as livable as it is good looking. And the prices? Never more reasonable.

Chintzes at Bargain.

Draperies are especially colorful and artistic this spring. The best quality of chintzes are about 50 per cent cheaper than they were last year, and we saw some stunning solid color glazed chintz that was 10 cents a yard lower than even the wholesale price of the same material twelve months ago. Now is certainly the time to give your windows new dresses.

By inspecting the windows on display in the stores, which are fully equipped with draperies and glass curtains, tie backs, etc., you'll pick up many a new idea. For instance, there's one very effective window hung in pure white monk's cloth made with cartridge plaits at the top and caught back at window sill height with a decorative metal leaf colored a deep blue. The same blue in plain bands edges the draperies along the sides and hems, and appears again in the bands of the pure white Venetian blinds which are used instead of glass curtains.

Chinese Chippendale Chair.

Before this smart window is placed a white bamboo chair in Chinese Chippendale style with a solid blue seat cushion and a little white table on a blue rug.

Novelty nets are coming into their own this season. One store is showing some ready made draperies of golden yellow novelty net with an extremely wide mesh, resembling a glorified fish net. They may be had also in a grand shade of henna. Nice for a man's room.

Dress materials are being used for window draperies, too. Dotted Swiss is perennially popular, as is organdy, which now comes with a "permanent" stiffness. Then there are the ratinés and new spongy washable fabrics and piqué. And for the summer cottage gay plaid ginghams, polka dotted chintzes, and calicos.

It's as much fun selecting drapery materials as it is choosing fabrics for that new ensemble.

NEW WHITE PIQUE HAT IS TRIMMED WITH ROSETTES

White pique hats made with straight brims are usually trimmed with small tight bunches of flowers or a simple rosette of either the pique or gros grain white ribbon. A narrow matching neck scarf is matched with these new hats. Also attractive new sailors of blue, red, brown, and black silk and cotton checks can be found with matching ascot tie scarfs.

EASY TO FILL FASHION NEEDS IN STORES NOW

Goods Arranged for Quick Shoppers.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It's going to be a tempting season for all the shoppers, crowds of sightseeing visitors and stay at homes alike. State street has been simmering with preparations for weeks, painting and redecorating, bustling with activity and unpacking thrilling new clothes.

Everything that is new, interesting and fashionable can be found, from the flat wide hats with very flat and wide crowns, to the newest thing in shoes. You can find all the crisp new cotton frocks that you will wear from dawn until dark, the old fashioned seersuckers, revived in the 1933 manner, the soft printed muslins for afternoon, the newest, gayest plaids in sheer organdies, the most romantic of evening gowns made of net, and ruffled from shoulder to hem. Or you can find the casual tweeds and summer thin wool suits and costumes, the smart knitted things of that amazing new string stuff, or the charming boucles and fuzzy angoras that appear on all the smartest golf links and club house verandas.

Costumes for Travelers.

You will discover the newest togs for roller skating and bicycling, what is proper for summer vacationists and travelers and just gad-a-bouts. You will find all the best and newest in featherweight luggage, whether you roam by train, motor, boat or airplane. If you are looking for one frock or a wardrobe you can find it in the stores and shops of State street.

For speedy shoppers, with just the minimum of time, some of the stores have thoughtfully assembled in one particular spot the various selections that a modern gal needs for costume accents. For instance, all the bags, neck scarfs, and tricky little gadgets for sharply contrasting a suit, dress or coat. White, colored, checks, dots, dashes, stripes, plain and fancy trifles are all in one section. No wandering from floor to floor, the entire smart assortment is displayed before your appraising eyes, all you do is take the stuff that looks the best.

Convenient Slipper Corner.

One store has a slipper corner that will delight any cruising slipper collector . . . in this section will be found all the newest ideas for foot ease and lounging smartness, all the colors you could possibly demand and all the different models from the slim tailored leathers to the frilled feminine numbers in pastel colors, made of silk, satin, velvet and trimmed with gold or silver kid or feathers.

Neckwear collections are practically star attractions, all the very necessary neckline decorations that the 1933 street and evening costumes need are available . . . you can find blouses that are frothy accents for a street suit, ascot scarf ties that fit smoothly under the collar or a tailored suit, clever waistcoat vests of pique, linen, and even silk lastex, frilled collars and cuffs, ruffled evening capes of point d'esprit, plain nets, and chiffons as well as snappy extras made of the sleek cire satin.

Some stunning new print handkerchiefs, rather large affairs, smartly printed with designs of eye-striking brilliance, with figures of golfers, swagger equestriennes, bathing mermaids, and anything else in the active sports idea. Or you can buy filmy squares of chiffon that go out of night in the company of daring new evening clothes, or the tiny scraps of sheer linen edged with fine lace or Appenzell embroidery, all the newest ideas in monograms, from the small scripts to the three inch tall, slim variety.

For Youngest Set.

One store has planned for the younger set—with an entire section devoted to pint size feminine fripperies—fetching bags and purses, designed for baby fingers, beguiling bits of jewelry, such as atom-size bracelets, diminutive necklaces and chokers, Alice in Wonderland combs for small curled heads and anything and everything else you could possibly want for your smallest shoppers. In other departments, you will find all the newest frocks, coats and extras for the younger generation, the fascinating brother and sister ensembles, the summer frocks of cool dotted swiss and linen.

Another store is featuring an entire department for the short shopper, all the sizes from eleven to sixteen, the smartest kind of apparel, made with all the hitherto, almost unfindable swank of the perfect thirty-four or thirty-six. Here will be found clever street clothes, distinctive afternoon and sports clothes, and some of the most effective dance and dinner dresses any small and short shopper ever dreamed about, also knockout coats and evening wraps, as well as colorful sweaters, suede sports coats and summer cottons and knitted costumes, all definitely designed for petites' silhouettes.

Specializing in Hats.

Another store is pardonably excited over a hat section for shoppers that can wear sophisticated hats as they should be worn . . . hats that have a certain distinction, hats that are definitely for the grande dame, not the dizzy, precarious ear-hanging creations, beloved of the flapper. This same store also features a special shop for the showing of dignified large sizes, large sizes in street clothes, in distinguished afternoon and evening costumes, knowingly designed with clever and unusual detail, fine fabrics and slenderizing silhouettes.

STATE ST. STORE GIFT SHOPS FULL OF CHOICE FADS

Happy Spot for Purchaser with Limited Time.

BY LORETTA LEITNER.

In the gift shops and sections of the various State street department stores, one finds the smartest, newest and most unusual in fads and fancies as well as the perfect gift for every occasion and everybody. These are blessed places for the busy person with limited time in which to select his or her gifts: they are a haven of refuge for those in doubt as to the appropriate present for certain occasions. The specialists in charge of these departments can give one an intimate background of each and every object displayed thus giving the purchaser the assurance that he has made the correct choice.

In one State street store it is possible to select anything from tiny, robin's egg blue hot water bottles for baby, to glasses, bottles and gadgets for the most mundane person who can date his vintage correctly at the first taste. It would seem that Americans have never heard of prohibition, since modern drinking paraphernalia far outnumbers what is new in any other field.

Can Buy Beverage Bar.

For a sum under ten dollars one is able to purchase one of the most attractive beverage bars yet observed. It is white enamel, but otherwise looks much like a luggage rack. It stands about three and a half feet high with a removable chromium tray edged on three sides with a white enamel fence containing spaces for cocktail shaker, glasses, and decanter. Placed in the center of this tray is a smaller coral red tray with oddly shaped white dishes designed for appetizers. The joy of this diminutive bar is that it may be moved from place to place with utmost ease.

Brushed aluminum has become extremely popular in the drinking field by reason of its lightness, durability and smart severity of line. An inexpensive pretzel bucket is coupled with a lovely oblong cheese tray, having spaces on each side of the covered cheese dish for other appetizers or glasses as the case may be. A lightweight bottle cooler of brushed aluminum containing 4 bottle sections is an ideal gift for the summer picnicker. Or a hand wrought brushed aluminum anchovy dish is a most unusual gift for the person "who apparently has everything."

Also a Cocktail Tray.

For the amateur bartender there is a cocktail tray with all the recipes for every known cocktail printed in tiny black letters. On the foreground of the tray is a roulette wheel that indicates whether one may have two drinks at a time or go thirsty. It may also be used to play that game of chance if desired.

To the ladies—for their personal satisfaction—is a lovely new seed pearl comb case to fit in a tiny, exquisitely made needlepoint evening bag of delicate pastel colors on a white ground.

For her home she may find odd pieces of French pottery in a soft yellow color striped with black. And for he rtable, lovely Wedgwood nut cups, salt dishes and ash trays are most reasonably priced. Matching these pieces is an acorn shaped mayonnaise bowl, set on a maple leaf dish that would fill with joy the heart of any beholder.

BLOUSES ARRIVE IN A VARIETY OF STYLE AND COLOR

Hand made batiste blouses, with or without sleeves, can be found in peach, mint green, and white. Some have hand fagoting, others a double jabot and still others are edged with embroidered designs. Large checked gingham blouses that fit smoothly around the ribs and waistline are made with a large bow ready to tie under the chin. Cotton homespun sleeveless blouses made with fringed lapels button with two rows of large pearl buttons. Orange, brown, red, blue, and white plaids are most effective with either white or dark toned suits.

White Milk Glassware Makes Table Look Cool

One of the loveliest and coolest looking tables for summer is to be seen in a Chicago shop. It is set with white milk glass [a modern copy of the ware so popular years and years ago], the napkins are powder blue handkerchief linen bound in white, and the beautiful cloth is powder blue with white stars appliqued in various sizes in the four corners. Imagine a low white bowl filled with simple garden flowers in the center and the picture is complete.

DELIGHTFUL SETTING FOR SELECTING CHINTZ

No, this isn't a glimpse of a boudoir or living room. It's the very attractive new department built by a State street store for the express purpose of displaying chintzes. Here you can sit in a French needlepoint chair and look over the amazing variety of patterns that have come to greet the spring.

SIMPLE LITTLE TRICK BENEFITS THE COMPLEXION

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We remember quite a long time ago interviewing a famous woman of the stage and being told that one of her complexion tricks was to put on her cleansing cream and let it remain on during her bath. She did have exquisite skin. After the bath and the face steaming included, she'd wipe off this cream, turn her face up to the shower and let the water grow from warm to cold and colder.

Now, I see this same complexion hint advocated by one of the well known beauticians. Leaving the cream on during the hot tubbing does give it a more penetrating effect, and of course, the more deeply the cream gets into the pores, the clearer the skin will be. This is advocated particularly for people with grimy pore susceptibility. The penetrating cream, the softening of the skin from the steam and the later rinsing of the face in warm, cool, then cold water will clear a face beautifully.

If there are blackheads a bit stubbornly located you should use a complexion brush and soap on the face after you have removed the cream. Then, the warm water rinse and the cold, cold and colder.

It's a simple little trick that really does make the face look extra clear and clean. Suppose you have a dinner date and your face looks a bit grimy. You haven't had time for that facial you wanted, but you have to take time for a tubbing before dressing, put the cream on as advised and see how much fresher you look and feel than merely laying the cream on and wiping it off in the usual hurried manner.

There's something bracing about greeting that fresh looking skin in the mirror—and it goes without saying that you'll put your makeup on just a little more painstakingly when you know you have a clearer canvas to work on.

The white hats so much in vogue call for nothing if not a flawless skin. If there's a grimy or clouded spot on the face the clear white of the turban and the unshaded brim exaggerate it.

CHEER UP! YOU CAN'T WORRY IN A BEAUTY SALON

The Tired Husband Takes a Synthetic Treatment.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

If any business men husbands who have been under the impression that there has been a depression want to get an entirely different view of the situation they should try to make their way through one of those glorified feminine havens, a beauty parlor.

Let us pilot one of these poor tired business men, made invisible for the moment, into one of the most de luxe of these establishments in a State street department store. Let him sink his feet into the thick carpet at the entrance of this "salon" and cool his heels for a moment in a moderne chair with leather upholstery in a refined color combination.

Murals of Mermaids.

While he is waiting there, his glance is apt to travel not in the direction of the properly clothed and mostly middle aged women seated about waiting for their appointments, but to the murals done in the modern manner of mermaids and wood nymphs.

A woman manager whose figure is an example of what Swedish massages can do for a girl and whose manner is all that the director of a beauty "salon" should have, makes her appearance now. This efficient beauty expert has never heard of the depression and she fails to see the tired business man huddled in the gray and red moderne chair.

He listens while she explains to a customer what the "scientific beauty treatment ensemble" comprises. First comes the hour and a half "body beauty rest," including a shower, a "tonal body massage" and a half hour in a huge machine which, it is alleged, throws magnetism in "to and from waves" over the body from 4,200 feet of coiled magnetic wire.

Then Comes a Facial.

Next comes a facial. If the gentleman visitor could walk down a corridor of the feminine retreat and peer into one of the little facial rooms, sink upon the down cushions upholstered in soft light leather which line the moderne couch there, do as he was advised and "relax," all his business cares would slip from him swiftly.

As the attendant in a soothing contralto told him of the lotions suited to his personality which she was using on his flabby cheeks inevitably he would realize that his personality had been in need of cultivating for some time, and that this was the magic means of increasing profits.

A Great Little World.

"We believe beauty comes from within," the siren with the soothing voice would chant, "we're doing something for humanity in giving you that confidence of beauty. Our body rest machine builds you up, giving beauty at the source. Our facial relaxes you. Our next part of the ensemble, the scalp treatment, will invigorate you."

The tired business man, providing the beauty "salon" with all its atmosphere of luxury and elegance were available to him, would emerge feeling that it was a great little world after all.

BEET ROOT RED AND EEL GRAY ARE NEW COLORS

Beet root red and a dark grey called eel grey are new colors. Both will be used for striking fall dresses and suits. Southland blue, an effective light blue is new for summer cottons and sports silks. Dotted Swisses in butter yellow splashed with white dots, are used for some very new children's dresses. Little brother suits with yellow linen pants are combined with blouse tops of this yellow and white dotted Swiss.

Fancy Gloves Give Accent to Those Severe Dresses

Fancy gloves are delightful accents for severely simple dresses and suits. Most of the fabric gloves have ruffled or lacy cuffs, so fashioned as to require a minimum of pressing or ironing after a whirl through the soapsuds.

Compacts and Vanities Made to Match Dresses

Compacts and vanities are now selected to match your dress. You can buy enamels in plaid effects, in dots, in gingham checks, linen stripes and printed patterns.

VENETIAN BLINDS MORE POPULAR THIS SEASON

Venetian blinds are more popular than ever this spring. They come in pure white and all the light summer colors, and the roller bands may be had in a contrasting shade to harmonize with the predominating tone in your color scheme. Of course, no glass curtains are needed with Venetian blinds, and, indeed, draperies may be entirely dispensed with if the owner wishes.

Due to the feature which makes it possible to regulate the light and air this type of blind is greatly to be preferred over a window shade which imitates it, sells for a slightly lower price, but which does not admit of ventilation as does the Venetian blind.

Flowers in White Pots Brighten City Apartments

If you're living in a city apartment, unable to get away for summer, indulge in a number of pure white pottery or tôle flower pots, and fill them with green or flowering plants. The expense is small and the pleasure they give is tremendous. It means a touch of the country in your own home.

GLAMOROUS FAIR TO DAZZLE QUEEN AND HER COURT

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

All the world is wondering what it's going to see at Chicago's Century of Progress. But one girl who'll be there will have a special, proprietary pride in that glamorus area down on the lake front, its startling buildings, its dynamic color effects, its marvels of science and masterpieces of art. So here's a cheerful earful for the future Queen of the Fair.

Her first glimpse of the 1933 exposition will come when she rolls down Michigan boulevard on her royal float, in the procession that will mark the official opening on May 27. She will step down from her motor at the entrance of the Administration building, where she and her court will be guests at luncheon with Vice President Garner and the Fair executives.

A Riot of Bright Colors.

All about and beyond her, as far as the eye can reach, will tower structures blazing with hues not even the most radical of architects would have dared to employ in any preceding era, lest he be labeled definitely mad. It took the present development of the modernistic motif in art, and the genius of a Joseph Urban, to apply the bold colors of a toy counter to adult exposition, hailed long since as the inevitable inspiration of a new school in building design.

Shooting up in the near foreground, Her Majesty is sure to take note of twin towers linked by cables across the lagoon, where the scarlet and silver rocket cars will be darting back and forth, and elevators carrying groups of sightseers will be ascending and descending the Sky Ride pylons to view the city and the Fair. The towers, somebody will remind her, are 600 feet in height.

Eastward from the administration building, she will get an idea of the fairyland for juveniles, known as Enchanted Island. Located on Northerly island, it is centered by a miniature mountain concealing a dizzying and exhilirating slide for the small folks. There's a mammoth Tin Soldier and a Scarecrow to match, right out of the Wizard of Oz, and a coaster wagon as big as a freight car. Everything else on the children's island is designed and built to amuse and divert the youngsters, and to educate and improve them as well.

The Temple of Jehol.

If the Queen of the Fair glances back over her shoulder, her eye will be arrested by the crimson walls and the golden roof of the Temple of Jehol, the official Chinese edifice, where a vast golden Buddha sits and smiles, and the wind riffling the temple bells at each corner of the building plays a thin, sweet melody.

Across the lagoon, the great arc of the electrical building will come into the perspective. Water taxis will be dashing up to its entrance ever and anon, for it is certain to be one of the main attractions for the throngs that gather in Chicago for the Fair. Within the walls, every recent development of machinery or power for which current has been harnessed will be on display. And one of these days, Her Majesty will want to know about such conveniences as the completely equipped kitchens that form part of one exhibit there.

If she roams southward from the administration building, she'll quickly arrive at the Illinois host building, standing hospitably on the west side of the drive. It is the only state represented by an individual structure, and that one, in keeping with the tradition, is destined to uphold the welcoming spirit of midwesterners. It is a host building in every sense of the word, with all facilities to refresh and stimulate the Fair visitor.

Building Symbolizes U. S.

One of her objectives is sure to be the federal building, with its trilogy of towers symbolizing the three branches of American government—executive, legislative, and judicial. From the central unit, splashed generously with black, and, gold and vivid blue, the gallery of states executes a circle about the central courtyard, each state's section distinguished by its individual seal hung above the courtyard entrance.

Until she has seen the Midway, however, she mustn't expend her gasps entirely, for there's a world of fun and thrills waiting there. And even a queen has to be amused.

This sovereign of the Fair won't lack for diversion at any time and place during her ten days reign at the Century of Progress, nor will any of her fifty court members. Their trips through the grounds are only one part of their program, which covers much time and area and includes enough amusement to wear out the most popular deb of any social season.

Photographs of another group of ten girls picked as members of the ensemble of fifty-one will appear in the rotogravure section of Sunday's CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Others will be published later.

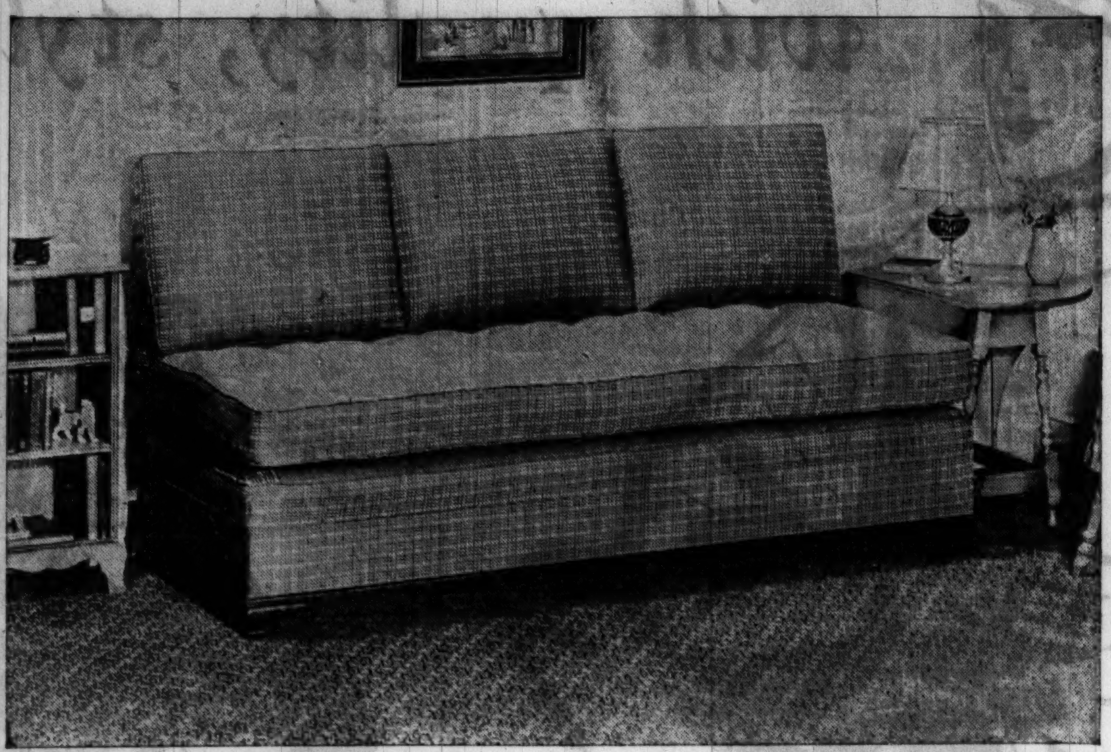
GIDDY ORGANDY FLOWERS ADORN DANCE DRESSES

Gay plaid organdy flowers have been made to wear with summer cotton dance dresses. Some giddy looking asters, zinnias, and rather unknown blossoms are fashioned of crisp dotted and checked swiss. They are a bit frenzied for real blooms, but chic for fashionable cotton ensembles. Blue roses, also of sheer organdies, are an unusual blossom for white and colored dance dresses of organdy, striped organzas, or dotted swiss. Bunches of field flowers, cowslips, bachelor buttons, daisies, and poppies are delectable accents to pin to your cape collars or your newest dance dresses.

Marcasite Jewelry Smart Decoration for Dark Frock

Marcasite jewelry is being revived. Nothing gleams so attractively against colored frocks and costumes as good looking, old fashioned pins, clips and decorative trifles of this smart stuff. Dress parade ear-rings in simplified designs are made for this season's romantic evening clothes.

STUDIO COUCH MAKES TWO EXTRA BEDS



Chicagoans, anticipating visits from relatives during A Century of Progress Exposition, are buying these interesting new studio couches, which come equipped with the best box springs and inner-spring mattresses, for they provide that extra bed (twin beds, in fact) that is needed in the small apartment or the house minus a guest room. They are sold at all the State street stores.

GIRLS MAY DON GOLF TOGS MADE OF SEERSUCKER

They're Ensembles in Checks, Stripes.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

It probably is just as well that French women do not go in much for athletics, otherwise American sportswomen might suddenly find themselves rushing around in the bicycle bloomers and dusters of the gay nineties.

No matter how much they may welcome puffed sleeves, flowing skirts, and other mauve decade revivals in their ordinary dress, running about tennis courts in shirtwaists and ankle length skirts while balancing a shade hat over one eyebrow to ward off freckles would doubtless affect the best serve and disposition.

Ridiculous? Yes; but if Paris so decreed, a certain numerous percentage could be counted on to take their motor trips swathed in thick veil and linen duster, dust or no dust in prospect. It would be skirts and side saddles again for the equestriennes, and as for the golfers, rather than tramp 18 holes in laced boots and pleated plaids, they might revive croquet.

That National Unconcern.

Fortunately for the athletic element, Paris and her clothing connoisseurs have ruled "hands off" for costumes strictly sporting. There was that national unconcern over feminine sports, and then, too, they have been so busy revolutionizing other types of dress. Far from being fussy and frilly, golf and tennis togs are freer of superfluities than ever.

Stripped for action, to illustrate, are golf and tennis ensembles offered by one department store at the depressed price of $5. In checks or stripes of the newest seersucker, the costume consists of a blouse cut like a chemise and over it a skirt of matching material. Mannish open flap collar and the briefest of sleeves characterize the golf dress, and the tennis dress is similar, but sleeveless and backless, with a bow at each shoulder. Neither need be worn with undergarments.

Another tennis dress is backless with square neck and suspenders outlined in gold and blue in vivid contrast to the white silk. A waist length jacket with long sleeves accompanies it. A variation offers a blouse with two patch pockets, a man's collar, and a small striped bow tie matching the skirt which fits over the blouse.

Three-Quarter Length Jacket.

Also for tennis are plain linen dresses in black, navy, brown or white, sleeveless with backs or backless, fitted with short or three-quarter length jacket to match. Especially recommended are these three-quarter length jackets of black linen, which are no less attractive with dresses of plain black linen or flowered prints for street or afternoon wear.

For cooler days there are knitted chenille or string one piece dresses of warm roses and pastel greens and blues, with full sleeves caught in at the elbow. These are priced at about $7 to $10. To be worn with a plain woolen skirt are combinations of cardigan and slipover sweaters at $2.95, the cardigan striped in pale blues, greens, yellows, and browns.

Roller Skating Berets.

With any of these costumes Schiaparelli's new "sun" beret will strike a harmonious note. A knitted band with four scallops, one coming down over the right eye, and the four held together at the crown by a ring, leaving three openings to reveal the hair. It is made in brown, white, red, and various pastels.

Also warranted to stick tight in the strongest wind are the so-called roller skating berets, in vivid primary colors, like nothing so much as a small boy's. Felts are being revived again, if, indeed, active sportswomen have ever given them up, and are appearing with folds in the crown and generous brims.

All this simplicity gives way the moment the sportswoman becomes an onlooker. As ever, the fair Parisians have their eyes on the Grand Prix, meaning, of course, that over here sports enthusiasts also must cheer on their horses from the grandstand in sleeves blown up and hats pancaked in the best mauve decade manner.

Charming exponent of this trend is the plaid linen ensemble in red, green or blue and black. The jacket is of plaid with elbow length puffed sleeves, fitted tightly about the waist and over the hips, and fastened with a large pearl button. The dress has a black linen skirt, a short waisted plaid bodice with a high, round neck fastened with another button, and a belt that wraps nearly twice around the waist, buckling at the side.

A Flat Straw Sailor.

An extremely flat straw sailor, perhaps 16 inches in diameter, can be worn with this dress. A wreath of small field flowers, poppies, daisies and bachelor buttons might be added if the hat were worn with one of the plain linen three-quarter length coats and a one-piece print in field flower design. These prints, in linen, piquet or silk with linen or piquet jackets or swagger coats in a simple color will be among the most popular ensembles this summer.

Especially useful because of its adaptability to both active and spectator sports is a two piece cotton ensemble woven to resemble coarse linen. The dress and jacket are of a single pastel shade, the dress with cup sleeves, mannish high neck and collar, and three large pearl buttons and clasps on the side. The loose waist length jacket has puffed three-quarters length sleeves and pockets.

Also in this category is a deep brown linen one piece dress with a loose light beige linen three-quarter jacket. Dark brown buttons run down the front of the dress and there is a dark leather belt. The coat has long wide sleeves and large patch pockets.

NEW FLOOR, TABLE LAMPS

These lamps, made here in Chicago, are ideal for reading, as the light is not diffused through the shades, but falls directly on your book. A tiny openwork design is filled with a variegated substance that looks like the old Tiffany glass and makes a lovely finish for the shades.

Cire Chiffon Is Wrinkle Proof for Evening Wear

Cire chiffon is a new and practically wrinkleless material for summer evening gowns. It clings smoothly to the figure and is extremely decorative in bright colors, contrasted with white dots. One unusual costume is made with a double ruffle that resembles a bustle. Cire satin evening capes are perfect over the shoulders of organdy, dotted swiss or chiffon for evening.

EXPECTING GUEST DURING FAIR? BED PROBLEM SOLVED

Several thousand Chicagoans, living in small apartments and suburban cottages, are beginning to wonder what they're going to do with Aunt Emma and Uncle Bill when they come popping in to see A Century of Progress Exposition next month. Of course, it's a simple matter to provide for their entertainment in the daytime, but where, O where shall their sleeping quarters be? What with no guest room and a skimpy budget these days, many a young hostess is in a quandary.

The answer, however, is really quite simple. All one has to do is to shop around and see all the ingenious pieces of furniture the stores are showing and be convinced that with a very small amount of money and less space an extra member of the family or two can easily be cared for this summer.

Jackknife Cots.

Have you seen the clever jackknife cots that accommodatingly fold in half so that they may be rolled away in a closet during the day? Of course, they don't solve the problem of a permanent extra bedroom, but they are satisfactory in an emergency, for a night or two, now and then. And their cost is positively ridiculous.

Another thing that's new and different is the chaise longue that can decorate the porch, terrace or sun room during the day, and be quickly converted into a single bed at night. The back folds down level with the seat, thus making a bed that is springy and comfortable.

Love Seats Make Beds.

For the one room apartment is the love seat, beautifully upholstered and well constructed of excellent materials, that does double duty as a single bed when needed. The two arms let down, level with the seat, and there are special inner-spring cushions to place on them, creating a downy mattress. This novel piece of furniture is made here in Chicago and sold at State street stores.

Then, there's the bed-davenport, not so new in its design, but ever so useful in turning the living room into a bedroom. Here you have your choice of a wide variety of upholstery materials, colors and patterns. And the bed concealed by the couch is a double size, and as comfortable as any one could ask. Your are buying a permanent article here, so it is well to get the best you can afford, from a well established dealer.

Daybed Is Popular.

The daybed is popular with a lot of business girls, for it's attractive, comes in a great many different styles and woods, and can be covered with a gay chintz slip cover, ruffled or tailored. Also, it's usually equipped with good springs and an inner spring mattress, and the bedding does not need to be removed and concealed during the day, but can simply be kept out of view under the slip cover, which is a great saving of time and energy.

A daybed can be placed in a living room, hallway, bedroom or even in a dining room, if need be. And it requires very little space.

Studio couches are certainly coming into their own this summer of the Fair. All the stores are well stocked with them, and their manufacturers are doing a rushing business. The price range is elastic; you can pay as much [almost] or as little as you please. You can choose one with stunning upholstery in a new plaid combining shades of henna and brown, or greens, equipped with the very best box springs and mattresses made in the country, and three extra back cushions to boot, or you may select an inexpensive model that is comfortable, though not luxurious, and that also has an inner spring mattress and extra pillows.

Studio Couches.

All the studio couches we've seen can be made up into twin beds or a double bed. And the two beds can be completely separated. Most of the studio couches open out into beds that are quite low and close to the floor. Many people do not object to this, but for those who like to be above the drafts and are used to sleeping at the height of an ordinary bed there is a new type of couch, which, by pressing a lever, lifts the extra one of the two beds to the same height as the single couch. Thus you have two beds at the regulation height above the floor. Very neat.

So, don't worry any more about where to put Aunt Emma or Uncle Bill. Just hie away and get a cot, daybed, studio couch, or davenport.

SPORTS WEAR GOES LACY

New lace sports frock worn by Adrienne Ames is in tangerine, brown, and gray plaid with jabot, belt, and sleeves of gray linen crash. The hat and gloves are also accomplished in the gray linen.

Smart White Suits Made of New Cotton Material

Smart white cotton suits are made of soft new limp looking cottons. The knee length swagger coats are lined with colorful striped silk or silk and cotton mixture. Skirts are simple and straight in silhouette.

New Street Oxfords Are Made of Cotton Fabrics

New black pumps and street oxfords are made of cotton fabrics, and then combined with insets of light colored mesh. Matching bags can be selected.

SUMMER SHOES STEPPING OUT IN COOL MATERIALS

BY ANGELA PETESCH.

Summer shoes are stepping out this month in cool new materials of string mesh, striped linen, cottons and corduroy and in new styles of round toed, short vamped, high heeled models.

There are in addition comfortable play shoes, and the popular, simple graceful opera pumps and slenderizing, flattering T-straps.

But to get down to specifications: For summer you'll want white or at least light colored slippers to enhance your summer frocks.

The New Short Vamp.

You can find the new short vamp on State street in white kid and suede sport pumps, in high heeled pumps, and in the high, five eyelet tie. In the same store is a lower cut tie with only 3 eyelets, having the same rounded toe but not quite so short a vamp. This model—a tongueless model, by the way—has tucks spreading over the toe in sunburst fashion.

For the more active woman who demands lower heels there is a sporty broad T-strap, fashioned from a Roman pin striped linen. It is bound in white leather and the T trimmed with a white tailored bow. Or again in the tie family, there are the standard tailored walking shoes in light and dark color combinations—combinations also of leather and a new kind of mesh material. This mesh is a string fabric.

New Service Calfskin.

For the fashionable woman who indulges in golf is a sport shoe, low heeled and built for hard wear, made of a new service calf—soft and suede-like. The leather comes in white, tan, and gray, and the styles in the usual oxford with or without the fringed tongue or in the oxford which fastens on the side with a single or double buckle. This latter one is an adaptation of the old medieval monk's shoe. It is very English looking, to be worn with tweeds. Still another golf model is the white low heeled, rubber soled, buck skin with brown alligator saddle.

In evening slippers there are still the tinted crêpes, gold and silver leathers, tinted leather sandals and the ultra new corduroy velvet sandal type slipper to be had in various colors.

New Afternoon Gloves Have Cuffs of Braid

FASHION DECREES BRACELETS WITH HIGH NECKLINES

Shops Display a Variety of New Ideas.

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

So on to the latest in modern jewelry, most of which is as low in price as it is extravagant in looks. In keeping with the vogue for high necklines, fashion decrees bracelets and lots of them.

And there are lots of them. The smarter shops are showing the Maggy Rouff bracelet, consisting of 16 narrow loops caught together by a pin bar, in all the color combinations. One in gold, brown and white is especially attractive.

Then there is the classic twist bracelet made of a composition material, which comes in two widths and every color and which should be worn three or four together to harmonize with one's frock. The colors are amazingly clear, warm and soft.

Here's A Daring Bracelet.

For the more daring person there is a cuff bracelet, shaped like a simple detachable cuff, in white with black polka-dots, black with white dots, and the "nail head," which has an ivory background and a design of silver dots. All of these are under two dollars.

Another novelty is the "Betty Brown" bracelet, which is a more expensive article, and a very smart one. It is a silver or gold band a little more than an inch wide with one's initials cut out in trim letters.

If one must have a necklace with one's high neckline there is an irresistible one of composition bead made into a band graduating from an inch to two inches in width, white with scarlet beads to brighten it up, and every other color combination. There are bracelets to match.

Here's A New Clip.

A new clip that promises to be popular is the "spring clip" in cluster and grape effects of dainty flowers and fruits, particularly suited to print dresses, and under a dollar.

Also among those present is a new "moon-glow" bead, which resembles the moonstone, and has been made up into sets of necklace, pins, clips, bracelets and earrings each of which costs about one dollar.

A very shiny bead has been introduced to wear with chiffons. It comes in every pastel shade and should prove flattering.

Hair bandeaux in compositions of all colors and rhinestones are priced from fifty cents to five dollars. Jewels for evening wear remain the same. Imitations of famous pieces, long earrings of rhinestones or pearl, and sparkling bracelets are always good.

Black Linen Again in the Mode

Black linen frock which appears to be popular thing in summer modes. The three-quarter length coat is of white pique, while neck trimming on the frock, gloves, and hat also follow the pique lead.

Woman Rewarded for Kindness to a Cocoon

Marion, O., May 16.—When Mrs. J. H. Dildine of Marion rescued a cocoon from a bush to be uprooted she found an unusual pet. Shortly afterward it hatched into a "Jasper," a large butterfly with a six-inch wing spread. Despite opinion that a butterfly cannot live indoors, the moth thrives in a fernery and takes on occasional flight through the house.

Outdoors Furniture of Iron Is More Attractive Now

Never was outdoor furniture of ornamental iron more good looking than it is this year. Built on a delicate scale, yet sturdy and everlasting, graceful chairs, benches, and tables come in pure white and in delicate green. Some of the circular tables have glass tops through which a large pot of ferns may be seen in a lower receptacle.

PLAY GARMENTS FOR BOYS GIVE THEM A BREAK

Can Dress in Fashion and Be Comfortable, Too.

Boys from 3 to 10 years old who rebel against wearing "sissy" clothes are getting a break this summer. They can be dressed in fashion so as to delight their mothers' hearts and be as sloppy and tough as they please in play outfits consisting of striped cotton Basque shirts and wool jersey sailor trousers or shorts. A feature of the pants is that they have no belts, the tops smoothly fitting and elastic lined.

Another play garment which is most stylish for boys is the overall of gabardine, seersucker, or waffle cloth in various colors, with which is worn a mesh top polo shirt.

Perhaps the coolest and most comfortable of all, however, and one quite as smart, is the play suit of seersucker, either sleeveless or with short sleeves. One store sold thirty-five dozen in half a week after getting them in recently.

Eton Suits Are Popular.

Eton suits are popular for boys, and come in sizes as small as a 3 year old. But they are not the serge Eton suits of old, worn with a stiff round collar which had to be fastened on with shirt studs just like father's.

They come in new wash fabrics, seersuckers, gabardines, and linens, and the collarless jackets are worn with soft collared shirts, sometimes with sports shirts. Since February one store on State street has sold 1,800 flannel Eton suits. From now on, however, wash fabrics will be in demand to the exclusion of flannels. Linen Rugby suits, with pinch backs and collars, are equally fashionable for boys.

For girls all the tailored, military features of women's daytime frocks, suits, and coats are seen, and, as in their mothers' clothes, their party dresses make up for their play dresses in the feminine and frivolous touches.

A Plaid Pleated Skirt.

A pique tennis dress of yellow was combined with a swagger coat in brown pique, seen in one of the loop stores. It also came in a navy blue and powder blue combination. A gay plaid pleated skirt attached to a crisp white blouse with round collar and pleated fluting was sold with a navy pique cape of military fashion.

One of the newest fashions was a combination riding habit of wash gabardine in green, brown, and other shades. A hat, vest, and jodhpurs were included in the ensemble. With it a riding shirt or gable necked sweater is worn, or a polo shirt with zipper fastening.

Flowered organdy in delectable frocks with Alice in Wonderland sashes, full flounced skirts, square necks, and puff sleeves were seen in sizes from 7 to 12.

GAZING BALLS AND STONE BIRD BATHS ATTRACTIVE IN GARDEN

A focus of interest in the garden is furnished by the gazing ball, which reflects in miniature the beauty of the trees and flowering borders. Equipped with a concrete pedestal, it may be bought at State street stores most reasonably now.

Small stone bird baths are a delight, too, and may have a sundial as a companion piece. Lifelike bunnies and ducks of grayish stone are also at home in your garden.

Gay Slippers to Ornament Feet of Sport Devotees

Gay colors have been introduced into sports slippers for beach, tennis, and cycling wear this season. The vamp and toe sections are made of striped canvas sewed to a crepe rubber sole with a low heel.

Rosewood Coming Back as Material for Furniture

Rosewood, a favorite of cabinetmakers during the Victorian era, is coming into its own again. Manufacturers of modern furniture are using it in the most radical of 1933 designs. Look for it in the displays at the fair.

NOW MILADY CAN MAKE AN ART OF SELECTING HOSE

Just Right Kind Available for Every Shopper.

BY DOROTHY PESCHEL.

If reincaration is a reality—who can imagine Cleopatra reborn into our modern times walking into the hosiery section of one of our shops and asking at random for a pair of hose size 9, "just a nice shade of brown?" No, we would find this famous lady comparing, discarding and finally selecting the one shade which suited her fastidious taste.

Women on the whole give less thought to buying hosiery than any other wearing apparel. Too often this important matter is relegated to the category of the unimportant. It should be considered as important as hats, shoes, or dresses. State street this week offers us our chance to make the selection of hosiery an art.

Vary Circumferences and Lengths.

For years the tiny miss has struggled to attain individual perfection only to be thwarted by wrinkled and uncomfortable stockings. But now she can find a slender abbreviated type—28 inches long. For the medium height girl a 30 inch style is presented, and for her tall, lithe sister there is the extra long 34 inch hose.

The weight of hosiery is strictly a matter of personal opinion, and the modern young woman who prefers the sheerest of sheer can find a 60 gauge—the finest stocking made—at a very reasonable price. Something new is the Phantom, which is made of a high twisted yarn and never snags. These are ultra sheer and wear surprisingly well. The 54 gauge, wrapped in cellophane to assure the customer that the contents are absolutely sterile, are exquisite.

Twist-Knits for Working Girl.

For the working girl who needs a serviceable hose there are the new twist-knits made of a high twist fabric. These hose come in three weights—the sheer 51 gauge, the fine 51 gauge, and the service chiffon. The twist-knit is a well wearing stocking and can be purchased at a price to suit the moderate purse.

Style in hosiery is sheerness and color, whether it be for evening or daytime wear. It is important to choose a shade that blends with your dress. The newest and most popular spring shade is chukker—a gray brown, high lighted by the flesh, giving a shadowy tone. This color harmonizes with blue, black and green. The ochre beige—a tan with a yellowish tinge—is a charming shade for light spring dresses. Lighter shades of hosiery are good for the summer months. "Deusan," a sandy beige; "sun gleam," a shade darker than beige, and "sun touch" are three of the best colors to wear with light dresses.

Anklets for Sports Devotees.

The sports lover can find the most adorable anklets in the sport section. There are the wool anklets in plain colors and some with fancy tops. These come in a variety of colors. Attractive, moderately priced and cooler than the socks made of wool fabric are the combination silk and angora anklets. Both imported and domestic anklets are to be had in either the mesh or the plain type, and a complete assortment of all the sweater colors at a very nominal figure.

The woman who prefers wearing long hose on the golf course can find lisle mesh, chiffon lisles and other sheer imported lisle stockings, with or without clocks, which are very fashionable and rich in appearance. These are good for tennis, golf and general summer sports wear.

Organdie in Pastel Tints Is Dance Dress Material

Seersucker organdie, in all pastel tints and deep blue, brown and black fashion the newest dinner and dance dresses for spring and summer. Plaid in huge patterns featuring lovely shades of ginger brown, beige and red as well as some striking combinations of jade green, citron and canary and all the cheerful tones of scarlet are available in picturesque organdies for evening wear.

But the bridal costume of lyric loveliness was one of peau d'ange lace—such lace as the water spirits of fairy tales may have woven from foam. The long, flowing veil, lace bordered, fell from a head band braided of net and pearls.

AGA KHAN GIVES WIFE GEMS FOR BEARING A SON

PARIS, May 16.—The Aga Khan has given his young and beautiful French wife a number of costly jewels in celebration of her having given birth to a son.

He enthusiastically declared that it would have been all the same if it had been a daughter, as there is a son of his first marriage, and girls in the house are peculiarly few.

The famous sportsman's first wife, who died in 1926, was a beautiful Italian, and his courtship of the second, Mlle. Andree Carron, who belongs to a middle class family and used to run a candy shop, was a real life romance.

WOMEN DISCOVER BEAUTY IS MORE THAN SKIN DEEP

Art of Figure Molding Is Found in Shops.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

In the art of figure molding it is the beauty shop today, not the sculptor's studio! Feminine beauty is looking to nature rather than to art.

Fashion has forced women to consider the least admirable points of their individual silhouettes. It has shown them that close, clinging gowns are flattering only to the healthy, svelte feminine outline.

And the old time beauty shop with its tar shampoo, round curl ritual has answered fashion's decree with figure artists who are past masters at everything from a sun bath to body rejuvenation.

Reducing Little Help.

"Reducing helps very little when it comes to obtaining the proper effect for modern style," one of the figure artists explained yesterday. "Now it's a question of breaking down excess weight on one part of the body and building it up on another. Only by such procedure is a person able to achieve the normal figure and the normal weight that are the proper foundation for present day styles.

"With the return of summer fashions, for instance, it is necessary for many women to reduce heavy upper arms, they are to present a well groomed appearance.

"But this avoirdupois in one person may be caused by a hearty appetite and too little exercise, while in another it is due to the improper functioning of important glands. Therefore the correction of figure faults, science has proved, must be started with a diagnosis, not only of the cause of the trouble but also of the amount of diet and the exercise suited to each. Figure molding is only possible by scientifically trained operators, but it gives women health as well as chic. It proves that beauty is more than skin deep."

Body Rejuvenation Fun.

Body rejuvenation, say the pupils of these figure artists, is fun, not hardship. Bath house equipment has long since lost its appeal. Now the beauty shops are providing the finest that money can buy with an eye to comfort as well as results.

Treatments vary, but the following is a good example. In sheet and paper mashe slippers, a patient is put to sleep in a specially constructed beauty rest compartment, then relegated to a half hour under the life giving rays of a super cabinet bath built for reclining. In this the same magnetism provided in various sections of the world by mud baths affords relaxation, stimulates circulation, and eliminates toxic poison.

A shower follows this treatment and then a massage by a specially trained masseuse whose results are measured in the inches removed. A scalp treatment and a facial complete the body rejuvenation ensemble.

Salt Rub Stimulating.

Another treatment prescribes a salt rub to stimulate circulation before the cabinet bath. It also uses a specially prepared jelly to hasten the reduction of the figure in necesary spots. Proper exercise and a well balanced diet are always a part of every preliminary diagnosis.

A Window of Graceful Beauty

Mesh Cotton Sports Socks Priced Lower This Season

Mesh cotton sports socks and white angora socks with contrasting color bands around the tops are new and much lower in price than last season. All new silk hosiery shades are neutral, ready for all leathers and fabrics in footwear. A flattering new shade called picardy has gun metal colored heels to match all the fashionable gun metal leather pumps.

Not a Word Spoken at Tea Attended by 250 Persons

LONDON, May 16.—Not a word was spoken at a tea party attended by 250 guests in London recently. It was the annual treat at St. Bede's church for the Deaf and Dumb of South London.

Several short plays also were given and these were interpreted by signs which all could understand.

BRITISH THEATER IS PLANNED TO HONOR MARLOWE

LONDON, May 16.—Canterbury, fifty-three miles southeast of London, the shrine of medieval pilgrimages and the birthplace of Christopher Marlowe, is to have a theater dedicated to that Elizabethan playwright.

The mayor of Canterbury, Ald. F. Hooker, explained recently in the local guild hall the idea was to raise funds gradually as times improved. Marlowe wrote great plays, he pointed out, and started that trend of thought and work which Shakespeare carried out successfully in all his tragedies and comedies.

Geoffrey Whitworth, secretary of the British Drama league, said he could imagine no more worthy addition to make to the cultural and artistic life of Canterbury than to create in it a place where the works of Marlowe or Shakespeare and the modern dramatists could be portrayed. Messages supporting the scheme were received from Sir Martin Harvey and others.

LAUNDRY HAMPER INCORPORATED IN DRESSING TABLE

Laundry hampers are nothing if not decorative these days. One type is incorporated in a little white enamel dressing table, with open shelves on one side and drawers on another. It swings out, when needed. The top of this unique little piece of dressing room furniture is of a shiny mother of pearl-like substance that comes in various light colors and is impervious to spilled liquids.

Chippendale Modified a Holland Leg Design

One of the characteristics of Chippendale furniture is the gracefully curved or cabriole leg. Chippendale, however, did not originate this type of support. The French were using it in lightened form, having taken it from the Dutch. When it was introduced into England it became sturdier, though nonetheless exquisite in line. Chippendale added the claw and ball foot, thus helping to make his name immortal.

NEW LINGERIE A MARVEL OF COOL COMFORT

Beauty and Style Also in Latest Garments.

BY ANNA NANGLE.

Don't think that glove silk and lisle underwear is being made only for your spinster aunt or your grandmother. It's no longer baggy, old fashioned stuff. It's good looking for one thing; it fits like the paper on the wall, and, most important for the working girl and the sportswoman, it's practical!

No more fussing over the ironing board, no more sewing tiny satin straps or mending ripped lace, or carefully tinting precious crêpe de chine, if you invest in some of this new lingerie.

Underwear always could be beautiful, but lately it's becoming highly efficient. Lines, wear, style and comfort have been studied by designers until they've produced the acme of utility at the lowest possible price.

Glove Silk for Service.

Crêpe and satin lingerie in the most delicate pastel shades displayed enticingly are enough to make any one want 'em, but if you're not shopping for a trousseau or with an elegant purse, and you're a girl who launders her own, the chances are they won't stay so beautiful after numerous hasty tubbings, so glove silk or cotton mesh will be far more serviceable.

A girl standing next to me at the counter the other day took one pair of scanty little trunks in her hand, gazed approvingly at their brief beauty and remarked quietly, but to the point, "Swell for summer!"

The tiniest shorts [you can crumple them into one fist] may be had in tea rose, flesh and white, with little buttons fastening them at the waist or a band in front and a nice, flat elastic in the back. Single garments of the same smooth silk mesh, in the same charming shades, have brassiere tops, so that all you need is some garters and you're ready for your outer garments.

Other models are the same close fitting all-in-ones and include tiny garters, which make dressing even a simpler process. I saw one such model made of sturdy but beautiful lace, which would be simply grand for evening wear.

New Combination Undies.

Then there are the new combination panties and girdles. They are devised of a new material, silk woven over elastic, which keeps bulges from showing where they shouldn't, but is porous enough to be perfectly comfortable. They are finished with tiny net ruffles and garters, which transform the garment into panties. They wash easily.

For golf or tennis they're showing the cutest little trunks you ever saw. White cotton mesh, close fitting but not clinging, washable as a handkerchief.

As to petticoats, there are exquisite lace trimmed, glove silk garments, shadow proof, with adjustable straps, which, by the way, is an excellent feature shown in new underwear of all kinds.

And another thing, if you're trying to do the tango at the country club this year, or make a sudden swerve to avoid another car when you're driving, or jerk an arm suddenly on any occasion, if you're wearing one of these new models there won't be any sudden sickening snap which means that you've broken a strap, because many of the best garments are equipped with elastic straps which allow for such movements and give obligingly at the right moment.

Big, Bold Prints

SLEEVES GET WIDER AND WIDER

Pique Leads in Season's Race of Stylish Hat Materials

BY DOROTHY MASTERS.

Pique, which crashed the gate in the millinery business a few seasons ago via beach hats and children's headgear, bids fair to usurp all other materials in this year's spring and summer hat parade, although fabricated straws, linens and felts all come in for a share in the show.

Given a boost by the neckwear, glove and purse manufacturers—or perhaps the hats themselves are responsible for having boosted these accessories—pique has jumped far into the race for popularity this season with the result that half the feminine world has gone piqué hunting. This, for the most part, means small hats for the summer months, although some of the cotton fabrics and straws are being shown in wide brimmed styles.

Felts for Sport.

Active sports this season call for felts—any color is good—with balibuntle and rough straws in the running. Among the felts, all of which, incidentally, are trimmed, there is a novelty "clip" hat, built with a high crown, which is molded with the aid of especially designed clips to any of five or six different shapes.

For spectator sports, fabricated straws and linens will be much in demand. Straws this year have been camouflaged. Broken down into shreds through an acid process, they have been woven into all kinds of materials, the resultant fabric having the versatility of cloth as well as the durability of straw. There are also some piquant linens in pastel shades, and a few panamas, although these are not so popular as they have been in other years.

But the nicest thing of the season a hat designed to make masculine hearts do 100 par, is the Merry Widow teaser. If the young swains don't succumb instantly, it can only mean the wallflower bench or spinsterhood for the gal, for these new bonnets certainly do have worlds of charm and allure.

Many Variations.

There are many variations of the Merry Widow teaser, but one in particular is most fascinating. It is made of very rough natural straw, a crown possibly one inch deep, girded with bright field flowers. The brim, unlike the traditional big hats, is rigid, yet gracefully becoming, and measures nearly three quarters of a yard in diameter. The hat fits sungly, but rather precariously, so a tiny elastic encircling the back of the head holds it in place.

Another model of the Merry Widow is labeled the "bicycle sailor." This is made of straw, with a shallow crown and a two inch brim.

No story on summer hats would be complete without mention of the crepé paper hats now being exploited. Strips of the paper are cut in half inch widths, stretched, twisted loosely and crocheted into practically any style desired.

Trimmings, too, ought to come in for a word or two, but there is nothing of unusual note, ornament on the whole being rather tailored and simple. Navies and blacks shown now carry bands of piqué and organdy, but the summer chapeaux will wear field flowers, patents and grograin.

FIND HOME OF FIRST ANTIQUE ART COLLECTOR

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—Discovery of two well preserved Sumarian objects of 2400 B. C. in a house which was not erected until 200 years later has led archeologists of the University of Pennsylvania and the British museums to believe they have stumbled on the home of the first antique collector.

The objects, an unbroken mug of gray stone and straight sided bowl of dark polished soapstone, were found at Ur of the Chaldees, where a joint museum expedition has completed its tenth season.

Attractive New Garden Furniture Shown in Shops

For the garden is the delightful English furniture woven of gray willow reeds, shown in th shops now. It has a mellow, rustic air that makes it ideal among the flowers or on the grassy lawn. Also, it has the charm of the unusual. Chairs with fan backs and with hoods, round tables, and gardening accessories come in this line.

Here's an Argument to Be Settled in Your Spare Time

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16. — As librarian of the city hall, Richard Krug claims experience in answering strange questions and settling arguments. Krug and his entire staff, however, admitted they were stumped when the telephone rang and a voice asked: "Can you tell me which weighs more, a gallon of water or a gallon of sauerkraut?"

BRIDAL DREAMS OF FRAGILE LACE IN COSTUME SHOP

Artists' Sketches Turned Into Satin Gowns.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

High, cool nave . . . lily banked altar . . . slim wax tapers in gleaming candelabra . . . summer sunlight sifting in through stained glass windows . . . and here, to the golden strains of the wedding march, slender mysterious, dream lovely in her drifting draperies, comes the bride.

"Dearly beloved, we are gathered here . . ."

But to June, to smiling friends and proud young bridegroom we leave the shining vision. Our interest centers in the State street shops where merchants and their designers are the clever magicians who are fashioning glamour and romance of luminous satin, foamy nets, filmy chiffons, billowing organdie, misty tulle, and frothy laces.

On our desk are three hastily drawn sketches by a young artist in the bridal costume shop of one of the large loop deparment stores, illustrating an inspiration that the needles were busy upon. Surely a gown such as this golden haired Guinevere might have worn when she glided, stately and tall, down the aisle of the Cathedral of Camelot when the silver bells in the tower sang.

The dress is a slim ivory satin slip. The veil of satin and lace encircling the shoulders mantlelike, sweeps back imperially in a long, graceful train. The head veil is a frail cloud of tulle that, cut circularly, falls over the face, ripples mistily and is lost at the waist in the drift of the shoulder veil.

But newer than the conventional satin are the dull sheer crêpes, pearl stitched—and the cotton organdies, organzas, and nets that are enchantingly young with their fluffy ruffs, their cascading ruffles and flounces and their swishy taffeta underslips.

As dainty and just right as they'll be in church, as romantic as they'll be drifting down the stairway at home, they belong, in the very special way that rosebuds and robins do, to the garden.

A Transformation.

Let the hardest headed of little moderns wriggle herself into one of these armfuls of billowy organdie, and then watch her open wide, incredulous eyes at her own transformation. Such an embodiment of fragile femininity artists and poets would picture only on a sun dappled lawn under a canopy of flowering branches, in a garden where larkspur and snapdragons cluster and the paths are bordered with hearts-ease and mignonette.

There is a veil to be had for the girl who insists on a modern note. Myrna Loy's "pill box" tilted over one eyebrow is the last word in sophistication, though yards of "bridal illusion" trail down from its saucy crown. Short, circular face veils are being shown. Medieval as kings, queens, and crusades are the tight little skull caps of lace to which the veil is attached at the nape of the neck.

White Costume Jewelry Is Here for Summer Girl

White costume bracelets, pins, earrings, clips, and some multi-strand necklaces, together with compacts and vanities of chalk white enamel, are new arrivals for the sun-tanned summer girl. Some of the newest pieces are patterned to look like cotton pique, in waffle weaves, wales or narrow ribs or small squares.

SUMMER RUG OF CRASH STRIPS IS A RECENT IDEA

A New York decorator suggests a change from the regulation summer rugs. It's made by simply sewing together wide strips of linen crash and laying it over a patented floor cushioning such as is used under rugs.

Another introduces the clever idea of using pique for slip covers. In pure white with a wide wale and bound in a bright blue, green, or orange it is ever so smart. Practical, too, for it launders like a handkerchief.

Boulle Inlay Furniture Named After Frenchman

Boulle or Buhl work in furniture is so called because of one Charles André Boulle, who lived and worked in Paris in the 17th and 18th centuries. He was noted for the beautiful inlays of stained shell, brass, and white metal with which he decorated his tables, cabinets, desks, etc. The English spell his name Buhl.

SMART LINES OF NEGLIGEES SEEN IN LOOP SHOPS

Easy for Matron to Pick Her Favorite.

BY MABEL BRYANT.

Never has there been a smarter assortment of negligees, hostess or tea gowns than are shown in the shops today, nor a larger variety to choose from. Just a year or two ago every woman wanted her fling with the pajama fad. Lounging pajamas may still be popular with the young moderns, but this kind of garment hasn't the graceful lines that are so flattering to the full figure as lacy, billowy chiffon or cut velvet negligees. Matrons still cling to their pet negligee, and well they may.

When on a shopping spree you simply must not miss looking at the sophisticated negligees by which we were so entranced in one of our smart shops in the loop when we went in search for 'negs' just a wee bit different.

Such lovely things we saw are worthy of description, and besides being of fine quality and smart lines, they were so reasonable in price that no woman, whether she is one of those who have abundant time to lounge around or the business woman, should be without one—or several.

Astonishing for the Price.

The negligees of the hour seem to be those of romantic lace, semi-fitting and either ankle length or with trains. They are lined with chiffon or heavy crêpe satin in your favorite shades of shell pink, blue or green. These gowns have little double or single capelets, while others have the little cap sleeve. A handsome moire ribbon girdle or flower, if you prefer, adds the finishing touch at the waist. These lovely negligees are most astonishing for the inexpensive price while still retaining an expensive look.

Other negligees a little higher in price come in ecru lace, and may also be had in colored lace of raspberry pink, Eleanor blue and a new shade called ice green which is quite as cool looking as its name. These robes have knee length flounces of plain net, giving the garment soft graceful lines.

One of the smartest negligees we tried on and were loath to lay aside was of satinback crêpe of excellent quality. The very full elbow sleeve had a loose cuff made of small roses. This handsome garment had a new trick up its voluminous sleeve, for the long sash could be draped twice around the waist, giving the high empire style waist line which made it a fashionable hostess gown. This style is most becoming to a slender figure, or the sash may be looped loosely once around the waist in careless fashion, transforming it into a flowing negligee.

For Hot Weather Days.

This being national cotton week, the stores are showing a large stock of attractive negligees made up of printed voiles, dimities and lawns as well as our good old friend dotted swiss. For the hot, sticky days ahead of us there is nothing so cool to get into.

Negligees of these cotton fabrics are so cool looking they easily dispel that fagged look which hot weather produces to most of us. These dainty little negligees tub very easily, which is a good feature not to be ignored. They are so low in price that almost every woman will be tempted to 'hoard' a few for the "ninety in the shade" days.

STRANGE PIONEER RECORDS FOUND IN OLD VAULTS

Powhatan, Ark., May 16.—Reposing in the vault of the courthouse at Powhatan, which the voters of Lawrence county recently refused to abolish as one of the two county seats of Lawrence county, are some old records which contain highly interesting facts.

They are strange old records telling of a people long dead, of romances that blossomed and faded, of a country being born of its struggles to attain a position in the world. One of the interesting pages of a record contains the marriage of Archibald Yell, Arkansas soldier, judge, governor, and congressman. Let the record tell the story:

"I hereby certify that I did solemnly solemnize the rights of matrimony between Archibald Yell and Marie Ficklin on July 7, 1837. B. Lee, P. E. D. W. Lowe, clerk."

Clay Sloan of Black Rock, plantation owner and former clerk of the county of Lawrence, said that in the early days marriage had little of the proceedings of today. It simply consisted of the bride and groom going to a justice of the peace or a minister and making known the fact that they wanted to be married. There was no such thing, he said, as the marriage licenses we have today.

In the same vaults there is to be found the will of one William Taylor. The will, dated 1835, reads, in part:

"To my first born sons, John, James, and Wesley, I will and bequeath my Negro woman and her increase, with the exception of her oldest child, Mary, which I bequeath to my last son, of first wife, Joseph. I also will and bequeath to Leah, my wife, one large plow and one small one, two sets of gearing, two hoes, and two clevises."

Fabric Handbags Offered in Almost Every Material

Fabric handbags are available in practically any and every material from honey beige tweed to crisp checkered ginghams and lots of colored linens. This year's crops of wooden beaded bags are made to stand lots of wear. This year the beads are woven in the material, not just sewed to it as they were last year.

33 Women Are Members of Vermont University Faculty

Burlington, Va., May 16.—Thirty-three women are members of the faculty of the University of Vermont. They are connected with every college except the college of engineering. Prior to 1872 women were barred from the university even as students. Yet the university graduated the first Phi Beta Kappa woman in the United States.

White Season's Color Note for Gloves, Fashion Decrees

BY PHYLLIS HAMMOND.

As the transition of a young pigtailed and scrub-cheeked lady of school books and jump ropes into the frivolous though sophisticated debutante, so are gloves changing with these warmer days.

Throughout the length of State street, white pique is the most flaunted fad in hand wear. However, where plain kid and cotton sufficed in days gone by, there is now no length to which novel actions in cut, color, and material of these "necessaries" may go. There is no spring or summer costume, however tailored, however feminine, which may not be artistically complemented by them.

Three Kinds of Pique.

Let's take a dash into the pique world and view the type of gloves it's turning out. First, there are three kinds of pique, plain, waffle weave, and silk. Though the slip-on type is popular, fast becoming favored are those with flaring cuffs of contrasting materials. They are for more beruffled costumes and are of satin and organdy. A clever note is added by inserts of net between the fingers, which keep the gloves shaped nicely to your hand. The color note is white, whiter, and whitest.

A real find this season are the gloves being shown of linen crash with suede palms. They are perfect for driving on sultry days. The material is of such lightness as to afford comfort. The suede palms will wear well as you grip the wheel and do not soil easily. What more could the feminine motorist ask?

Scarfs, Gloves Match.

Planning to buy a new scarf for your suit? In seeking a piquant touch, you'll find it today [though you couldn't a year ago] in matching sets of scarf and gloves in dotted or checked silk. Yes, the gloves are of the same material, swaggery slip-ons of identical design. Red and blue polka dots, small dots, and checks are being shown most.

Continuing to view along the line, chic daytime gloves that are both smart and cool we will now consider those fair ladies with a weakness for kid. Devotees may forsake the ever perspiring palm and turn to discover the new perforated kid gloves, new being sold. They are lovely in shades of gray and beige, and leave you lacking that "hot-handed" feeling.

For the summer evenings, when you will sway to music in bouffant organdies or soft mousseline de soie, romantic lacy mitts are being shown. Cotton crocheted gloves with stiffly starched cuffs that flare in points, reminiscent of Dutch caps are also being featured by State street stores, along with silk net.

CORNELL FOUNDER OF COLLEGE AND TELEGRAPH FIRM

Ithaca, N. Y., May 16.—Ezra Cornell, probably most widely known for his beneficence which resulted in the founding of Cornell university here, has a far greater claim to fame than his philanthropies, it was recalled at a recent meeting of educators here.

His greatest achievement was the founding of the Western Union Telegraph company, and it was this company which yielded him the great fortune which later permitted him to found the university on the shores of Cayuga lake in New York.

Cornell was born at Westchester Landing in New York in 1897, later, at the age of 21, settling at Ithaca. He was a mechanic and a miller at that time, but became interested in telegraphy and took a prominent part in the construction of telegraph lines around his home. It was this activity which led him to the formation of the telegraph company which made his fortune.

THE GUMPS—INTRODUCING COUNT BESSFORD

Big Classes Await Instructors.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The jury of five leading professionals who will decide the winners of THE TRIBUNE Golf school, sponsored by the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, have more than two months to go before rendering their verdict, but already they have joined in handing down a decision on the school and its purpose.

Tommy Armour of Medinah, Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, Jock Hutchison of Glen View, and Bob MacDonald all agreed upon being asked to serve on the jury that the school was a natural, not only for stimulating interest in golf, but also for helping beginners to get started, as well as to improve the play of those already playing, since no one is barred from enrolling in the school, whether he or she has played the game ten months or ten years or not at all.

Form Is the Thing.

This quintet, none of whom needs introduction as a player or teacher, has praised the effort to attract newcomers to golf, many of whom have never played because of the mental hazard of advancing to a tee for the first time and swinging a club before a group of seasoned players. Such simple details as the grip, the stance, and the swing, which form the foundation of any player's game, be he a par or a 90 shooter, will be stressed in the lessons which will get under way at each of the 27 member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association next Monday night.

Entries have been such that all records for any sport series sponsored by THE TRIBUNE—Golden Gloves, Silver Skates, ski meets and swimming races—have been broken already. Mid-City, Harlem, Big Oaks, and Evergreen have drawn the heaviest enrollment. Prospective students are requested to glance over the list of courses in the coupon published in the sports section, for they will find many courses that can be reached almost as easily as the four mentioned above. They will derive more benefit from taking lessons with a smaller class than they will with a large group.

School Begins Monday.

Enrollment in the school entails no obligation for the prospective student. There is no registration fee and no fee will be charged for admission to the course at class time. The only requirement is filling out the enrollment blank printed in this section, designating the course at which you wish to take the lessons, and mailing it to the Golf Editor, care of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago, Ill.

THE TRIBUNE school will begin next Monday evening with a general explanation of the lessons given at each of the 27 courses by the home professional and his assistants. The first men's class will be conducted Tuesday evening, the first women's class on Wednesday, the first girls' class on Thursday, and the first boys' class on Friday. Subsequent classes will be held weekly on these same nights until six lessons have been given.

At the conclusion of the sixth lesson each professional will choose his best pupil in each of the four classes, reducing the school to 108 pupils. These will meet in a form competition on July 5, their merits to be judged by Armour, Cooper, Walsh, Hutchison, and MacDonald. The same 108 will come together on July 8 in an 18 hole medal play tournament, wherein they will demonstrate the results of their teachings.

Antlers, Parker Nall; Glenbard, Joe Sturm; Harlem, Jack Philpot; Hillcrest, Buck Ewing; Indian Head, Tom Geary; White Pines, Jack Daray; Woodridge, Bob Maire; Chicago Meadows, Les MacArthur; Cog-Hill, Abe Espinosa; Evergreen, Al Megeff; Golfmoor, Con McGinnis; Hickory Hills, Harry Adams; Kinsman, Paul Drews; Oak Hills, Dave MacIntosh; Pipe O' Peace, Bill Pachot; Walnut Hills, Pat Cusack; Westgate Valley, Tom Walsh; Big Oaks, Jack Sturm; Elmgate, Jack Croake; Mid-City, Norman Faunce; Northbrook, George Jenkins; Pickwick, Joe Roseman; Rob Roy, John Reuter; Techny Fields, Jock Anderson; Vernon, Ted Woolley; Lake Avenue Day-Night golf, Bill Crawford, and Midwest, Jack Cloudas.

THE TRIBUNE will award eight prizes—four trophies to the winners of form contests and a bag and a set of clubs to each of the four winners of the eighteen hole tournament. These same eight will receive a playing membership good for the balance of the season at all of the 27 member courses from the Daily Fee association and second and third place winners will take home a dozen balls. The association also will award a playing membership to each of the four winners at each course, good for the remainder of the year at the course where he or she took the lessons.

WAKE LETTER BOX.

DEAR WAKE: Just now it is the vogue to razz our Cubs because of their indifferent showing so far this season. You are a racing fan and familiar with the turf expression "it's too bad to be true" when applied to one poor race run by some horse. The showing of the Cubs so far is "too bad to be true." They will do better.

Now remember, the Cubs probably were not the best team in the National league at the end of the 1932 season. Pittsburgh was. Yet the Cubs won the pennant for us, largely due to Lon Warneke. True, the world series more than realized our worst fears for them.

But my point is our lack of loyalty. We probably haven't a championship outfit this year. It is just as probable, however, we have a contender, or at least a team which will finish in the first division. It burns me up to have all this razzing whenever we're in a losing streak, and this is not helped by south side prating of loyalty to the White Sox, no matter what happens.

Will you kindly explain why air mail postage rates are 8 cents for the first ounce and 13 cents for each additional ounce? By the gauge of ordinary business the rate would be 13 cents for the first ounce and 8 cents for each additional ounce. Curious.

The Wake has theories on this subject, but we'll try for an official explanation from Postmaster General Farley. If he replies we'll publish it, otherwise we'll expound our own theories.

When and where does one reserve tickets for THE TRIBUNE Golden Gloves bouts against the Irish amateur boxers on Aug. 2? I expect to be visiting A Century of Progress at that time and want a choice location for the international bouts.

Scale of prices and directions for obtaining reservations by mail will appear in these columns later, after details have been arranged.

HAPPY DAY.

Sun a little higher,
Breezes spicy sweet.
Meadows greenly signal
Where the Gypsies meet.
Sun a little warmer,
Goldenly it falls
O'er the hills-of-morning
Where a robin calls.

Life a little braver
All along the line.
Where the drifts were savage
Dandelions shine.
Thrushes in the hedges
Pledge their love anew.
Fondly life discovers
Only dreams are true.

Faith has spoken courage—
Out of bondage now.
Time for high adventure—
All the gods allow.
Sun a season higher,
Song a joyous tide.
Happy world where Maytime

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GLEN EAGLES, Scotland, May 16.—Enid Wilson, defending champion, advanced to the fourth round of the annual British women's golf championship tournament today by scoring two victories. She defeated Mrs. H. K. Percy, 4 and 3, and then triumphed over Beryl Brown, 7 and 5.

Diana Fishwick, who held the championship three years ago, also entered the fourth round by defeating Eileen Pentonyh, 9 and 3, and then overwhelming Miss M. Couper, 9 and 8. Doris Park, the medalist, won from Miss D. Stenhouse, 4 and 3, to advance to the fourth round.

STEWARDS BAR 2 MORE JOCKEYS AT SPORTSMAN'S

BY FRENCH LANE.

Racing officials at the Sportsman's Park course, headed by Presiding Steward Sam C. Nuckols, last night told two more jockeys—M. Dupuy and D. Burney—to pack up their boots and saddles and get off the race track.

It was their final move in breaking up a jockey ring, which, according to all reports, started operating on Saturday and ended on Monday afternoon with the revocation of the licenses of Jockey Lester Dye and Owner M. Simmons and the banishment of the horse Semester, owned by Simmons.

As is usually the case, the cheaters got cheated. In the Semester race Jockey Dye confessed that he and some of the other riders were betting on Shoot to win.

It is not known whether Dupuy, who won that race on Whisking, was or was not a member of this group. It was apparent, however, that Whisking won through his own courage and not through any help from his rider. The officials did not like the reluctant ride Dupuy gave the winner.

More Crooked Work.

The officials heard another story to the effect that the same jockey ring had wagered on Marabou to win the first race on Saturday afternoon and that Jockey Depuy saw to it that the favorite Lofty Heights was out of the money. Then along came the long shot Bridgeport to beat Marabou in a close finish, so the cheaters also lost their money in that race.

"Understand, we are not ruling Dupuy and Burney off, nor even suspending them," one of the high officials at Sportsman's park said last night. "Yet we don't like the stories we have heard about their activities and don't want them to ride at our track any more."

Presiding Steward Nuckols gained fame several years ago when he broke up a jockey ring operating at the Coney Island track near Cincinnati and at Latonia. He ruled off a dozen owners and riders, among them Harry Stutts, one of the most brilliant jockeys in the country.

Stutts Is Still Out of Luck.

The most powerful influences in America have sought their reinstatement, particularly that of Stutts. High officials in Washington have asked Judge Nuckols to relent and give Stutts one more chance. Judge Nuckols turned a deaf ear to all their pleadings and Stutts not only is barred from riding but he is not allowed on any recognized race track in the country.

At the time he was suspended he was under contract to the Audley Farm stable of Virginia, maintained then by Montfort and B. B. Jones, wealthy oil operators. This was one of the most pretentious stables racing in America at the time.

The rulings of Judge Nuckols had a wholesome effect on the racing at Sportsman's park yesterday. Jockeys seemed to be trying even too hard. Such an old master as Will Fronk, after getting trimmed on Hal Price Headley's Grey Sash, in the first race showed up after the race with a black eye.

Thinks the Horse Did It.

Jockey Fronk thinks that his mount threw up her head and hit him in the eye. Anyway, he was trying so hard to win he doesn't know what happened to his eye, except that he is carrying a "shiner."

The best race of the day found the noted old sprinter, Hot Shot, owned by C. E. Davison, as a surprise winner. This came in the Homewood handicap, a dash at five furlongs. Jockey Eddie Arcaro sent him to the front in the stretch to win by a head from Making Bubbles.

The half mile track champion, Diaquri, had been the early leader and for half a mile she appeared to have the race at her mercy. Then she grew a bit weak and melted before the challenges of Hot Shot and Making Bubbles.

Hot Shot ran the five furlongs in 1:04 1-5. He holds the track record for the distance, a mark of 1:01 2-5.

SENATORS BEAT INDIANS, 11 TO 10, IN 12 INNINGS

Washington, D. C., May 16.—(AP)—The Washington Senators defeated Cleveland today in 12 innings, 11 to 10, and climbed into a theoretical three way tie with the New York Yankees and the Indians for first place in the American league. The Yankees, however, lead in percentage with .625 because they have played fewer games. The Senators-Indians battle saw the two teams use 33 players between them to produce a total of 43 hits.

Only about 1,000 fans saw the game, which started in a light drizzle, on a rain soaked field, was played in bright sunshine, and ended almost after nightfall.

After three hours and 24 minutes of baseball, in which almost everything happened, Joe Kuhel, Senator first baseman, stepped up to the plate with the bases filled and singled to bring across the winning run

Kuhel was the batting hero of the day. His five hits included a home run over the right field fence in addition to a triple.

Cissell, playing second base for Cleveland, was banished from the game in the tenth inning after he objected to the three strikes called on him by Umpire Van Grafian.

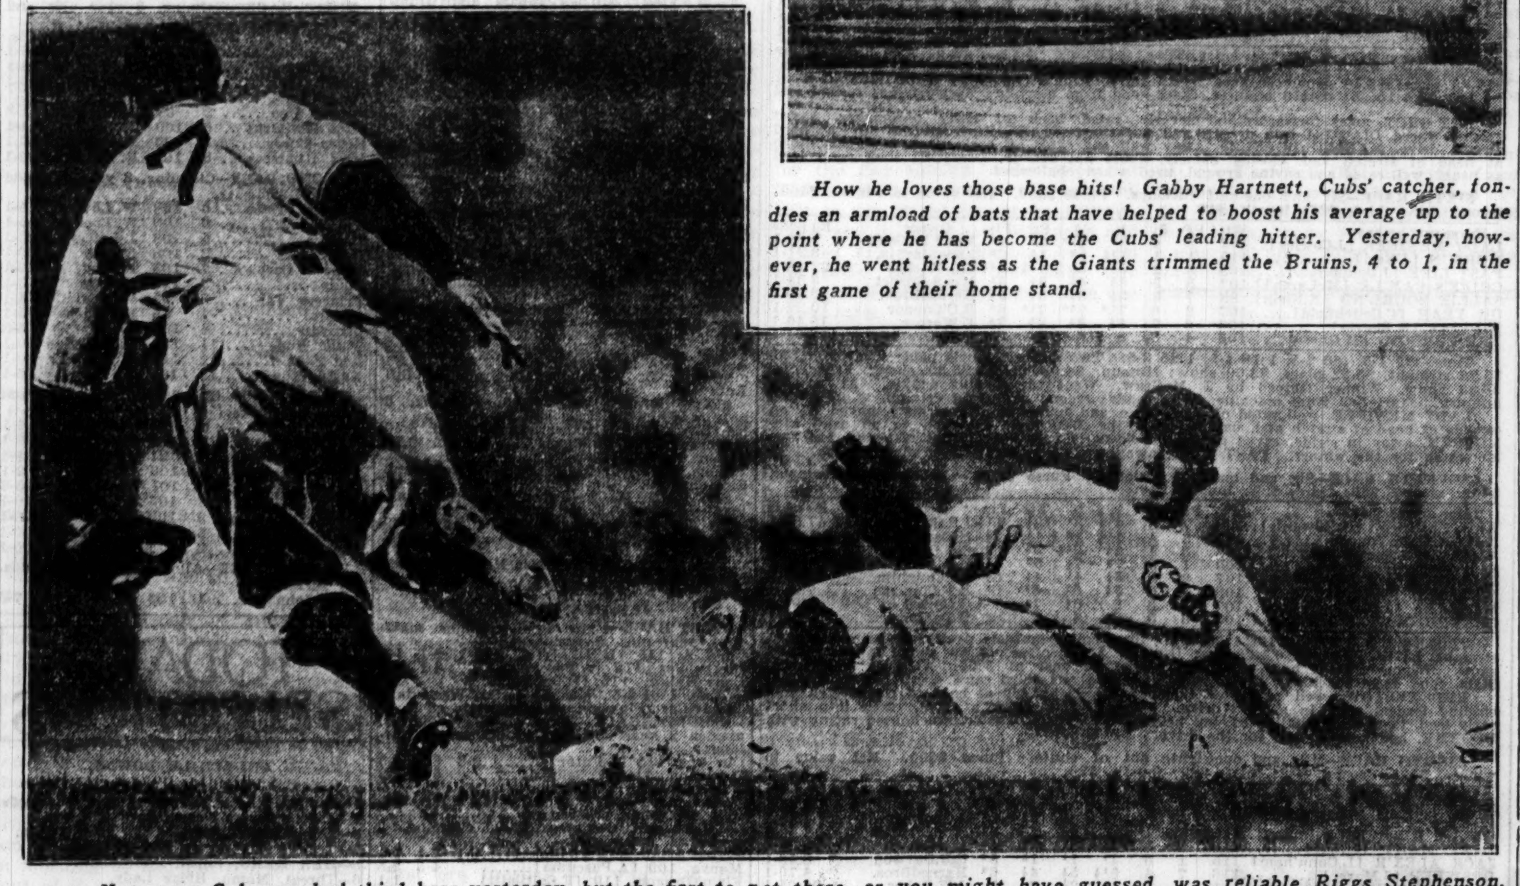
WHEN THE CUBS CAME HOME

How he loves those base hits! Gabby Hartnett, Cubs' catcher, fondles an armload of bats that have helped to boost his average up to the point where he has become the Cubs' leading hitter. Yesterday, however, he went hitless as the Giants trimmed the Bruins, 4 to 1, in the first game of their home stand.



Not many Cubs reached third base yesterday, but the first to get there, as you might have guessed, was reliable Riggs Stephenson. Stevie led off the second inning with a double to the left field cornr and went to third a minute later when Frank Demaree flied to Mel Ott in right field. Here he is sliding into the bag while Johnny Vergez, Giants' third baseman, awaits the ball.

This Is the Week Big 10 Marks Count

BY WILFRID SMITH.

No matter how many good races are held, or how close the competition in the field events, there's always an added thrill if an athlete comes to the mark who can jump farther, run faster or throw a weight better than any other man in the history of the competition. However, so excellent have all time records become through constant attack by a select band of athletes, that only a few of the 16 records in the western conference will be in danger when the meet is renewed for the 33d time this week-end at Dyche stadium.

Frequently an athlete will demonstrate he can surpass the conference record, but when the one day arrives on which his achievement must be made he is frustrated by weather conditions or by his own physical condition which isn't quite as perfect as when he bettered existing mark.

Keller Must Hustle.

Consider Jack Keller, the outstanding collegiate hurdler in the United States, who will try for a record Saturday in the high hurdle race. Last year Keller was in top form. So was George Saling, who recently was killed in an automobile accident. The

MALONE FORCES IN TWO RUNS IN FIRST INNING

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Carl Hubbell, the best lefty in the National league! Of all the gents the Cubs could pick to spot two runs in the first inning without even making his mates knock the ball out of the infield, they had to get big hearted with this Hubbell. And Carl went right on and gave them a fine 4 to 1 spanking yesterday afternoon in the opener with the New York Giants.

Pat Malone was the big Santa Claus. Pat has been doing some fair pitching this season [without doing much winning] but yesterday his behavior was most deplorable, not to say wild and sour.

We'll probably go on to tell you about what happened after that benevolent first inning, though the chore is superfluous. The whole day's business was packed in that first inning. Here's what happened:

Boy, the Smelling Salts!

After English had thrown out Moore, Critz tapped one down to Gink Hendrick, subbing for Manager Grimm at first base. It took some time for Gink to grasp the ball, and by that time Hughie was on first. It was scored a single. Ott shot a liner at Malone's glove. The ball caromed to the one spot where no one could retrieve it. So Hughie was on second and Mel on first, each credited with a scratch infield single.

Now it seems that Malone recently has been talking almost constantly about a black cat pouncing on his back every time he picks up a baseball. It was apparent from Pat's twitching that he was thinking about the phantom black cat when he pitched to Leslie, whom he walked, filling the bases. When Davis came to the plate it became even more evident that the black cat superstition was working on Mr. Malone. He walked Davis, forcing in Critz with a run. So up came Vergez. Maybe there WAS a black cat on Pat's back, for he walked Vergez, forcing in Ott.

At this point Manager Grimm told Pat to take his cat into the clubhouse and drown it, whereupon Tinning came in, forced Leslie at the plate and made Mancuso fly to Stephenson. From then until he retired for a pinch batter in the seventh, Tinning was a very good pitcher, allowing only three singles, one in the fourth, one in the fifth and one in the seventh.

Cubs' Hits Are Strangers.

The Cubs later outhit the Giants, 8 to 6, but the trouble was that most of the hitting was done by a select personnel who weren't close enough to each other to get a concerted attack under way. Stephenson made a double and two singles his first three times up; English singled his first two trips to the plate and Jurges registered a pair his last two times at bat. Demaree got the odd one.

Babe Herman was a complete bust again, two of his fadeouts coming with two on. Babe tapped to Ryan once, fanned once, and tapped to Critz twice. Gabby Hartnett had one of his few bad days of the year, though he did give the customers a thrill when he backed Ott against the right field screen with two on base and the score 3 to 0 in the sixth.

While Hubbell was unwilling to do anything to hurt his earned run average, he showed he had a heart after all, for it was his second error of the day that enabled the Cubs to duck the shame of standing for two shutouts in a row. In the seventh Jurges led off with a single to center. Taylor, batting for Tinning, bounced one to Hubbell, who made a high toss over Ryan in an effort to launch a double play.

The Cubs Finally Score.

But for some neat backing up by Critz there would have been runners on third and second, but as it turned out Jurges landed on second and Taylor on first. English forced Taylor and Jurges stopped at third. Bill Herman grounded to Ryan, but though English beat the toss to second Critz was able to relay the ball to Leslie in time to get Bill Herman, Jurges scoring. Babe Herman then tapped gently to Critz.

The two runs which the Giants didn't need came in the fifth and ninth innings. In the fifth Moore walked, paused on Critz's fly, took third on Ott's single to right and scored on Leslie's fly to center. In the ninth, with Bush pitching, Mancuso walked, moved to second on Hubbell's sacrifice and scored on Moore's single.

So, you see, walks were the dominent factors in every run made by the Giants, which is significant, because the pitchers up till now have been getting thrown down by the fielders.

Brouillard Knocks Down Slaughter 9 Times in Bout

Boston, Mass., May 16.—(AP)—Lou Brouillard, former welterweight champion, dropped Sammy Slaughter nine times tonight as he outslugged the Terre Haute Negro middleweight for a decisive victory in a 10 round bout at the arena. Brouillard weighed 159 and Slaughter, 159¾.

WOOD RIVER IS WINNER AGAIN AT AURORA TRACK

This Time He Whips Band of Sprinters.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Wood River, one of the best distance runners at the Aurora race track, proved yesterday that sprinters will have to get up early in the morning to beat him even at six furlongs.

In yesterday's feature event on the Exposition Park program he raced in last place to the turn into the stretch, having dropped about half a city block behind the leaders at this stage. Then he went out to catch his rivals. Like an express train passing a string of freight cars he overhauled them one by one and took the lead 70 yards from the finish. Then he drew away to win by a length, Golden West taking second and Astute third.

He Always Gets Up.

In his last 12 starts Wood River has been out of the money only once. In his last seven races he has won five times and finished second twice. But all these events were at a distance and yesterday the fans were afraid that some sprinter would outfoot him over the six furlong route. So he went to the post at odds of 2½ to 1. Bill Lutz was made the 8 to 5 favorite. Wood River paid $7.02 to win, $3.74 to place, and $3.12 to show.

During the first two weeks of the meeting the spectators learned how to pick the winners on sloppy, muddy, and moderately heavy tracks, but yesterday the condition of the running strip baffled them for the first few races. On former occasions favorites were winning with great regularity, but yesterday the long shots and outsiders were leading the way across the finish line. After two weeks of continuous rain the track had begun to dry and was very heavy and stiff.

Araline Pays Well.

In the first race Araline came home ono top at better than 15 to 1, paying his backers $33.10 to win, $12.02 to place and $2.82 to show. He won by three lengths, while Convention and Adder, joint favorites at 6 to 5, finished second and third respectively.

In the second race the odds on favorite, Tarpon, was unable to get in the money, Dr. Rogers winning at three to one. Chris Paschen was second and Beauty Bride third.

Again in the third event an outsider triumphed. Dunes, a horse which has shown little liking for heavy going, came up with a stretch run that carried him to victory by a neck over the popular choice, Adorland, while Relline ran third. The winner paid $16.26. Daily double tickets on Dr. Rogers and Dunes were cashed for $102.04.

Old Bill Canters Home.

Then the popular Old Bill brought some encouragement to the crowd by proving that he could run in mud of any texture. He had many supporters, going to the post at a little better than two to one, though Imelda was regarded somewhat more highly by the bettors.

While Lord Tournament and Imelda fought for the lead in the early part of the five and a half furlongs run, Monte Parke rated Old Bill in third place. Swinging into the stretch Old Bill went to the front and continued strongly until he crossed the finish line at a canter, four lengths ahead of Sabina H. Sweet Pal came fast to take third place.

Dominus Wins Over Favorite by 6 Lengths

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—William Woodward's Dominus which was not sent west for the Kentucky Derby, surprised most spectators at Jamaica today when he defeated a field in which the Brookmeade stable's Inlander was made a 7 to 5 favorite. Inlander ran unplaced in both the Derby and Preakness, but was considered by his admirers well able to cope with the field in the Birchwood purse today.

At the end of the mile and seventy yards Inlander was second, six lengths back of Dominus and one before Joseph E. Widener's Guardian which was well backed at 2 to 1. Dominus opened at 7 to 2 and went up in the betting to 10 to 1.

Wins as He Pleases.

Taking the track at the rise of the barrier the 3 year old son of Stimulus and Gravitate led all the way, to score as he pleased. The winner's time was 1:43, equal to the best made so far during the meeting. All of the placed horses are eligibles for the Wood Memorial Saturday.

Joseph E. Widener scored his first success of the meeting when his Fair Play colt, Even Stephen, ran a powerful race to take the Expectation purse at a mile and seventy yards. In the money in all five of his juvenile starts, Even Stephen took the lead at the far turn and ran on strongly to finish a head before Marshall Field's Nimbus which, like the winner, was making his first start of the year.

Nimbus was well backed, but the Widener color bearer receded in the betting from 3 to 1 to 5 to 1. He carried 112 pounds and was piloted by the veteran Mack Garner, who was forced to a hard drive by the stretch charge of Nimbus.

TELESCOPIC POLE FOUND EFFECTIVE IN WAR ON CROWS

BY BOB BECKER.

There are young birds in the crow nests which can be seen in the woods of Chicagoland at this time of the year. These young crows are good eating, too. Therefore an anti-crow campaign during May involving the destruction of nests and young will not only be a good conservation act, but also will provide food for the nest raiders.

When we were checking up on the birds near Wheaton, Ill., the other day we struck the trail of a group of crow hunters who had been combing nests for young birds. Their method of wrecking nests was ingenious, involving no use of shotguns. The crow nests were reached with a jointed pole which could be adjusted to any length. When they found a nest this jointed pole was thrust into it and out would come both the adult and young birds.

Telescopic Pole Has Advantage.

This use of a jointed, telescopic poke pole has its advantages especially if the crow hunter is after young birds for table use. The average farmer, estate owner, or hunter uses a shotgun against nesting crows. That is the way we raided nests a few days ago. With many old crow nests in the woods it was rather difficult to tell which one was occupied. We picked out the ones which presented the best evidence of use and bombarded them with a charge of heavy shot. This shooting is effective if the shooter is thorough. But it is difficult to retrieve young birds because one must do considerable tree climbing to reach the nests. This is where the poke pole does better work than the shotgun. With the pole you can destroy the nest and throw either the eggs or young to the ground.

We discovered the other day that a crow call can be used to determine when a nest is occupied. There wasn't a crow in sight when we stopped to examine three nests in a clump of oak woods. While debating about which one to bombard first we brought out the caller and sounded the 4-11 alarm, which usually stirs up any crows within hearing distance.

Crow Calls for Help.

Much to our surprise a crow popped out of a nest not forty feet from us. This bird appeared to be frightened by the riot call and flew just a short distance to perch in a tree and call for help.

The next few weeks offer the best opportunity for an anti-crow campaign in Chicagoland. It is also the best time to set out an owl decoy and decimate the crow ranks with a shotgun. Conservationists point out that the sportsmen who will take time to conduct a war against these birds are helping our desirable game and song birds.

White Is Named Physical Director for World's Fair

Charlie White, for more than a decade one of the world's leading lightweight boxers, yesterday was appointed physical director of A Century of Progress Exposition. He will conduct classes at the beach on the fair grounds afternoon and evenings, starting June 1.

At the age of 14 White was tubercular and was told by physicians he wouldn't live two years. A few months after taking up boxing his health improved and he soon was fighting all comers for the 135 pound championship. Although he never gained the title, White engaged in 23 bouts against champions.

Not how much in price, but how much in real enjoyment—that gives the answer to economy in your cigar budget.

And there is more real enjoyment in one El Producto than any quantity of cigars made to sell "at a price."

That is due to just one thing—Quality! Quality in the tobaccos, in the blending, in the workmanship. You'll never appreciate just how good quality can be until you've smoked an El Producto, with its mild, yet sparkling character—burning evenly and holding its fire, no matter how slowly you smoke.

PIRATES WHIP PHILLIES, 8 TO 4, FOR 2D STRAIGHT

Pittsburgh Gets 10 Hits Off Three Pitchers.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 16.—(AP)—Pittsburgh pounded three Philadelphia pitchers for an 8 to 4 victory today in winning its second straight game from the Phillies and tightening the Pirates' hold on first place.

Bill Swift pitched a steady game for the Pirates, but was given poor support. Three errors accounted for the four runs scored against him. He did not permit a base on balls and fanned five. Of the 10 hits made off the Philadelphia pitchers, seven were for extra bases. The first six were doubles. Gus Suhr hit a home run into the stands off Liska's delivery in the seventh: Score:

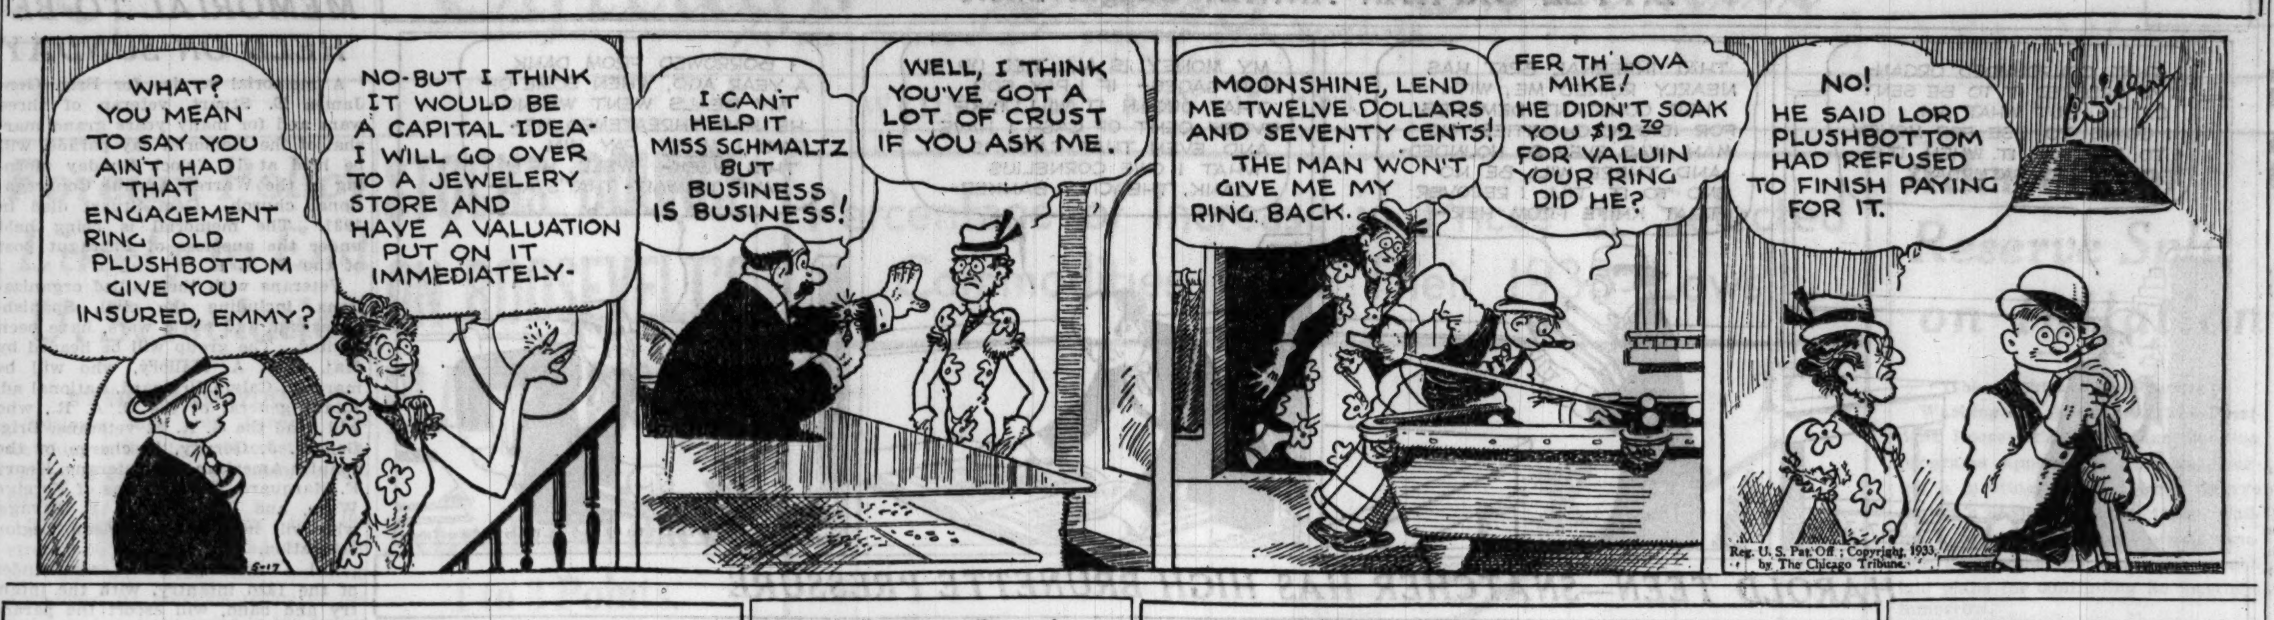
MOON MULLINS—A DIAMOND IN THE ROUGH



A MINNESOTA FLYER

pair figured to press each other so that a record should result. And it was that kind of a race. Keller won the high hurdles in the astounding time of 14 seconds, easily breaking Lee Sentman's conference mark of 14 4-10 seconds. But because there was a favoring wind the mark could not be allowed although there was no occasion to doubt that under ordinary conditions Keller would have shaded the record anyway.

Twice this year Keller has run the high hurdles in 14.3 seconds, but if he does it Saturday he must have fair weather, no wind and be in his best form. The low hurdle mark apparently is safe. Rockaway set the standard at 22.8 seconds [with starting blocks] which is lower than the approved world record and since the conference now will contest the low hurdles around a curve instead of on the straight away, in the interests of the spectators, none, not even Keller, can break Rockaway's mark.

Two Other Marks Broken.

Two other conference records have been surpassed in the outdoor campaign this season. Charles Hornbostel of Indiana has run the mile in 4:15.1, which is .7 of a second less than the 16 year old record that belongs to Fall or Oberlin, and dates back to the days when the conference meet was open to all comers. This is Hornbostel's best time, which probably means he won't equal it Saturday.

Last year Henry Brocksmith had even a better opportunity to write his name in the permanent records, if not in the mile, then certainly in the two mile, for he established an American two mile record in the 1932 Drake relays more than eight seconds faster than George Wright of Wisconsin had run the distance for the Big Ten mark in 1931. But the same stiff breeze which had aided Keller handicapped Brocksmith in the back stretch and he couldn't set a record although he won the race. Then, too, Brocksmith had run the mile just one hour before his two mile run.

Last Chance at Hammer.

The other Big Ten record which has been broken this spring is the hammer throw. Biddinger of Indiana and Cox of Michigan have thrown the weight over 163 feet while the conference mark is 161 7⅞ inches. It was set by Ketz of Michigan in 1928. Perhaps Biddinger or Cox will create a new mark, at any rate, it's the last chance for the conference has voted to do away with the event. The hammer will be decided on Friday.

If the outstanding performers in other events do just a bit better than ever before, there are other marks which may be surpassed. The list of these possibilities are:

Half mile run, recorded 1:53.2 by Scott of Mississippi A. & M. in 1916. Hornbostel has a chance to better this time.

Pole vault, record 13 feet 10⅜ inches, by McDermont of Illinois, in 1930. Lennington of Illinois has vaulted 13 feet 10 inches and so has his teammate Seeley.

High jump, record 6 feet 6 inches, by Russell of Chicago, in 1925. Ward of Michigan, surpassed this last year in the National Collegiate track meet, but hasn't since.

Javelin throw, record 207 feet 7 3-5 inches by Northrop of Michigan in 1926. Duane Purvis of Purdue has thrown the javelin over 206 feet this spring.

The mile relay record might be broken by Michigan or Indiana. The present mark of 3:18.5 was established by Michigan in 1931. With favorable weather either of these universities might set a new time. Michigan has won the relay for the last three years.

State P. G. A. Picks Cog-Hill for Tourney

The Illinois Professional Golfers' association has chosen the Cog Hill Golf and Country club, 119th street and Archer, as the site of its 1933 tournament, according to Ed Newkirk, secretary of the association. The tournament, a 36 hole event, will be held on July 24, with both of the club's 18 hole courses in use. Such stars as Harry Cooper, Frank Walsh, Tommy Armour, Abe Espinosa, Horton Smith, Jock Hutchison, Bob MacDonald, Harry Hampton, and George Smith are expected to compete. Cooper and Walsh tied for the championship at Glen Oak last year, with the former winning the playoff.

The Columbian Country club has added another open tournament to the Chicago calendar for 1933 with the announcement of a $1,000 event to be held at the club on Aug. 27, immediately following the western open championship, which will be decided at Olympia Fields on Aug. 24, 25, and 26. The tournament will be at 36 holes medal play, with trophies for amateurs and a special cash prize for a course record, according to Jack Johnston, manager and professional.

The first tournament of the North Shore Golf league will be held at the Evanston Golf club on May 24, according to Chester S. Williams of Bob o' Link, secretary of the league. The remainder of the schedule will be played as follows: June, 14, Briergate; June 29, Skokie; July 19, Westmoreland; Aug. 16, North Shore, and Aug. 29, Sunset Ridge.

The Vernon Country club, operated by C. A. Nash, president of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, will hold open house Friday night. Dancing and a showing of Bobby Jones' movies will be featured.

Tam o' Shanter suffered little from the recent rains, despite the fact that the north branch of the river, which has been flooded, passes through the course, giving it seven water holes. Dr. R. L. Borchert, president of the club, declares that the excess water has helped, rather than harmed, the course. Tam o' Shanter will inaugurate its social season Saturday night with a dancing party, with prize competition in golf Saturday and Sunday.

Greetings to the half million golfers expected to attend A Century of Progress exposition during 1933 have been extended by R. Arthur Wood, Harry E. Radix, and Charles A. Nash, presidents, respectively, of the Western, Chicago district, and Chicago Daily Fee golf associations. The greetings are incorporated in a guide book to Chicago's 220 private and public courses, published by A Century of Progress Golf registration bureau, located in the Lytton building, in cooperation with the three associations.

Highlights of the national open qualifying rounds at Medinah Monday: George Dawson, who eventually won the medal, misjudging his drive at the short ninth, and so into the drink for a five. . . . Hank Bowbeer coming in with a pair of fours on the last two holes of the No. 1 course for 160 and a place in the playoffs, only to lose out. He sank a forty footer for a birdie four on the last green. . . . Carl Gustafson making a shaky finish of 5-7-5 after knocking a caddy cold with his ball at the fifteenth, but coming back to win himself a place in the twilight playoff. . . . Harry Hampton shooting a great 74 on his second round after it appeared a morning 83 had put him hopelessly out of it.

The first handicap of the Chicago District Golf association, scheduled for today at the Glen View club, has been postponed until next Wednesday, due to the swollen condition of the north branch of the Chicago river.

North Central Plays Lake Forest Today

No Game for Cubs Today; 2 Tomorrow

Today is an off day for the Cubs, so decreed to make a double header for the flag raising celebration at Wrigley field tomorrow. Warneke and Grimes are slated to oppose Fitzsimmons and Schumacher. Warneke and Grimes are not invincible, but just the same they are the only Cub pitchers who have won more than one game each.

The Cub losing streak now has mounted to four games. It is the second time this year that the fading champs have found themselves with a four game losing streak on their hands.

Manager Grimm benched himself in the hope that a rest will enable him to regain his health. A flock of docs swooped down on him Monday and opined that there was an acid condition in his blood. So Charley has gone on a diet and will let Gink Hendrick hold down his job until he becomes the Charley of old.

The Cubs management will accept applications today for ladies' day tickets for the game on May 26, when the Cubs meet the Boston Braves. Only 20,000 tickets will be distributed. No applications will be honored unless accompanied by an addressed, stamped envelope.

KID CHOCOLATE BETTER; HE'LL BOX WATSON FRIDAY

Dublinsky Goes to Pittsburgh to Box Ramey

Harry Dublinsky, west side lightweight, will leave tonight for Pittsburgh, where he is to meet Wesley Ramey of Grand Rapids, Mich., Friday. Ramey attracted nation-wide recognition when he whipped Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, in a nontitle bout recently. Dublinsky has not lost a bout in twelve this year. He also is booked to box at St. Louis, Mo., on May 31. Solly Dukelsky, welterweight stablemate of Dublinsky, will meet Nick Broglio of Herrin, Ill., on the St. Louis card.

Two matches have been added to the outdoor show next Wednesday at Northwest stadium. Tony Muscarello, former Golden Gloves boxer, will face Carl Scalese in one. The other will bring together Frank Sigilio and Joey Haines. Roy Moore, south side welterweight, has replaced Walter Statkus against Young Scotty. Bill Demetral will meet George Mack in a wrestling bout. Two other matches will complete the card, which is headed by Eddie Gill and Homer Sheridan.

It was reported yesterday that Tuffy Griffith guaranteed King Levinsky $5,000 with a percentage privilege when they signed to meet in a ten round contest at Mills stadium on June 2. Levinsky will begin drills at Trafton's gymnasium today. Griffith has been training since his defeat of Otto von Porat at the Coliseum last February.

Mique Malloy announced yesterday that he will present a fifteen round windup bout at the Coliseum on May 26. It will be the first bout at that distance in Illinois in more than thirty years.

Four contests for the show at the Cicero stadium on May 26 were announced yesterday. They are: Willie Oster vs. Freddy Langford, [8]; Jack Moran vs. George Williams, [5]; Izzy Lubansky vs. Leo Ranieri, [4]; Walter Statkus vs. Eddie Stiegal, [4]. There will be a match at six rounds and two at four rounds to round out the bill. Edward Purvis, Cicero matchmaker, is attempting to sign Vincent Sereci, New York 152 pound fighter, and Mickey McKnight for the six round bout.

Ray Tramblie will leave this morning for Rockford, Ill., en route from Louisville, Ky., where he knocked out Bill Rhoderer Monday. Tramblie and Jack Moran have accepted terms for a match in an outdoor show at Sparta stadium on June 2.

CRIPPLED MACKS TAKE DAY OFF, SO SOX REST, TOO

Durham to Test Ailing Arm Today.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—There was a slight delay today in the White Sox's 1933 opener in the eastern half of the American league. There was some rainfall before noon and Mr. Connie Mack, the Athletics' manager, whose boys were supposed to play our boys, decided the engagement might as well be put off until the Chicagoans come this way again later in the summer.

While bearing in mind that the weather was not the kind to stimulate business at the turnstiles, the wily Mack also may have been thinking about the physical state of his stars. They are not in the best of trim. Mr. George Earnshaw, one of the Swarthmore 400, has lumbago, which prevents him from revealing his pitching skill. Eob Grove has a left hander's complaint of some kind and Shortstop Eric McNair has arm trouble. Later Mack thinks he will be able to put forth a better defense and besides a double header will draw more fans.

What's Another Double Header?

The Sox have had so many off days that they didn't object to one more being added to the accumulation. Today's postponement made their eleventh, but two of them already have been disposed of in double headers. Neither was there any objection on the part of Ed Durham, the young Carolinian, who hasn't pitched since May 1 and who didn't do much pitching then. The former Red Sox has been resting in hopes of overcoming an arm ailment which developed when he appeared in the opener of the season at St. Louis on April 12.

The 24 hour respite naturally will help the young man that much more, granting that rest is going to overcome the ailment. He'll work tomorrow and if he turns out a masterpiece there will be some hilarious evening singing by Manager Lew Fonseca, the noted baritone.

Lew to Don His Uniform.

If play is possible tomorrow, Fonseca intends to take one more step in the direction of a return to his duties at first base. He will get into uniform for the first time since he ripped some muscles in his right ankle on April 21. However, he will confine himself to coaching. He has discarded the cane, but still has a noticeable limp which he hopes will have vanished before the week-end.

As soon as the Sox arrived in the east this morning they purchased quantities of newspapers, and the expenditure wasn't with the idea of doing their bit to drive away the depression. They wanted to see what the eastern ball writers had to say about them. What they saw was highly pleasing. The impression along the seaboard seems to be that the Sox will cause more trouble in the league than anticipated.

CYNTHIA MOSLEY DIES IN LONDON; LEITER HEIRESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 16.—Lady Cynthia Mosley, wealthy Leiter heiress and wife of Sir Oswald Mosley, founder of the British Fascist party, died here tonight at a nursing home. She was operated upon a week ago for peritonitis following an attack of acute appendicitis. She was 47 years old.

Her husband, two sisters, Baroness Ravensdale, and Lady Alexandra Metcalfe and the latter's husband, Capt. Edward D. Metcalfe, were at the bedside.

Lady Cynthia was the granddaughter of the late Levi Leiter, pioneer Chicago merchant. Her mother was Mary Leiter Curzon, one time vicerine of India. Her father was the late Marquess Curzon of Kedleston, once British foreign secretary.

Enters Political Life.

Although her annual income was reported to be about $120,000, Lady Cynthia followed in the political footsteps of her rich husband. Both embraced Socialism. Two years ago, when Sir Oswald deserted Socialism to form his "New" party of Fascism she took the stump with him in their rather futile fight to put some life into the organization.

The Leiter heiress was known as one of the most beautiful women in England. She served as a nurse during the war. She married Mosley in 1920, when he had no title. The wedding was one of the most brilliant social events of the year. King George and Queen Mary as well as the Belgian rulers were guests.

Lady Cynthia provided a brilliant political display when she ran for parliament. Her eloquence made a hit. She also distinguished herself in the "give-and-take" of political repartee.

Elected to Parliament.

She was elected to parliament as a Labor member in 1929. In 1931 she resigned from the Labor party to become a member of her husband's Fascist group, which was then being created. The party was wiped out as a parliamentary force in the last elections, but the Mosleys continued their efforts to revive it.

Lady Cynthia visited Chicago for the first time in 1926, partly in connection with the legal contest charging Joseph Leiter, her uncle, with misappropriation of her grandfather's $100,000,000 estate.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From Germany's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

SECURITIES BILL SHORN OF MOST DRASTIC PARTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—The proposed securities-regulation act assumed a much less severe form today as conferees of the senate and house worked to harmonize separate measures passed by the two congressional bodies. Agreement was reached on all major differences.

Through one agreement, possible responsibilities of corporation directors were materially lessened by deletion of a senate provision; through another, a house section was deleted that might have exerted practical censorship over financial advertising in newspapers and other periodicals.

The senate and house bills both provide for registration of complete financial statements of companies issuing securities with the federal trade commission and for the publication of these statistics for the information of investors.

Lighten Directors Responsibility.

The senate conferees receded on a senate provision that would have made directors signing such financial statements unconditionally liable both for criminal prosecution and for civil suits by investors should there be falsifications in the statements.

The house provision, which was agreed to by the conferees, relieves directors of such responsibility if they can prove that "due diligence" has been exercised by themselves in examining the affairs of the companies. This is substantially the provision concerning directors' liability in current laws.

Kill Censorship Provision.

The so-called censorship provision inserted in the bill by the house, which was dropped by the conferees, was rather ambiguous in its wording and subject to various interpretations. It forbade use of the mails or other facilities of interstate commerce for the sale of securities in any states where such securities were forbidden under local "blue sky" laws.

This was interpreted to mean that if "New Jersey laws forbade sale of a certain type of security authorized for sale in New York state, a New York publication advertising that security could not be circulated in New Jersey."

A third agreement reached consisted of a compromise on the length of time a proposed issue of securities should lay dormant between the filing of statistics with the trade commission and the beginning of sales of stock. The conferees set the time as twenty days.

Block Bank Bill Delay.

Democratic leaders in the senate rejected a Republican suggestion to delay consideration of the Glass banking bill until the Louderback impeachmen trial is completed. Senator Robinson said the conclusion of the trial seemed to be in the "almost indefinite future."

Senator Bulkley [Dem., O.] moved to take up the Glass bill, but the vote was deferred at the request of Senator McNary, who said he wanted to confer with Senator Glass on a delay to permit further study of it.

DOLLAR RISES AGAINST POUND; FRANC STEADY

New York, May 16.—The value of the American dollar increased 2 cents today. The pound sterling was quoted at $3.95¾ at the opening and closed at $3.93¾. The French franc was steady.

It is reported there is an understanding among the treasuries of the leading nations to curb the wide fluctuations in currience which were common in recent weeks.

The French franc improved slightly in London, closing at 85.71 francs to the pound. The German mark also did better, closing at 14.67 marks to the pound.

Foreign Policy Likely to End U. S. Isolation

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Business men and bankers are watching with intense interest the unfolding of the administration's foreign policy.

The majority opinion in "the street" is that the United States in the last ten weeks has definitely abandoned its previous policy of isolation and that the trend in the future will be toward closer trade relations between nations.

* *

The President's action yesterday in calling upon 54 nations to agree on nonagression, his insistence upon a tariff truce between nations, and his emphasis upon the world economic conference to be held next month all are interpreted as indications that an effort will be made to break down economic barriers and stimulate international trade.

"We don't yet fully realize how abruptly we have executed an 'about face,'" remarked an executive of a loop bank yesterday.

* *

"In February we were intent upon raising the tariff walls and protecting home industry. Everything possible was being done to keep foreign sellers out of the home market.

"In May we are out to solve the problems of the world, so that the world may be our market. We have cheapened our currency so that we may be in a better position to compete for sales in foreign markets. And we are urging the world to abandon its tariff wars.

"Already, however, we've discovered that it's easier said than done. Even while European nations are seeming to agree to the proposal for a tariff truce they are undermining our proposition with exceptions.

"If the world economic conference should fail it may lead to a reversal of sentiment in this country and a return to a spirit of intense nationalism on the part of American citizens."

* *

The financial district is inclined to feel that nothing spectacular in the way of currency or credit inflation is to occur until the foreign situation has cleared up and that the President will not exercise the vast price fixing, mortgage fixing, currency fixing powers conferred upon him by the farm bill until after the world economic conference, which begins June 12.

This attitude would explain the comparative stability of prices and the reduced volume of speculative trading during the last few days. Traders and the public generally are inclined to believe that prices have not risen too fast or too far, but they are awaiting a more definite indication of inflation.

* * *

A Chicago banker who has just returned from Europe where he spent several weeks studying economic and political conditions says he was particularly puzzled by the attitude of the British toward their banks. The British banks, he says, have been in by no means as liquid condition as American banks and yet there have been no runs.

"In Great Britain," he says, "there is no public supervision of banks. A bank gets up its own statement of condition. The depositors are told that the bank is '80 per cent liquid' and they believe it. No government examiners go over the books.

"As a matter of fact, the big American banks even before the moratorium were in much more liquid condition than the big British banks.

ROADS REPORT CONTINUED GAIN IN CAR LOADINGS

Car loadings on the North Western for the week of May 13 totaled 21,340 cars, compared with 19,838 cars in the like period of 1932. However, there was a decrease of 59 cars from the preceding week of this year.

The Milwaukee road handled 22,846 cars in the week of May 13, compared with 20,406 in the same week in 1932—a gain of 12.9 per cent. Loadings were down only 252 cars from the preceding week of this year.

Missouri Pacific freight traffic was under the preceding week, but ahead of the like week in 1932. Loadings totaled 18,891 cars for the week of May 13, compared with 18,628 cars in the like week of 1932, and 19,136 cars in the preceding week of this year.

TREASURY ASKS BANKS BY WIRE FOR NUMBER AND SIZE OF ACCOUNTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Taking action requested by the senate in connection with the deposit insurance phase of the Glass banking bill, the office of the comptroller of the currency has started telegraphic poll of all national banks to determine the number and total of small and large accounts.

National banks are being asked to report the number and total of their accounts under $2,500, between $2,500 and $5,000, between $5,000 and $10,000 and over $10,000. The comptroller's office refused to say anything except that the poll had been started at the request of senators.

The Steagall banking bill, companion measure to the Glass bill, was ordered reported by the house banking and currency committee today. It was to be taken up under a special bill within the next few days. The house bill differs only detail from Senator Glass' measure the most important point of difference being in the manner of non-member state bank participation in the benefits of the guaranty fund.

STOCKS BOUNCE ON ROOSEVELT'S PLAN TO DISARM

Active Issues Bid Up 1 to 3 Points.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 16. — President Roosevelt's disarmament message lightened the speculative atmosphere of Wall street anew today and the advance on the stock exchange was renewed with considerable earnestness. Active issues were bid up on the average 1 to 3 points with sharper gains here and there to spice the advance.

The market's technical condition after three days of moderate reaction eased the task of the bull leaders. Volume, however, was only a little in excess of that of yesterday, amounting to around 3,000,000 shares.

Brokers reported that the presidential message had been well received among the stock trading fraternity and the view that it might be counted upon to lead to a less bellicose feeling among German dictators was widely expressed. Publication of the document touched off an impressive volume of buying orders and the market moved forward.

Business News Encouraging.

Business news continued of a mildly encouraging nature. A belief amounting almost to conviction that the American Telephone directors at their meeting tomorrow will vote to maintain the regular $9 dividend rate made the stock of this premier utility corporation an outstanding strong spot and had a favorable influence on operations throughout the list. The issue closed at 107¼, up 2⅜ points on the day, after registering a new 1933 high of 108⅛.

There was some irregularity at the outset of the session, but the market quickly righted itself and climbed steadily until the last hour, when a setback in wheat and some other commodities appeared to dampen the courage of the bull fraternity. Some shading from the day's best levels consequently was noted in windup dealings.

Several Groups Strong.

The greatest determination to move forward was shown by the rails, alcohol issues, textiles and sugars. Atchison, Great Northern, New Haven and Union Pacific were the highlights in the rail group. Most food stocks were good, and packing issues remained in favor. Armour was especially strong.

The upward push of American Telephone and United States Steel kept laggards in line. U. S. Steel closed with a gain of more than 1 point, and appreciations of about the same amount were noted in other topnotch industrials like American Can, Du Pont, General Electric, General Motors and Westinghouse.

Betterment in silver metal prices aided International Silver, U. S. Smelting and others in that group. Coppers did better, but were not outstanding.

Oils and motors were firm generally and the chemicals rose 1 to 3 points.

At top levels, textile stocks were better by 1 to 10 points in such instances as Celanese, Industrial Rayon, Belding-Hemingway, Mallinson and Real Silk common and preferred.

OAK PARK AND LA GRANGE BANKS REOPEN TODAY

Two suburban banks will open for business today for the first time since the national banking holiday. The Suburban Trust and Savings bank of Oak Park will resume business with 50 per cent of its total deposits of $570,000 immediately available. The La Grange State Trust and Savings bank will open releasing 60 per cent of its $2,400,000 deposits.

Five more banks were given permission to reopen by State Auditor Barrett last night. They are:

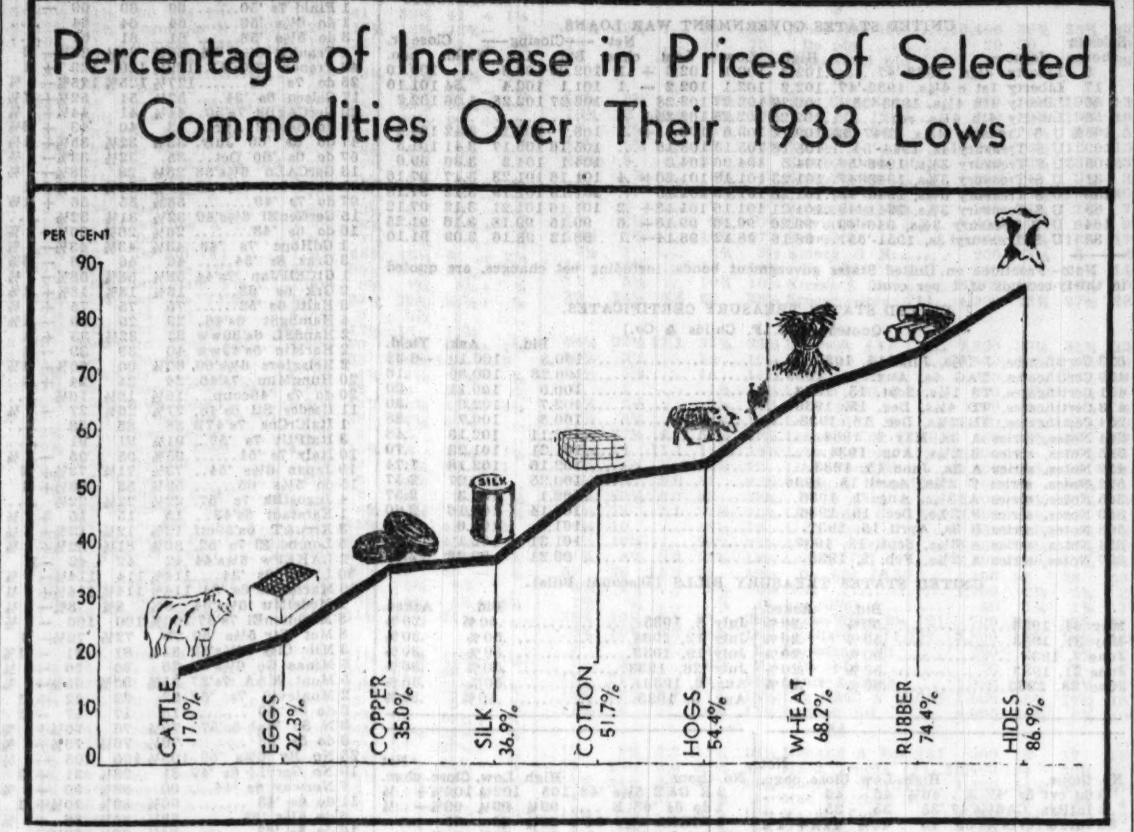
Cherry—State Bank of Cherry.
Ferris—Farmers State Bank of Ferris.
Carlyle—Farmers' and Mechants' Bank of Carlyle.



BREWERS HOPE TO ESCAPE OLD TIME "TOUCHES"

The involved system of brewery accounting in use twenty years ago is not likely to return, in the opinion of the Journal of the American Institute of Accountants. Particularly in the distributing field strange entries were necessary, the publication reports. Accounting was complicated by large loans to saloonkeepers, bad debts, and unclassifiable payments such as donations and ticket purchases from reformers, ward politicians, policemen, firemen, and Sunday schools and other similar exactions. Particularly the small brewery was looked upon as an institution on which to sponge, the journal asserts. Another old time custom which the publication is not so sure will not return was the personal verification of the quality and condition of inventories by the examining accountant.

* *

The "B. Y. O. L." warning customarily attached to announcements of large get-togethers is going out of vogue with the return of legal beer. For instance, the La Salle Street Cashiers association in announcing its fourth annual outing for June 24-25 at Twin Lakes, Wis., declares in bold faced letters: "Real beer—plenty." During the "bone dry" era it was thought necessary to couch the news that brew would be on tap in mysterious terms—some so obvious that even a dry agent might suspect. Outsiders are welcome to the outing, the cashiers state hospitably, the guest charge being only $2 more than for members.

* *

Prices of various commodities and stocks have been going up recently, much to the satisfaction of La Salle street. However, a number of brokers have been pleased over one reduction—their bootlegger has informed them that hereafter the price of the principal ingredient in their gin will cost $3 a gallon instead of $4. The popularity of the new beer is given as the reason for the reduction.

Since 1888, Edward Hakes of Page county, Iowa, has sold approximately 10 million pounds of cattle and hogs on the Chicago market, enough to furnish a good meal for 20 million people. To date he has shipped in 540 carloads of stock of his own feeding.

The fresh water traveler with an imposing record of Lake Michigan mileage is George Schaaf, a salesman for a Milwaukee meat packing house. Mr. Schaaf started selling meat products in Ludington and Manistee on March 15, 1888. Since then he has crossed the lake from Milwaukee to Michigan on Pere Marquette car ferries twice a week. He estimates that he crossed Lake Michigan in fair weather and in foul 4,680 times for a total of 46,800 miles. His only adventure occurred in 1918 when he was a passenger on Pere Marquette Car Ferry No. 19 which was stuck in the ice for a week off Pentwater, Mich.

American Telephone Expected to Vote Usual Dividend Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 16.—Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, who meet at noon tomorrow, may be expected to authorize the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share on the capital stock, according to well informed sources.

The same procedure that was followed at the last quarterly meeting again has been resorted to, however, in the event that there is a disagreement among the directors regarding the regular payment.

Two Sets of Figures.

Two sets of figures in the form of a budget have been prepared, one predicated on the payment of the regular quarterly rate and the other giving effect to a cut in the dividend.

Notwithstanding the fact, however, that such preparation indicates that the directors will enter the meeting with an open mind, there is increasing confidence that the regular payment will be authorized.

Improvement in business generally, the betterment in telephone traffic, and the indications that telephone disconnections have shown a more favorable trend all combine to create a greater degree of confidence in respect of the regular disbursement.

Gifford Favors Full Rate.

It is also no secret that Walter S. Gifford, president of American Telephone and Telegraph, is in favor of maintaining the regular payment.

Actual earnings of the Bell system in the first quarter, as well as the net income of the American Telephone and Telegraph company in the form of dividends and its own operating profits, were at the lowest level since the depression began and materially below dividend requirements.

Advisers of Reserve Split on Inflation

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—President Roosevelt's money and banking programs apparently were deadlocking a meeting of the federal reserve system's advisory council today. Failing to agree on whether it would sanction the President's plans, the council laid plans for continuing its meetings tomorrow.

The council has been meeting for two days, its first session since President Roosevelt took office and launched his inflationary schemes.

Break Over Inflation.

Two factions, one urging approval of extensive open market operations as authorized in the President's inflationary plan, and the other opposing such action, reputedly are locking horns and have forced continuation of the meeting tomorrow. The deadlock, apparently, took members of the council by surprise. Both Melvin A. Traylor and Dr. Walter Lichtenstein of Chicago, who had planned to leave tonight, had to hastily cancel railroad reservations.

Repeated meetings have failed to break up the tangle. The council met yesterday alone at a local hotel and held a joint meeting with the federal reserve board this morning. The council met alone again at the afternoon session, but called the board in again later in the day.

Bankers' Views Diverge.

Membership of the council includes bankers of widely divergent points of view. Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker and confidential adviser to Herbert Hoover during his presidency, for instance, faced proponents of the new administration across the council table.

The council has only advisory powers and can not block the inflation program, even if it disapproves. Its adherence is considered necessary, however, because of the prestige which the members of the council hold in the banking world.

STATE STREET FINDS BUSINESS GETTING BETTER

Stores Report Sales Are Growing.

State street is feeling the effects of the business improvement which dispatches indicate is becoming general throughout the country. Officials of the big department stores report that sentiment is better and this is being translated by the public into buying.

F. D. CORLEY.

F. D. Corley, vice president and merchandise manager of Marshall Field & Co., was cheerful yesterday as he discussed business conditions.

"There has been a real improvement in our business," Mr. Corley remarked. "While it has not been sufficient to put more people back to work in the retail stores, it is such as to give us some real encouragement.

"There is no doubt but what people are feeling better; they are becoming less fearful for the future. Relieved of uncertainty, people will buy. The increase in our sales is a good indication of the improvement in sentiment.

Believe Prices to Rise.

"Another factor which is causing increased buying now is the general belief that prices will increase. While the department stores, of course, will not raise the prices for goods on their shelves already purchased, when stocks are exhausted we'll have to buy on the market, and when we pay more we'll have to charge more.

"The public has been purchasing household goods especially. Such

Low rates-- more customers using more gas

THERE are more gas customers per thousand of population in California than in any other state. The average of all the states is 130 per thousand; in California 241 per thousand.

The universal availability of gas is one reason, although the proportion of customers in California is three times as high as in the Gulf natural gas region.

A large urban population in California is another reason, although gas customers per thousand of population exceed the number in the states bordering Lake Michigan by fifty percent.

The high heat-value of natural gas served in California contributes to its extensive use. So does the mild climate, which makes gas the ideal domestic fuel. Other important factors are higher-than-average income and standards of living 40% above the national average.

These are the natural advantages of the territory served by Pacific Lighting and in which it has developed since the eighties, when Los Angeles was a town of 40,000 population and the gas company served 2,000 customers.

To these natural advantages must be added the policy observed by Pacific Lighting from the beginning, of keeping its rates as low as the maintenance of good service and the preservation of the company's sound condition will permit.

In the recent years of State regulation of utility rates a utility company must lose the credit for rate reductions. Pacific Lighting can demonstrate its lowest-consistent-rate policy only by the fact that prior to State regulation it made 13 successive voluntary rate reductions. These reductions have brought the cost of gas for domestic use in Los Angeles to less than a fourth of the rates in effect when Pacific Lighting started.

Low rates mean more customers and a greater variety of uses. With gas connected to kitchen ranges, furnaces, water heaters, portable room-heaters, refrigerators and other appliances in hundreds of thousands of homes, and with an average household gas-bill no larger than the cost of a daily quart of milk, there is no reason to expect the displacement of gas by any other fuel.

The steadying influence of good service at low rates is reflected in stabilized revenues. Pacific Lighting's revenues, supported by a large proportion of domestic business, have fluctuated chiefly through variations in the weather—and climate tends to follow a normal line over a period of years.

A utility company that furnishes practically perfect service at low rates is usually in good standing with the community. A low-rate policy is one sign of a generally enlightened policy that extends throughout the business. It is one of the important items which should influence an investor's estimate of utility securities.

• • • • •

Pacific Lighting is offering no securities at the present time, and will continue to finance its construction requirements with its own funds for the immediate future. The purpose of these advertisements is to secure wider recognition of the company's principles of financing and operation, in order that future issues of securities may be marketed to better advantage.

14 Standards of Utility Investment

Equity investments in utility companies are now usually available to investors only through the securities of holding companies.

In the final analysis, those holding companies which render the greatest economic service—lower cost of financing, operating economies and improvements in service—are best able to earn dividends and conserve property values. The earning power and efficient use of invested capital must rest, in the long run, upon organization, management, and service.

These advertisements describe the outstanding features of the structure developed by Pacific Lighting during its 46 years of utility operation in Southern California. They deal individually with:

U. S. BANKS WILL JOIN PARLEY ON GERMAN CREDITS

Decide to Send Agent to Berlin Conference.

New York, May 16.—(AP)—Representatives of banks having an interest in Germany's external debts voted today to send a representative to Berlin to attend the meeting of the reich's private creditors on May 26, in accord with the invitation of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the reichsbank. Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the senior German standstill committee, will represent the American creditors if he can arrange to make the trip.

The bankers assembled hastily today when notified by the federal reserve bank of receipt of Dr. Schacht's cabled invitation. Acting merely as an avenue of transmittal, the federal reserve promptly advised the standstill committee and the banks who have functioned as houses of issue in the various German flotations.

Long Term Creditors to Meet.

Schacht's invitation was in accord with his statement last week as he was leaving American shores. He stated at that time that Germany would request consideration of a transfer moratorium on foreign obligations.

Representatives of Germany's long term creditors will hold a special meeting tomorrow to map a course of action. The interest service on these long term credits, or bonds, amounts to about three or four times the requirements of the short term credits. With this situation in mind, some bankers here believe that Germany will direct most of its attention to obtain a scaling down of interest and principal on its external bonds.

German Trade Balance Drops.

Germany needs a favorable balance of trade of about $20,000,000 a month to meet all payments on her external obligations, it is estimated. Last year the reich averaged approximately that amount monthly, but in the four months of this year the amount has dropped considerably, bankers report, due in part to hostility to the Hitler régime.

Aluminum Co. of America.

Kindly send me information on Aluminum Company of America, both common and preferred.—H. P. W.

Aluminum Company of America has a virtual monopoly on domestic supply of bauxite [aluminum ore]. Although this ore is one of the commonest, deposits in amount sufficient to warrant commercial extraction are few.

The industry ranks fifth among the metal trades in the country. Only about 44 per cent of bauxite is refined into aluminum. The balance is divided in equal proportions between the chemical industry and the abrasive trades.

Transportation, electrical, and cooking utensil companies absorb about 70 per cent of the aluminum produced in this country. The remainder is purchased by architectural, electrical appliance, and iron and steel industries.

Because aluminum is used by many different industries, rate of operations of the company varies with degree of business activity. As a result net loss for 1932 was $2,173,000. This compared with net income of $3,910,000 for 1931, which fell short of covering half of preferred dividend requirements, and net income of $11,673,000, or $1.93 per common share, for 1930. Net for 1929 equaled $11.18 per common share.

Current assets of $75,324,000 were 2½ times current liabilities on Dec. 31, 1932. Cash was $2,937,000. Working capital was $44,991,000, against $53,187,000 the year before.

The 1,472,625 shares of no par common are preceded by 1,469,532 shares of $100 par 6 per cent preferred and $36,511,000 of 5 per cent debentures, due 1952.

As far as competition goes the company does not have much to fear from other metals. Its big problem is coping with aluminum scrap, which is offered at much lower prices than virgin aluminum. Its future appears to be dependent on ability to discover new uses for the product and success of competing with scrap.

The preferred and common are both speculative.

Gold Standard and U. S. Bonds.

Will the United States' going off the gold standard have any effect on the payment of interest [and principal when due] on Liberty bonds?—Miss O. M. K.

The mere fact that the United States has suspended the gold standard does not invalidate its obligations with reference to its outstanding debt. The greatest net effect such action in itself has on Liberty bonds is that interest and principal are not being paid in gold, but are paid in currency.

CHASE NATIONAL ACTS TO END SALE OF SECURITIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 16.—Stockholders of the Chase National bank today approved the proposals originally advanced by Winthrop W. Aldrich, head of the bank, on March 8, for taking the Chase organization out of the securities business and reducing its board of directors from seventy-two to thirty-six members.

The reduction of the board of directors was acted upon at a meeting of the bank's stockholders held at noon.

Change Securities Corporation.

Reconvening later in the afternoon in their capacity of owners of the bank's affiliate, the Chase Securities corporation, the stockholders approved the following measures:

1. An amendment to the certificate of incorporation so as to eliminate the power to engage in the securities business, except to the extent of liquidating any investment already held.
2. Authorization for the immediate liquidation of the business of the Chase, Harris, Forbes companies, subsidiaries of the bank's affiliate.
3. A change in the name of the affiliate from the Chase Securities corporation to the Chase corporation.
4. A reduction in the number of directors of the affiliate from thirty to ten.
5. A reduction in the par value of the shares of the affiliate from $5 to $1, thereby reducing the capital stock from $37,000,000 to $7,400,000.

A group of former executives of the Chase, Harris, Forbes corporation will form a corporation to transact a general investment business about June 1. The group is headed by John K. Starkweather and includes Eugene R. Black Jr. of Atlanta, son of the newly appointed governor of the federal reserve board.

CHICAGO FIRM ORGANIZED.

ASSOCIATED GAS EXPLAINS PLAN TO CUT INTEREST

Asks Holders to Take New Debentures.

Following up a warning contained in its annual report, the Associated Gas and Electric company yesterday made public a plan under which it is asking the holders of its fixed interest debentures to exchange their holdings for new securities. The plan would result in a material reduction in the company's fixed interest charges, which were earned by an extremely slim margin in 1932.

In explaining the program President J. J. Mange discussed the possibility of a receivership unless the plan is accepted.

Three separate exchange offers are made to debenture holders, any one of which may be accepted. Under the first plan, new debentures, due in 1973, would be given to holders in amounts equal to 50 per cent of the principal amount of their present securities. The new debentures would bear the same fixed interest rate as the securities turned in.

Under the second offer holders would receive the same amount of new income debentures in exchange for their present holdings with a lower interest rate. The interest reduction proposed ranges from ½ to 1 per cent on the various series.

Under the third option the principal amount and interest rate remains the same on new sinking fund debentures. The interest would be payable unconditionally as long as any of the fixed interest debentures remained outstanding. Interest would be paid out of available net income when the plan becomes operative.

BANKERS' GROUP AGAINST DEPOSIT INSURANCE PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 16.—The American Bankers' association is opposed to the bank deposit insurance plans proposed in the Glass and Steagall bank reform bills now before congress, declared Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company, New York, and president of the association, today.

While the association, he said, has endorsed the major aims of the Glass banking reform bill and the greater part of its specific provisions, yet it "is firmly on record as opposed in principle to any law carrying a guaranty of deposits such as is now incorporated in the new Glass bill before the present session of congress.

Cites Previous Failures.

"This newly added provision is called a 'deposit insurance' plan, but it is not different in fundamental principle from the 'guaranty of deposits' plans that have been given eight large scale trials in this country and have proven disastrous failures in every instance," says Mr. Sisson's statement. "The basic idea in every one of them was to guarantee specified classes of bank depositors against loss of their deposits through the failure of their bank, by means of an insurance fund created by premiums in the form of assessments on banks proportionate to their volume of deposits. This is also the basic idea of the present proposals embodied respectively in the Glass senate bill and the Steagall house bill."

Bad Banking Not Necessary.

"It is fundamental that the only real guaranty for bank deposits is good banking," Mr. Sisson declared. "Deposit guaranty is not good banking. It is an attempted substitute for good banking.

Mr. Sisson said that "foremost among the deleterious effects of the guaranty of deposits in every case where it was tried was that it served as a smoke screen for bad banking."

EARLY BULGE IN LARD LOST IN LATE TRADING

Lard and hogs sold at new high levels early, the latter getting to $5.15, the best since last August. Realizing sales on the part of traders combined with the easier tone in wheat and corn resulted at the close in a decline of 7½ to 15 cents for the day. Trading in all was liberal, but not up to the recent levels. Cash lard was off 17½ cents to $6.60, with loose $5.95 and leaf $6.00. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d lower.

Cash trade in lard was fair and meats good, price on the latter being about ¼ cent higher. Bellies were unchanged to 5 cents higher, with cash lots $7.25, or the same as on Monday. Prices follow:

EXCESSIVE RAIN CASTS DOUBT ON CORN CROP AREA

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Excessive rains over the leading corn belt states in the last two weeks have delayed planting operations to such an extent that serious doubts are now expressed by leading Chicago experts as to the ability of producers to put in the acreage intended.

An official estimate of farmers' intentions to plant by the department of agriculture recently suggested a total area for the 1933 corn crop of 103,934,000 acres, a reduction of 3,800,000 acres from the total harvested in 1932.

All of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Missouri, the eastern part of Oklahoma and southern and eastern Iowa are involved in the area where excessive rains have fallen. This area and Nebraska furnish practically all of the commercial grain crop of the country.

Big Area Involved.

The six states, according to the official returns, were expected to plant 35,854,000 acres to corn this season, against 38,215,000 acres harvested last year, or about 30 per cent of the total for the entire country. Low prices early in March were given as the main reason for the reduction at that time.

Sunshine over part of the belt yesterday led to hope that a period of dry weather is at hand, and was largely responsible for a break of as much as 1⅝ cents in corn futures. Scattered longs liquidated and the July sold down to 45⅝ cents before buying by holders of bids and shorts checked the decline.

A rally followed in sympathy with the upturn in stocks, but the close was 1 to 1¼ cents lower. May was 44¼ cents at the last; July, 45⅞ cents, and September, 47¾ to 47⅞ cents. The December delivery, representing the crop which will be harvested next fall, closed at 49¼ cents. Trading in corn futures was not large, as the disposition is to await further developments regarding the new crop.

Wheat Trading Slackens.

Speculative interest in wheat has fallen off, with uncertainty regarding developments at Washington and in Europe, scattered longs started to even up, as also did many of the local professionals. Buying was not aggressive and prices declined 1¼ cents at the extreme but a rally toward the close reduced net losses to ⅜ to ⅝ cent. May was 71⅞ cents at the last: July, 73¼ to 73⅜ cents, and September, 74⅛ to 74⅜ cents. Winnipeg was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower in Canadian funds and Liverpool was ½ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower.

Oats, rye, and barley were dominated by the action of other grains. Oats lost ½ to ⅝ cent, with May closing at 25⅝ to 25¾ cents, and July at 26⅛ cents. Rye was off ¼ to ¾ cents. May closed at 54 cents and July at 55 cents. Barley trading was slow with net losses of ⅛ to ¼ cent, May being 34 cents and July 37 cents at the last.

LONDON, May 16.—(AP)—There were 10,145 bales of wool offered for sale at the auction today, of which 8,828 bales were sold. A good selection was offered and met strong competition at better prices. Scoured Merinos and medium crossbreds occasionally sold 5 per cent above the rates quoted at the opening of the series.

HOGS AGAIN SET NEW TOP, $5.15; CATTLE STRONG

Swine Prices Are Highest in 20 Months.

All live stock resumed their drive toward higher prices yesterday. New 1933 highs were made in most branches, with some classes above any time of last year.

After faltering on Monday, hogs swung about on strong support yesterday, to close 10 to 15 cents above the average of the day before and $1.10 to $1.15 above ten days ago. The general average for the day reached $5.00, which equaled the highest daily average since October, 1931. Twice last July the average reached the $5.00 line which was the high spot for 1932.

Top sales of hogs advanced to $5.15, the highest since Aug. 12. On July 12, 1932, when hogs averaged $5.00, the peak price reached $5.55, last year's top. Current quotations are $2.15 to $2.20 above the low point less than five months ago and $1.50 to $1.65 above a year ago.

Lard Helps Heavy Hogs.

The higher position of the lard market has elevated lard type hogs above any time in 1932. Extremely heavy packing sows selling yesterday around $4.50 were comparable to $4.15 kinds at the high point of last summer. The spread in prices is the narrowest on record for this time of the year. The top and average yesterday were only 15 cents apart. Frequently during the last few days the spread has been only 10 cents between the two prices.

Following Monday's moderately large receipts, yesterday's abrupt letup took the trade by surprise. The run at Chicago at 18,000 was smallest for a Tuesday since April 11 and 26 per cent under the average of the last four weeks. Advance estimates for today at the five leading markets show only 47,000 in sight, against 62,400 last Wednesday.

"Quiet Strike for $6 Hogs."

Wooled lambs soared to a $7.25 top on a buoyant trade, the highest price paid since July 12. Shorn lambs were at the highest level since April of last year, with the best at $6.85. The old crop of lambs are selling $1.25 to $1.35 above a year ago. On the corresponding day in 1932 top wooled lambs sold at $6.00, while the best shorn lambs stopped at $5.50.

Slightly better demand for dressed beef and the wide call for leather contributed to the advance in cattle yesterday. While top sales failed to set up a new mark, the rank and file of steers sold at the highest prices of 1933, with the bulk at $5.25 to $6.25, making a mean price of $5.75 which stands $1.05 above the low weekly average this year.

TRANSPORTATION BUILDING TITLE CHANGES HANDS

Bondholders Now Are the Owners.

BY AL CHASE.

With the completion yesterday of the fifteen months' period of redemption, title to the twenty-two story Transportation building at the southwest corner of Dearborn and Harrison, was conveyed by the Transportation Building corporation, by master's deed, to the newly formed Transportation Building corporation of Chicago, which is owned entirely by the bondholders. According to L. J. Cullen, chairman of the bondholders' protective committee, the depositing bondhonders, representing $2,306,200 of the outstanding $2,445,900 bonds, now have entire possession of the property.

Bondholders have been issued pro rata amounts of income bonds and also $100 in common stock in the new corporation for every $100 bond. The stock has been put in the hands of three trustees, Mr. Cullen, H. L. Harker, and J. G. Fisher [all members of the bondholders' protective committee] and voting trust certificates issued against it to the bondholders. The building was bid in at foreclosure fifteen months ago for $1,639,647. Chapman & Cutler were attorneys. W. H. Short is secretary of the bondholders' protective committee.

Rokeby Reorganization.

A plan for the reorganization of the $225,000 series A bonds of the five story Rokeby apartment hotel at 3841 Rokeby street was submitted yesterday to bondholders by the protective committee for securities underwritten by the Straus Brothers Investment company. This will be by means of a liquidation trust.

The committee states that rights of the holders of the series B bonds and second mortgage notes aggregating $51,000, title to the property, and ownership of all furniture and equipment of the building can be secured for approximately $22,000. It also announces that the entire cost of reorganization will not exceed $37,500, which includes the $22,000 payment to nondepositing bondholders, attorney's fees, and other reorganization expenses.

More Parking Stations.

A 300 car parking space is to be constructed at 5320-50 Sheridan road, opposite the Edgewater Beach hotel, by the Edgewater Beach Parking Station, Inc., of which Albert R. Hanson is president. The property fronts 300 feet on Sheridan road, with a depth of 150 feet. According to Benjamin S. Mesirow, attorney, the property is to be improved with shrubs, flowers, and trees, and surrounded by a lattice fence. An attractive gas station also is planned along the architectural lines of the Edgewater Beach hotel, with stucco walls and red tile roof.

BUTTER AND EGGS RALLY

Butter and egg futures closed about steady on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Butter was ¼c lower to ¼c higher and eggs unchanged to ⅛c lower. Bearish weekly storage news brought out heavy profit taking in October eggs at the opening, but near the close strong buying set in and quickly sent the price back to the previous close. The weekly reports showed that the principal cities already hold more eggs than they held at the peak last year, with a heavy inward movement continuing. Butter followed the egg trend, breaking at the start, but moving back at the close when new buying appeared. The support was encouraged by the daily four market storage report which showed 200,000 lbs less butter in than last year. Sales: Butter, 87 cars; eggs, 175 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car; eggs, 7 cars. Prices follow:

STATE STREET FINDS BUSINESS GETTING BETTER

goods are in the nature of an investment, and many people are protecting themselves against the future. Surprising as it may seem, we have had people buying such luxury articles as mink coats for fall delivery. A few months ago we'd have been laughed at had we attempted to show such articles.

"We are finding that manufacturers are not so ready to show their fall goods. During the last few years we have had a buyer's market. Now things are changing and the seller is getting in the saddle again.

Examples of Rising Costs.

"Take, as an example, men's suits. Manufacturers are refusing to show their fall line. The reason for this is that the price of wool has been moving steadily upward. An important shoe dealer who has just returned from a trip through the east recently informed me that he expects the prices of shoes to advance from 15 to 25 per cent."

Manufacturers specializing in popular priced all wool blankets are reported in trade bulletins to have withdrawn practically all offerings. Some are said to be willing to make sales on a basis of future wool prices.

The Davis company and the Boston Store were among the other State street establishments which reported that their business has been increasing.

Sell $500,000 Premiums.

Howard W. Dunk, secretary of the National Premium Exposition, which is holding its annual exposition at the Stevens hotel, reported yesterday that one dealer alone has signed orders for more than $250,000 worth of merchandise to be given away as premiums. Based on talks with exhibitors, he said, a conservative estimate for two days' business would be in excess of $500,000.

More than 500 buyers from all parts of the country have been attending the exposition, which is sponsored by the Manufacturers' Merchandise Advertising Association, Inc. William L. Sweet, treasurer of the Rumford Chemical is president.

The ten per cent wage reduction voluntarily accepted by a group of Sears, Roebuck & Co. employés during the bank holiday has been restored, it is announced by Gen. Robert E. Wood, president. When the cut was originally made it was with the understanding that it would be restored when business conditions cleared up. The restoration was interpreted as indicating officials of the merchandising house believe the current business upturn to be genuine.

Bright Spots in News.

The Crane company has advanced prices on its enamel products 10 per cent in line with advances of other companies.

Due to increased business from the return of beer, the Mueller Brass company of Port Huron, Mich., makers of copper and brass pipe and fixtures, has added 145 men to the pay roll since April 1. Wage cuts put into effect at that time have been entirely restored and refunds equal to the amount of the cuts given employés.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—Percale advances to a basis of 10c for 4-80 square goods are now general. Buying of finished goods continues steady. Rayon yarns are closely sold through July, production being at capacity. Wool goods sales are moderate and steady, with production increasing. Wool blankets have been further advanced following a rise in raw wool. Silk goods are in better demand. Burlaps are moving in better volume than for some time.
